Organized through schools, PTAs

Koeppen asks village board 'accountability sessions'

by LYNN ASINOF

Wheeling Trustee John Koeppen has asked the village board to initiate a program of accountability sessions, organized through the local schools and PTAs.

He also asked the board to schedule a meeting of all civic organizations to develop cooperative community projects. Board members unanimously approved the requests Monday night.

Koeppen proposed the accountability sessions as an alternative to the annual town meeting, which was promised in the 1971 village election by his political party. The trustee said the board held only one town meeting in 1972 and then dropped the program because of poor turnout.

"This meeting did not work," he said. "There were only 25 or 30 people there." Koeppen said he would like to take a new approach toward meeting the public by organizing a series of meetings throughout the village. "Instead of them coming to us, let us go to them," he said. The trustee said citizens will be able to ask questions on any topic at these accountability sessions. "As far as I'm concerned, there will be no holds barred," he said.

Koeppen asked the board to begin preliminary work on these meetings by contacting the local schools and PTAs to ask their support. He said this work should begin immediately so the first meeting can be scheduled as soon as school starts in the fall.

According to Koeppen, the board would be assured of a better resident turnout under this system because of the connection with schools and PTAs.

The trustee said that if the accountability sessions were successful, they can be scheduled on a regular basis. He said, however, such meetings will not be appropriate during election years because they could be used for campaigning.

Koeppen also asked the board to schedule a meeting of all Wheeling civic organizations. He said such a meeting might be the beginning of a cooperative effort by these groups to develop the village.

The trustee said many civic organizations now sponsor limited projects for the community. He noted the Jaycees' offer to assist the park district in developing a proposed park site on the west side of town.

According to Koeppen, a combined effort might enable the civic groups to sponsor larger projects. "This way, instead of working with pennies, you would be working with dollars."

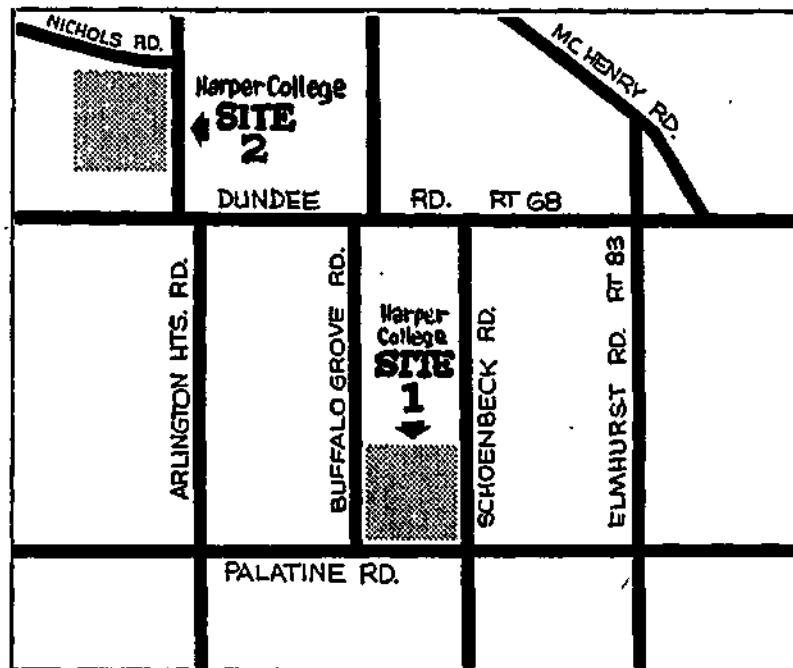

Koeppen said he got the idea two or three months ago while driving to a recreational facility in another community. He said other towns have roller rinks, tennis clubs and indoor skating facilities. "Why can't we promote our own town with something like this?" he said.

THE TRUSTEE said by organizing the civic organizations, the village might recapture some of the local pride and enthusiasm that was generated by the village's Diamond Jubilee several years ago.

Koeppen said this might also alleviate some of the problems of communication between the board and the village residents.

"I got tired of listening to the junk these people put out," he said. "We're getting blamed for a lot of things we're not responsible for."

Koeppen asked that this meeting of the civic organizations be scheduled at the earliest possible date.

Harper eyes new site for 2d campus

by KURT BAER

Harper College officials are considering another possible site for a second campus near the northwest corner of Arlington Heights and Dundee roads, the Herald has learned.

The primary site for a second campus, if one is built, remains the northwest corner of Palatine and Schoenbeck roads in Arlington Heights, according to Jack Lucas, director of planning for the college.

But the Dundee-Arlington Heights Road site was given second priority in a study that evaluated six other locations.

A final decision on whether to build a second Harper campus has not been made, and may not be made for another year, Lucas said.

The land at the northwest corner of Arlington Heights and Dundee roads lies behind the Buffalo Grove Mall shopping center in unincorporated Cook County. The site was given a high rating in the site study because of its size, location and availability.

"Palatine-Schoenbeck roads is still our first choice, if a second campus is going to be built. We considered a number — six — other sites and that (Arlington Heights-Dundee) was one that has been considered," Lucas said yesterday.

"If we decide to go for a second site, and if for some reason the Palatine-Schoenbeck property isn't available, which I don't anticipate, we would probably reevaluate the (land) situation," he added.

THE HERALD first disclosed in February that 126 acres at the northwest corner of Palatine and Schoenbeck roads, property known as the Ozmun Farm, was the college's prime target for a second campus site.

The land is now owned by the Mayo Foundation, a not-for-profit corporation affiliated with the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn. It is conservatively valued at $25,000 an acre.

Harper has asked that the site be designated for educational purposes in the (Continued on page 4)

Dundee road fixup to start

by JOE FRANZ

Widening and paving of Dundee Road to four lanes between Elmhurst Road and Rte. 53 is expected to begin in about two weeks, a spokesman for the Illinois Division of Highways said yesterday.

Oscar Mohsin, an area programmer, said about 80 per cent of the storm sewers have been installed which will clear the way for the actual road construction. Mohsin said the majority of storm sewers must be installed before the widening process begins.

Mohsin said the $2.5 million project is scheduled to be completed by June or July of next year. Construction is slightly behind schedule. Mohsin said weather will be a major factor in determining if the project is completed on time.

Plans for the project also call for the realignment of Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights roads south of Dundee Road. Both roads will be rerouted to meet the already existing extensions to them on the north side of Dundee Road.

The realignment of the two roads should eliminate two bottlenecks which hamper through traffic in the area. Officials said this will be the last phase of the project.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS Road will also be widened to four lanes from University Drive north to Dundee Road. There are, however, no plans now to widen the road from University Drive south to Rand Road.

State officials said Dundee Road will remain open at a reduced speed limit when the widening begins. The current speed limit of 50 m.p.h. will be reduced to 35 m.p.h. Buffalo Grove Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said the village has suggested the speed limit on Dundee Road be raised to 45 m.p.h. once construction is finished.

School Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill said construction is creating no safety hazard for children walking to London Junior High School because adequate sidewalks have been provided.

Gill said the overpass near the school, which cost $80,000, was constructed with the widening of Dundee Road in mind, and despite rumors will not be taken down.

THE NEW STORM sewers will divert water from the Dundee Road area to a five-acre retention lake which the village plans to construct in the Arlington Golf Course at Buffalo Grove and Dundee roads. The lake will help alleviate flooding in the White Pine ditch and Buffalo Creek areas.

The lake, which will have a capacity for 16 million gallons, will cost $330,000. It will be financed with $120,000 from the Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD), $130,000 from the Illinois Division of Waterways and $80,000 from village funds. Construction of the lake is scheduled to begin in October.

Buffalo Grove originally refused to approve the construction plans on Dundee Road widening because the state planned to channel the runoff from the road into the White Pine ditch. The village agreed to the state's plan after the state agreed to install an oversize drainage pipe which will divert water to the retention lake.

Their very own Watergate . . .

Card game based on administration fiasco may put inventors on Easy Street

By CAROL RHINE
Money will soon be changing hands rapidly in the Watergate scandal, but it will not be done "under the table."

The Watergate Scandal is a new game that its two inventors hope will be a popular item across the country. A million of the card games are being printed for distribution from the offices of American Symbolic Corp. in Elk Grove Village.

If you can't convince your opponents that you are innocent, you could become the big loser in the game that involves bribery, treachery and deceit.

THE GAME IS the brainchild of two businessmen, Joe Sugarman, 35, of Northbrook, and Howard Mercer, 29, of Los Angeles. Sugarman will direct the company's operations from the village office at 1935 Estes Ave., and Mercer will travel and promote the game.

In the Watergate Scandal game, everyone is a loser. The object of the game is to out-out-deceive your opponents and get the least number of penalty points. Cards are marked with titles like White House aide, presidential adviser and phone tapper.

One mystery card in the deck is conspicuously without a title, and the authors say the buyer can draw his own conclusion as to whose name should be on the card.

Yesterday the pair had a news conference to kick off the promotion — at the Watergate Hotel in Washington, of course.

THE TWO HAVE been so busy promoting the game that they could only squeeze in time for a Herald interview while they waited at O'Hare Airport for their flight to Washington, D.C.

"The idea all started with the final Chicago Black Hawk hockey game in the Stanley Cup championship," Sugarman said. He said he is a big Black Hawk fan and wanted to see the game, which was blacked out in Chicago.

"I had some business to take care of in Los Angeles so I took the opportunity to go to L.A., conduct my business and see the Black Hawk game," Sugarman said.

Sugarman knew Mercer from previous business associations, and while in Los Angeles he stayed at Mercer's home. The two watched the final Stanley Cup game together on May 10. (Black Hawks lost to Montreal Canadiens 6-4.)

AFTER THE GAME a newscaster announced that former Atty. Gen. John Mitchell and former Secretary of Commerce Maurice Stans had been indicted in connection with a Securities and Exchange Commission probe of a $200,000 campaign contribution by financier Robert Vesco.

"We were shocked and surprised at the news and wondered who would be indicted next," Sugarman said. "The whole thing was so serious, it became funny."

Sugarman said the two then began making up an imaginary game of the whole Watergate affair.

"We began making a card game of it — if you are stuck with three Martha Mitchell (wife of the former attorney general) cards and one H.R. Haldeman (Nixon's former chief of staff) card, you automatically lost."

SUGARMAN SAID THEY really got the idea to market a Watergate game at a nearby ice cream parlor later that evening. "We were talking about the game

HOWARD MERCER, left, and Joe Sugarman say their Watergate Scandal game gives everyone in the family a chance to bluff his or her way to the top. Although the cards bear labels such as White House aide and attorney general, the authors say any resemblance to actual persons is a "helluva coincidence." The game will be distributed from a 55,000 square-foot building in Elk Grove Village.

and other people in the ice cream parlor started laughing. We decided maybe we really had something and maybe a game like this could really go."

That night Sugarman and Mercer stayed up until 4 a.m. devising the game and writing instructions that would correspond to the real Watergate scandal. Sugarman said they knew they would have to work fast to get the game out, and for the next four days he grabbed only two to three hours of sleep a night.

By the next Friday, the first copies of the game were printed and on the shelves in selected test markets. Within the next two weeks the game will be in stores in every major city in the country.

Sugarman describes the birth of the game in three phases: Phase I was the idea, Phase II was producing the game and Phase III is the marketing. However, he added, "I just want to make it

5 named to board at Sacred Heart High

Five appointments have been made to the Lay Advisory Board at Sacred Heart of Mary High School in Rolling Meadows for the 1973-74 academic year.

Reappointed were incumbents Ron Marwitz and Lloyd Struttman. Charles Rogers, Kay McDermott and Helen O'Kane will begin new terms.

The five board terms were awarded by a board nominating committee following a parent-wide poll for nominations. Each board member may serve no more than three one-year terms.

Board officers for the 1973-74 year are: Marwitz, president; Don Klein, vice president; and Pat Heerdegen, secretary. Other board members include: Emily Mannix, John Langhenry, Robert Meersman, Art Eiken, James Gallagher, John Pittas, Art Brady and Don Ripoli.

perfectly clear that the authors claim no connection with the president's wage-price program and this analysis."

THE TWO entrepreneurs raised $250,000 to get the game started, including investments from Chicago builders Edward Bauman and David O'Malley. They said the first $10,000 in income from sales will be donated to the American Civil Liberties Union.

Both Mercer and Sugarman predict their game could be successful over a long period of time. "If a game had been made on the Teapot Dome scandal, we'd probably still be playing it today," Mercer said.

The pair say they have ideas for a couple of other games for American Symbolic Corp., but they are not ready to talk about them now.

Before the Watergate Scandal game came along, Mercer was busy in Los Angeles fighting American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and General Telephone & Electronics Corp. for allegedly blocking the sale of his automatic telephone dialing system. Mercer, president of Macom Product Corp., contends his company was harassed, threatened and intimidated to stop marketing its product.

Sugarman is the president of J.S. & A. Advertising in Northbrook. He worked for the Central Intelligence Agency and was in Army intelligence before starting his own business.

BOTH MEN SAY their game is not political, but topical. "It's a game people of all ages and political inclinations can play," Sugarman said.

Although the cards are marked with titles that really exist, like White House aide and attorney general, the game's instructions state, "Any resemblance to actual persons living or dead is a helluva coincidence, isn't it?"

How much similarity there is to reality is, of course, debatable. After all, the game is about intimidation and deception, and the authors may just be trying to pull your leg.

For high school administrators

Board authorizes 5% raises

Raises for High School Dist. 214 administrators will average 5 per cent next year, unless the board decides next month that's too high.

The board Monday authorized Supt. Edward Gilbert to draw up proposed merit salary increases for the district's 101 administrators using $110,000 more than was spent last year for salaries. The figure provides an average five per cent raise for administrators.

In addition, however, board members indicated they may decide to lower the amount available for raises if they don't like the way the individual raises come out. The five per cent increase is one per cent less than the amount originally recommended by Gilbert.

Gilbert told the board he will recommend individual salary increases at the June 4 meeting.

GILBERT SAID HE originally recommended a 6 per cent average raise based on the rising cost of living and on the general salary practices for teachers.

Board member Jack Costello, who recommended that the average be cut from six per cent to 5 per cent, said he was concerned because some administrators' raises in the past have been "shockingly high."

Costello added that some years Gilbert has "almost had to force some raises" to use up all the money allowed by the board.

"I just don't see 6 per cent as being in the cards," Costello said. "I can't help what other districts do around us but I think many of our administrators are quite well paid."

Last year the board provided for average three per cent raises for administrators, with some getting nothing and others getting increases of as much as 7 per cent. Costello said, "There were substantial raises available at 3 per cent and I think there will be substantial raises available at 5 per cent."

IN ADDITION, THE board members also disagreed about whether the $110,000 should be used to actually raise the newly adopted administrative salary scale or whether to keep minimums and maximums for salaries the same and just give raises within that framework.

Board members also deferred a final decision on whether to raise minimums and maximums for each job until June 4.

Law enforcement commission funds sought by Omni-House

Officials of Omni-House: Youth Services Bureau, an area counseling agency, are seeking funds from the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission (ILEC) to continue operation next year.

The agency, operating out of a remodeled storefront on Milwaukee Ave., serves Wheeling, Buffalo Grove, parts of Arlington Heights and Mt. Prospect, Prospect Heights and other areas of unincorporated Wheeling Twp.

Omni-House was established about a year ago as one of 14 Illinois Youth Service Bureaus funded by the ILEC. The original ILEC grant for $131,000 has covered the major portion of expenses for the past year. The agency has also received contributions from area individuals and groups in the communities it serves.

The ILEC funds Omni-House is hoping to get are administered by the state agency through local school districts. School Dist. 21 is sponsoring the Omni-House request for the second straight year.

Recently, Omni-House's bid for ILEC funds was approved by the Chicago-Cook County Criminal Justice Commission (CCCCJC). The fund application will probably be considered by ILEC in July.

Because the ILEC funds for the agency will not be available after next year, Omni-House officials are trying now to build a broad base of long-range volunteer financial support in the communities they serve.

The Omni-House staff began a fund-raising campaign last January and they are continuing to seek all types of contributions. Anyone wanting to donate to Omni-House or to use the services of the agency should call 541-0190.

Tent stolen from resident's backyard

A $30 tent was stolen Tuesday from the backyard of Bob J. Krupela, 149 Chestnut Ln., Wheeling, police said. Krupela told police he noticed the tent was missing Tuesday evening. It had been pitched in the backyard.

School news notes

Students at Tarkington School in Wheeling will present their annual music program titled "Animals on Parade" at 2:15 tomorrow afternoon in the school gym, 310 Scott St.

The show will be presented by children in the first, fourth and sixth grades under the direction of Sarah Ward. The program will feature songs, acrobatics and animal dialogues with the use of puppets.

The Longfellow School Fun Fair will be conducted rain or shine Saturday, June 2, from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the school, 501 N. Arlington Heights Rd. in Buffalo Grove.

The fair, sponsored by the Longfellow PTO, will feature games, prizes, grab bags, a jar raffle, hot dogs, drinks, cotton candy, popcorn and sno-cones.

All London Junior High School students involved in basketball, volleyball and wrestling this year were honored recently at the annual sports night banquet.

Awards were presented after the cooperative dinner by coaches Rich Davis, Pete Wienke, Jim Christopher and Marie Schimpf.

Track and field awards will be presented to athletes at the school's annual awards assembly later in the school year.

The first grade team from Whitman School in Wheeling will go to Waterford, Wis. June 1 to visit Green Meadows Farm.

The students plan to take a guided tour of the farm, feeding and petting the more than 300 farm animals there. Also available at the farm are chances for a horse-drawn hayride or supervised pony ride.

There are also fruit and vegetable gardens at the farm from which the children will be able to pick red raspberries, tomatoes, cucumbers, peppers and beans.

Fifth and sixth grade boys and girls at Whitman School, who have been involved this year in intramurals, will have a picnic next Tuesday at the school from 3:30 to 5 p.m.

Games will be played and refreshments will be served.

Children at Poe School in Arlington Heights have been participating in special reading programs conducted by John Hamilton, learning center director.

All students at Poe are regularly enrolled in the learning center enrichment reading program. They receive weekly instruction designed to develop all reading skills.

Several reading students are working toward receiving recognition at the annual awards day, an all-school assembly planned for early June.

Students in the Library Reading Club, who read and write a book report on 15 books in 10 weeks, will receive a certificate on Awards Day. Reading students who have increased their rate of reading to above 325 words per minute will also receive certificates.

Students in Margaret Andersen's fourth grade class at Whitman School in Wheeling recently completed a unit on animals that included making paper mache models of their favorite creatures.

The children learned the basic characteristics of the five main classes of animals and their ways of life. Each child chose an animal to make a papier mache model of and use as the subject of a report.

The annual field day at Whitman School will last two days, June 7 and 8.

Mickey Young, physical education instructor, has organized events such as broad jump, high jump, and running relays in which children may compete.

Children in the third, fourth, fifth and sixth grades will be judged June 7 with the younger children competing the next morning.

Interested parents may view the activities either day.

All winners in each event will receive ribbons at an awards assembly at 1 p.m. June 8.

Des Plaines resident charged with battery

Buffalo Grove police charged a Des Plaines man with aggravated battery and aggravated assault Tuesday after police said he tried to choke a policeman following his arrest for drunken driving.

The man, Kenneth J. Cohee, 29, of 150 E. Northwest Hwy., was arrested at 200 Dundee Rd., and taken to the police station for questioning.

Police said Cohee, who refused to take a breathalyzer test, became abusive and threatened to kill Sgt. Art Voight, one of the policemen questioning him. According to police, he grabbed Voight by the neck and began choking him. It took two other policemen and two radio operators to subdue Cohee, police said.

Cohee was treated and released at Northwest Community Hospital for a minor cut on his head, which police said he received when one of the policemen used a nightstick to subdue him.

Cohee, who also was charged with driving while intoxicated, appeared yesterday in the Arlington Heights branch of circuit court and was released on his own recognizance. His case was continued to July 17.

NO TEARS FROM THIS young man as he is immunized against communicable diseases in a free clinic in Hoffman Estates sponsored by the Cook County Department of Public Health. The department also sponsors a clinic in Des Plaines. The clinics are open to children aged 1 to 18 from the suburban area. Appointments are not required, but parents must supply their children's immunization histories.

Immunization clinics aid disease fight

by MARILYN HEISER

Preventative medicine is the most economical and soundest approach to health care, physicians and nurses say. And immunization against disease is one of the simplest preventative measures.

The Cook County Department of Public Health offers two immunization clinics for children in the Northwest suburbs, in Hoffman Estates and Des Plaines. According to Mrs. Addie Reninger of the health department, spring and summer are good times for children to receive needed immunizations.

The Hoffman Estates clinic was relocated last fall to the Prince of Peace Lutheran Church, 930 W. Higgins Rd., after initially opening last summer at St. Peter Lutheran School. The clinic is open the fourth Wednesday of every month from 1 to 3 p.m.

In Des Plaines, the clinic holds sessions from 1 to 3 p.m. the first Wednesday of every month at 800 S. Beau Dr.

All children age 1 to 18 are welcome to attend either clinic, irrespective of where they live. No appointment is needed. All parents are asked to bring their child's immunization history to the clinic.

Families having problems obtaining the services of a physician to give immunizations especially are urged to attend one of the clinics, Mrs. Reninger said.

CONCERN RECENTLY was voiced by the Hoffman Estates Board of Health that the clinic there may be discontinued if attendance remains low. But according to Mrs. Reninger, the county has no plans to discontinue the clinic.

Attendance averaged about 200 children each session during last summer, and she said it should rise again this summer. During the fall and winter months, she said, attendance had dropped to only 50 or 60 children each session, but that is to be expected for those months.

Zoning board urges changes for freight terminal plan

by LYNN ASINOF

The Wheeling Zoning Board has recommended zoning changes that will allow developers to build three motor freight terminals on property south of Hintz Road and east of the Soo Line R.R. tracks.

Representatives of the First American Realty Co. told the board Tuesday plans for the freight terminals are part of a general development plan for the 89 acres. They said the terminals will be on the southern 39 acres of property with general industrial development on the northern part. The property is now zoned for residential use.

Phyllis Sutker, vice president of the realty firm, said her company will merely develop the terminals which would then be operated by three separate trucking firms. She said McLean Trucking, Gateway Trucking and All American Transport Inc. will each operate a terminal.

According to plans presented to the zoning board, each of the terminals will have 44 loading docks, warehouse and office space. The trucks from the terminals will enter and exit onto Hintz Road from a road running the length of the property.

ZONING BOARD member Ed Slepicka voted against the zoning, saying traffic problems might result from the terminals' location. He said Hintz Road was only a two-lane street, and noted there was already congestion on the road west of the proposed site.

The developers' attorney, John Murray said his clients had investigated the possibility of finding a second access road from Wolf Road. He said the only road that connects with their property is Kerry Lane, a 33-foot undeveloped road in the unincorporated area.

Murray said his clients were making provisions to connect with this road so it could be used for emergency purposes. He said however, it will not be feasible to drive large freight trucks on Kerry Lane because of its present condition.

Slepicka asked Murray to investigate the possibility of improving the road so it can be used for trucking. Murray said he will talk to people from the Wheeling Township Highway Department before the rezoning comes to the village board for approval.

Because of possible traffic congestion, the developers reduced the number of freight terminals from the originally proposed five to three. They also agreed to install acceleration and deceleration lanes at the entrance to their property on Hintz Road.

THE DEVELOPERS estimated each of the terminals will have 25 employees, not including truck drivers. Each terminal is expected to employ between 15 and 20 local drivers. The trucking operations will service the northwest suburbs from O'Hare Airport to Lake County and west to Elgin.

According to testimony, each terminal will cost about $1 million. Construction will include the installation of underground gas storage tanks that will provide the truckers with about 40,000 gallons of fuel for each terminal.

Developers said the Wheeling location was chosen because of the rapid growth of the Northwest suburban area. Aside from the three trucking firms, there are definite plans for the development of the property.

ZONING BOARD members Roman Domas, Ron Potter and Neil Brant voted to approve granting both the industrial zoning and special use permits for the proposed development. Slepicka voted against the project, and Alan Martin abstained because he was absent at a previous meeting.

Although he abstained, Martin said he was happy that the development was being proposed. "I think this type of area is generally good for this type of business. I think this type of business has long been coming," he said. "This is the spot for it, along the railroad tracks, and I'm sure Hintz Road will one day be a larger road."

Martin said he also thought the trucking operation will generate less traffic than any other type of development in the area except for a park.

Today is Poppy Day.

Village will end its suit over zoning map error

The Wheeling Village Board has agreed to end a five-year-old zoning suit filed because of an error on the official village zoning map.

In 1968, Peder Paugh, of Lake Zurich, asked the village for a building permit to construct apartment buildings along Fifth Street north of Strong Street. He based his request on the zoning map which showed his property to be zoned for apartments.

After checking village ordinances, Wheeling officials denied the request saying the zoning map was incorrect and the property was not zoned for apartments.

Paugh asked the zoning board to review the decision, and the board members also denied the permit. He then asked the court to review the zoning board's decision.

Although Paugh requested the review in 1968, the court has not yet taken up the cause. When the village rezoned the entire W. Strong Street area to allow apartments earlier this spring, Paugh's property was also rezoned.

Village Atty. Paul Hamer said this rezoning made the court review of the case unnecessary. The board therefore directed the attorney in the case, Jack Siegel, to enter into an agreement to dismiss the case.

Carmel to graduate several area students

Several Wheeling-Buffalo Grove area students are among 133 seniors graduating from Carmel High School for Girls this spring.

Commencement ceremonies are scheduled for 10 a.m. Saturday in the school gym in Mundelein. The Rev. Simon Kenny, assistant principal of Carmel High School for Boys, will speak.

Area students who will get diplomas are Marilyn Dolores Bokes, Mary Lou Ferrara and Joanne Patricia Mason, all of Wheeling; Anna Marie Campbell, Mary Margaret Coangelo, Lisa M. Fisher, Mary Kristina Kane, Nancy Marie Maher, Jann Frances Puclaty, Joanne Ellen Thompson and Bonnie C. Thompson, all of Buffalo Grove.

Also to be graduated are Colleen Marie Levia and Martha Theresa Reynolds of Prospect Heights and Ellen Lee Schneider of Long Grove.

At the recent awards day program at Carmel High School for Girls, Miss Campbell was granted membership in the Society of Outstanding High School students.

Outreach leader to attend conference

Barbara Wiley, newly elected president of the Outreach Club at Adlai Stevenson High School in Prairie View, will attend a summer leadership conference sponsored by the American Red Cross.

The conference will be conducted from July 23 through July 27 at George Williams College in Downers Grove.

Outreach is a service group of more than 60 Stevenson students who do volunteer work in nursing homes, hospitals, mental institutions and with the elderly and the poor in the community.

Stevenson High concert tomorrow

Students in the vocal music department of Adlai Stevenson High School in Prairie View will present their annual spring concert at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the auditorium.

Admission is $1 a person. Tickets may be purchased at the door.

Performing choral groups will include the girls' concert choir, a capella choir and the Madrigal singers. William Misk, music department chairman, directs the vocal groups.

The girls' chorus will sing "I don't Know How to Love Him," from Jesus Christ Superstar, the "May Day Carol" and "I Believe." The Madrigal singers will present "I Am the Phoenix" and the "Three Hungarian Folk Songs."

St. Alphonsus school gets new principal

Barbara Gotter, a junior high school principal from Ohio, has been hired as principal of St. Alphonsus Catholic School in Prospect Heights for the 1973-74 school year.

Miss Gotter was chosen by the school board from four candidates. She is a graduate of the University of Dayton and received her master's degree in educational administration at Miami University in Oxford, Ohio. She was an elementary and junior high school teacher for 12 years and served as an elementary and junior high school principal for 8 years.

Miss Gotter replaces Sister Camilla, who is being transferred to another post.

Harper eyes new site for 2d campus

Arlington Heights master plan. Before a decision on whether to acquire and build a second campus is made, there have to be some new enrollment projections for the college, Lucas said.

A decision to build another campus would then have to be approved by a state governing board and ultimately by the voters in a referendum since they would have to pay for the project.

"We're trying to keep our options open for a year until some decisions are made," Lucas said.

If the site is designated for educational purposes, Harper would have one year to develop its plans in the event that some other developer proposes a building plan for the property.

General assembly seen giving approval

6-county mass transit district, state lottery likely

by BOB LAHEY

The Illinois General Assembly appears on the verge of passing legislation for a six-county mass transportation district in the metropolitan Chicago area — and along with it a state lottery law.

A bill introduced by the Republican leadership in the House of Representatives Tuesday would set up the framework for a mass transit district, and would provide for $30 million in revenue to be taken from a state lottery, which has not yet been created by the legislature.

But members of both parties in the legislature now acknowledge that the state lottery is practically certain to be enacted in this session.

Rep. E. D. (Zeke) Giorgi, D-Rockford, the chief sponsor of lottery bills which have been repeatedly voted down in recent sessions, said yesterday that the lottery is sure to succeed whether or not any of the funds from it are used for transportation.

"THE LOTTERY has the votes to go through, with or without giving some of the money to transportation," Giorgi declared.

Though the bill was originally designed to provide money for education, Giorgi said he had no objection to diverting part of it to a mass transit district.

"I'd like to see some of it go for cancer research, for instance," Giorgi said, "but I do not have final disposition on how the money is spent."

Rep. Harold A. Katz, D-Glenview, agreed that a state lottery now appears to be a certainty. "We (legislators) used to talk about whether we should have a state lottery," Katz said. "Today we talk about how the money from a lottery should be spent." Giorgi has estimated that a lottery would provide $1 million per week in state revenue, and a similar sum in prize money.

While some form of mass transit legislation appears certain, it also appears that there will be alterations to the bill introduced Tuesday by Speaker of the House W. Robert Blair, R-Park Forest.

While expressing basic approval for the transit bill, such members of the legislature as Katz, generally considered the spokesman for suburban Democratic legislators, and Rep. Donald L. Totten, R-Hoffman Estates, a member of the House Transportation Committee, also expressed some reservations.

TOTTEN SAID yesterday that he questioned whether the funding provisions in the transit bill provided adequate margins for increases in revenue that would be necessary in future years.

In addition to providing for money from a lottery, the bill would allocate to the transit district one-half cent of the present five-cent motor fuel tax collected in the six counties of Northeastern Illinois. But, Totten said, both of those sources of revenue will be relatively fixed income, with no provision for meeting projected increases in need.

Totten and Katz also noted that there may be problems in provisions of the bill that would set up separate operating rules for the Chicago Transit Authority, commuter railroads and suburban bus lines.

Totten, whose Transportation Committee likely will hold hearings on the bill next Tuesday, said he would have "to get some feel for what this would actually mean to communities like Schaumburg and Elk Grove Village" before he decides whether he will support the bill.

KATZ EXPRESSED concern over creating three separate entities under one transit commission rather than taking a more comprehensive approach. While the bill calls for merging of all suburban bus lines, for instance, it distinguishes between buses, the CTA and commuter trains.

"The end result of that," said Katz, "is that you have a separate entity concerned with control of transportation from Arlington Heights to Oak Lawn, and another concerned with transportation to the center of Chicago, and within the city."

Katz, however, noted that the bill has "political salability" in the fact that it calls for no increase in taxes, provides a "tax bonanza" for the other 99 counties in the state (rather than increase the motor fuel tax, the bill would reduce that tax outside the six counties by one-half cent), and gives the transportation committee no authority to institute or increase taxes.

business group chief

Carl R. Hansen of Mount Prospect, Republican committeeman for Elk Grove Township, has been appointed chairman of the Illinois Advisory Council to the Small Business Administration.

Hansen, 47, was recently reappointed to his second term on the council, which serves as liaison between the Small Business Administration and Illinois businessmen.

Hansen is president of Chicago Associates, Inc., a business management consulting firm. He holds a master's degree in business administration from the University of Chicago and has been Elk Grove Township committeeman for 10 years.

Prenatal course
at Alexian Brothers

Parents-to-be may register for a prenatal course beginning June 4 at Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village. The course is free, and classes will meet at 7:30 p.m. on six consecutive Mondays.

The course is divided into six segments covering conception through the first several months of life. The course includes prenatal care for the mother, food for the pregnant and nursing mother, clothing needs of the newborn and techniques for bathing the baby.

Interested couples may register by telephoning the hospital at 437-3500, ext. 394.

Installment payments for taxes proposed

A legislative proposal permitting real estate taxes to be paid in four installments in all Illinois counties has been approved by the Counties and Townships Committee of the Illinois House of Representatives.

The bill is sponsored by Rep. Leo D. LaFleur, R-Bloomington.

In introducing the bill, LaFleur noted that the current system of paying real estate taxes in no more than two installments creates a burden on taxpayers and necessitates issuance of tax anticipation warrants by school districts.

"This bill would spread the payments over a six-month period beginning June 1 for the benefit of the taxpayers and would insure a constant flow of revenue for school districts," LaFleur said. "Anticipation warrants would no longer be necessary."

A similar bill, which would affect only Cook County, has been passed in the House and is pending before the Senate.

Phase I of Lake County project

'New Century' shopping center to open in fall

A major shopping center — the first phase of the "New Century Town" project to be located just north of Wheeling in Lake County — will be completed and open for business in the fall, according to a spokesman for the development firm.

Robert Dishon, director of communications for Urban Investment and Development Co., an affiliate of Aetna Life and Casualty Co., said yesterday the "Hawthorne Center" shopping facility should be open sometime in September.

When completed, the two-level shopping center will contain more than 140 stores, including Sears Roebuck and Co. and Marshall Field and Co., on 113 acres and 1.3 million square feet. It will be located on the northwest corner of Rtes. 21 and 60 near Libertyville in Lake County.

The shopping center is part of a $250-$300 million project which will result in a self-contained community with housing developments, lakes, a hotel, municipal building, recreational facilities, schools, and other shopping areas, Dishon said.

Hawthorne Center was described by Dishon as being smaller than Woodfield Shopping Center, but an enclosed mall on two levels and designed to simulate a shopping street of Europe.

Work on the more than 400 housing units is expected to begin this summer, Dishon said. He said inclement weather would be the only thing to delay plans because there is a lot of earth moving to be completed.

The housing and other projects will be built to the west of the shopping center. This phase could be finished by 1980, Dishon said, depending on the market demand for housing. The entire project, including the shopping center, will be located on 600 acres purchased from the Hawthorn-Melody Co.

The new town, one mile south of Libertyville, is expected to house between 15,000 and 18,000 persons. The United Investment and Development Co. was formed in 1968 through consolidation of corporations owning Old Orchard, Oak Brook and River Oaks shopping centers.

THE HAWTHORNE CENTER shopping facility, part of the New Century Town development one mile south of Libertyville in Lake County, is expected to open for business in September, according to developers. The shopping center is the first phase of a $300 million self-contained community of 15,000 to 18,000 persons.

In a frenzy over balding pate? Drugs may be able to save what's left by United Press International

The physician who pioneered hair transplants says that within two years drugs may be available to prevent baldness.

Dr. Norman Orentreich, associate clinical professor of dermatology at New York University Medical Center, said Tuesday he is optimistic such drugs will be available because laboratory tests have proven drugs can retard balding.

"It is something I am certain we can do, probably in the next year or two and no longer than five years," Orentreich said.

He said the key to preventing baldness is knowledge, recently acquired, of how the male sex hormone, androgen, affects hair growth.

Orentreich, reporting at the American Medical Association's conference on hair growth, said, "Our preliminary clinical trials in humans also look encouraging."

He said 20 drugs which have some effect in blocking the action of baldness when applied to the scalp have been tried on hundreds of volunteers.

New York banker speaks in Des Plaines

Boom to be followed by 'good year,' economist insists

by LEA TONKIN

This year's boom economy will be followed by a "pretty darn good" year in 1974, despite a slowing in consumer buying in the coming months.

This is the prediction of economist James J. O'Leary, who addressed an economic forum sponsored by the First National Bank of Des Plaines yesterday.

O'Leary noted many economists are lumping together run-of-the-mill economic problems, as inflation, with the current energy crisis and the uncertainties of the Watergate investigation, in a generally gloomy forecast. But "bearishness is being overdone," he contends. O'Leary is vice chairman and economist for the United States Trust Co. of New York.

He said this is a provocative time to consider the economy. The stock market has taken a beating, turbulence persists in foreign exchange markets, and Watergate is adding another measure of uncertainty to the outlook.

THE BIGGEST problem is really inflation, O'Leary said. The current boom is showing up in a GNP (Gross National Product) increase of some 14-15 per cent annual rate. (The real increase is now 8 per cent). What is needed is a means to bring this more in line with a 6-7 per cent expansion rate, he said.

A softening in the housing market, expected to become more widespread this year and on into 1974, will curb this expansion. O'Leary also expects a slowdown in new car buying in the coming months. Cutbacks in federal spending and recent clampdowns by the Federal Reserve Board add to this outlook.

The danger is that uncontrolled inflation will lead to tougher demands by labor unions, leading to greater inflationary forces in 1974, O'Leary says. Although inflation is expected to slow to an average 5 per cent this year and 4 per cent in 1974, this is still out of line with administration goals.

COMING OUT of this year's boom into next year's moderate expansion pace does not mean we will have a recession on our hands, O'Leary continued. Capital investment should remain steady. Corporate profits may take a dip next year, and short term interest rates will probably move sharply up at least one point within the near future.

The problem in the stock market is that we "can't get a grip on inflation," he contends. Fear of investment firms collapsing, competition from rising bond yields, the spectre of another devaluation of the dollar and uncertainties created by Watergate are adding to this problem, he says, but prospects for next year still look "pretty darn good."

"A year from now, as we look back at this situation a good many of us will think we should have our heads examined for this sort of concern," O'Leary said.

CHARLES WALKER, president of the Washington consulting firm Charles E. Walker Associates, Inc., discussed energy problems as well as Watergate. He is a former deputy secretary of the treasury in the first Nixon Administration.

A number of tradeoffs must be made to accommodate our nation's energy needs, Walker said. This means higher prices for fuel, relaxing some environmental restrictions and the realization that our national security may be jeopardized as the U.S. dependence on foreign oil supplies increases.

He discounts the notion that the energy crisis is the result of a conspiracy by major energy companies. Although he supports the President's energy policy, including deregulation of natural gas prices at the wellhead and the construction of an Alaskan oil pipeline, Walker said greater emphasis on research is needed. The U.S. needs the equivalent of a Manhattan Project (massive nuclear research effort) in the development of long-range energy sources, he said.

MANDATORY rationing of fuel supplies could be effected this year if the voluntary federal guidelines are not followed, he predicted.

On the Watergate investigations, Walker said the almost daily disclosures have had a dampening effect on the outlook for the economy. He credited the news media with playing an important role in uncovering this "sordid, silly and stupid thing," but said he fails to see why the President has not come forward in a full press conference to discuss all aspects of the case. Despite all the crises we've had, he concluded, the nation will emerge stronger, just as it has in previous crises.

Bill to encourage bicycling advances

A bill to encourage the use of bicycles "as part of a metropolitan transportation network" has been approved by the Transportation Committee of the Illinois House of Representatives.

Sponsored by Rep. Harold A. Katz, D-Glenview, the bill would establish the Illinois Department of Transportation as the recipient of federal funds to establish and operate "bike trails."

It would also provide for state grants to establish trails and to construct lockers at mass transportation centers where commuters could store bicycles.

Katz proposed the legislation after a visit to the Bay Area Rapid Transit System in San Francisco, where he said bike lockers and bike trails have been successful in encouraging commuters to abandon automobiles as a means of reaching transportation centers.

Appointed state school board gains

Proponents of an appointed state board of education won a round in the Illinois General Assembly Tuesday, but the battle has not yet ended.

The Illinois House Tuesday passed a bill authorizing creation of a 17-member state board, to be appointed by the governor and approved by the Senate. Beginning in 1975, the board would take over the responsibilities of the state school superintendent.

The bill, sponsored by State Rep. Gene Hoffman, R-Elmhurst, now goes to the Senate, where it will face opposition by legislators who want the state board to be elected.

State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, a strong proponent of the appointed board, said yesterday she was happy with the House vote and plans to urge bill supporters to lobby in the Senate.

MRS. CHAPMAN also said, however, it is possible the House may pass a bill sponsored by Robert E. Brinkmeier, D-Forest Hill, calling for the nonpartisan election of state board members.

Mrs. Chapman said the Brinkmeier bill was the best of the bills calling for an elected board, but said, "I think there should be an attempt to defeat the Brinkmeier bill."

The 1970 Illinois Constitution calls for the creation of a state board of education which will hire a state school superintendent. The new board must, under the

Harper teachers finish salary protest

The Harper College faculty has completed its protest of the way the college board set salaries for the 1973-74 school year.

Faculty Senate Pres. Thomas McCabe said he turned in 83 teacher contracts to the administration Monday along with a cover letter protesting the fact the board set a 1973-74 salary schedule without reaching agreement of negotiators of the faculty.

MCCABE said the school has about 160 faculty members who could have given him their contracts to participate in the protest, but added many teachers without tenure did not take part.

"We had close to three-fourths of the tenured faculty," McCabe said. "I was pleasantly surprised."

The protest, which McCabe earlier termed the mildest action the faculty could take, was planned after the college board earlier this month approved a salary program calling for an average 5.25 per cent pay raise for faculty members.

The board approved the salary package after saying it had "irreconcilable differences" with the negotiators for the faculty senate.

MCCABE said the next issue he expects to arise between the faculty and board will be around the issue of merit pay. The board has a decision on merit pay for faculty members scheduled on its agenda for its meeting today. The board will meet at 8 p.m. at the college.

MCCABE said polls of the faculty by the senate have consistently indicated faculty members do not want the board to continue with its practice of awarding bonuses to teachers it considers outstanding. He said he will speak to the board on that issue today.

The 1973-74 salary scale adopted by the senate provides for the following pay ranges for teachers with academic ranks: instructor, $9,300 to $15,800; assistant professor, $10,000 to $17,900; associate professor, $11,350 to $21,030 and professor, $13,200 to $23,900.

indirect measure of control over the state board because the Senate would confirm their appointment.

UNDER Hoffman's bill, the governor would choose eight board members from the First Judicial District (Cook County) and two from each of the four other judicial districts.

The 17th board member would be appointed at large and the chairman would be picked by the board. No more than nine members could belong to the same political party.

The members would be paid their expenses and $50 each day they're on the job. A committee to work with the board of higher education when responsibilities overlap would be established.

Speaks at employment conference

Equal Rights could pass next year: NOW head

The president of the National Organization for Women (NOW) predicted yesterday that the Equal Rights Amendment could be passed nationally next year.

Wilma Scott Heide, leader of the feminist organization, also told a conference on equal employment that passage of the ERA will assure women more choices in all aspects of daily life.

The conference, at the Pick Congress

Hotel in Chicago, sponsored by the Illinois Chamber of Commerce, drew personnel representatives of some 125 firms and government agencies.

Miss Heide charged that more affirmative action programs "are desperately needed" to provide greater employment opportunities for women. Such programs are now required of companies bidding on federal or state contracts. Miss Heide questioned whether the Illinois Chamber has an affirmative action program. She said NOW has filed complaints against 1,300 corporations, charging lack of such programs.

ACCORDING TO Miss Heide, affirmative action programs for women were made a requirement under federal contract law in 1971 only after NOW brought great pressure on the secretary of labor. Now, she said, these executive orders and the civil rights laws must be obeyed. In a press conference Miss Heide also charged that the Nixon administration has not adequately supported equal rights for women.

"They have done no more than they have been pressed to do or that was politically expedient," she said.

Referring to the ERA, she noted that eight more states are needed to ratify it but that they have until March of 1979 to do it. She said much of the opposition has been "political opportunism" as well as misunderstanding.

Splish splash! Here are top canoe paddlers among 874

The 16th Annual Des Plaines River Canoe Marathon Sunday drew 874 competing crafts and nearly twice as many paddlers.

The 10-mile race down the Des Plaines River was designed to remind people of Clean Streams Week in Illinois and the 300-year heritage of water trails in the state.

The race is sponsored annually by the Illinois Paddling Council and Forest Preserve Districts of Cook and Lake counties. Civil Defense crews from Arlington Heights, Des Plaines, Wheeling and Elk Grove Village, as well as the Civil Air Patrol, work with the race officials setting up an extensive communications network along the 10-mile stretch.

There are 11 different entry divisions in the race and these are divided between aluminum canoes and canoes meeting U.S. Canoe Association (USCA) specifications.

Winners in each division were:

Walker should lead tax reform

It is far past the time when Illinois should have a comprehensive overhaul of its system of taxation.

Following a year of campaign oratory in which candidates banded about slogans of "tax relief" and "tax reform," and after nearly five months of legislative haggling, nothing of significance has been produced in Springfield to achieve either of these goals.

There are, to be sure, dozens upon dozens of measures at various stages of debate in the legislature, all of which purport to do something to improve the tax structure of the state.

They range from a proposal to triple the state income tax for the benefit of schools (while providing an opportunity for major curtailment of property taxes), to exemption of food and drugs from the state sales tax, to exemption from the income tax of money spent on school tuition, to a one-half per cent tax on auto insurance premiums to be used for disposal of abandoned vehicles.

Those are only a few of the tax measures pending before the legislature, and there are arguments for and against each individual proposal.

While some are well-intentioned, others seem designed mostly for the purpose of embarrassing members of the opposing parties, so that those who vote against them may be labeled as helping to kill "tax reform." Others seem destined to receive bipartisan support so that they may be laid before Gov. Daniel Walker, putting the onus of vetoing so-called reform bills directly upon him.

Without regard to the individual merits of any of the many tax bills, it can be said that they share a common defect. None of them are part of any comprehensive plan to bring Illinois taxes into the modern age.

The pattern of widely divergent tax bills generated by special interests and partisan factions is not new to the Illinois legislature, and it seems unrealistic to hope that body will ever produce a complete tax package based on the overall needs of the state.

In such a situation, it seems clear that Gov. Walker must provide the leadership which he has so far not demonstrated, and devise a complete plan for tax reform for the legislature to consider.

The governor's budget message to the legislature, shortly after he took office, was sadly lacking in concrete proposals on tax reform.

It may have been unfair to expect him to come up with new concepts of taxation with less than 60 days in office. And it may be too late to expect such a program to be devised and acted upon before the legislature's adjournment before July 1.

But it may be hoped that before his administration passes its first anniversary that the governor will take the lead in working out an omnibus tax program which the legislature, with the support of the voters, can enact.

Debt cost dropping

There's good news of sorts on the inflation front: The cost of going into debt is lower than it has been in the recent past.

According to Eugene H. Adams, president of the American Bankers Association, while the "prime rate" has risen 1½ points in the past 14 months, rates on most consumer loans have actually decreased.

Comparing Federal Reserve figures for January 1972 through March 1973, Adams points to the cost of money in five critical consumer loan areas.

- New homes: FHA new-home mortgage rates have declined 42 "basis points" and are averaging 7.97 per cent.

- Automobiles: 10.4 per cent average loan today, compared to 10.26 per cent in January 1972.

- Mobile homes: 12.48 per cent interest on loans compared to 12.57 per cent 16 months ago.

- Consumer goods: The cost of money to purchase all other consumer goods has fallen .09 per cent, to 12.48.

- Personal loans: The cost of money for all other personal expenditures has fallen .03 per cent, to 12.71.

The only increase in the cost of money available to the general public has been an indicated rise of 8/10ths of 1 per cent in bank credit card rates, to 17.91.

The prime rate, says Adams, applies to "an extremely select group of major commercial, financial and industrial corporations. And while it is one element in the cost of furnishing products and services to the consumer, the prime rate is a very small part of that cost."

An increase in the prime rate, he says, is not immediately followed by a boost in the cost of a pound of prime beef, even if the average American housewife has been led to think so.

Dist. 211 board blasted

The Dist. 211 Board of Education has shown the arrogant disregard for students and parents by the action of shelving the "Open Lunch Hour."

The board agreed there was no outside pressure for a change in board policy. Board member Robert Seger is reported to have said, "The pressure has come from within us." I've never seen any pressure from outside.

I guess the reported protest walkout of some 350 students at Schaumburg High School, with one of the demands being "open lunch," was grossly over-reported. There being only a few board members in front of the building.

'Nixon not involved'

I found it a rather sad circumstance to read Hannah K. Wilson's letter in your May 10 edition.

"Guiltily until proven innocent"! That's the "authoritative" pronouncement of hard-hearted Hannah in the Watergate case of President Nixon vs. The Washington Post, New York Times, Newsweek, Time, NBC, CBS, ABC, plus self-serving politicians like Percy and Kennedy, known thieves such as Daniel Ellsberg, a consort of thieves and spies like Jack Anderson and a whole host of fuzzy-minded (in my judgment), holier-than-thou, vitriolic writer and broadcaster types who have never made an error in judgment, by their judgment, and who have the forums to prey on the kill instincts of lesser fry such as Hannah and others of her persuasion.

It appears obvious from the one-sided reports in the national news media (and maybe there is only one side), that Mr. Nixon made some serious errors in selecting his personal staff and in his alleged efforts to protect them. But there is no hard evidence that he was personally involved in any of the less than prudent actions alleged to have been taken by others.

I suggest two things to Hannah. One, let's stay with the system that says "innocent until proven guilty." It is better than the kind she has opted for in her letter. Two, that she be careful not to add to the human pollution problem for which she indicated concern. Polluted thinking needs cleaning up, too.

Trustee thankful

I would like to take this opportunity to gratefully acknowledge all the efforts of the many people who helped to elect me a trustee in the village of Buffalo Grove. I especially want to thank my family and campaign staff for their encouragement and support.

I also wish to thank the editor and staff of the Buffalo Grove Herald for their kind endorsement of my candidacy.

I shall endeavor, in the next four years, to represent the people of Buffalo Grove to the very best of my ability.

EDITORIAL: We support legislation to open up the Illinois method of concealing land ownership, the secret land trust system.

I am surprised to read that Supt. Kolze wanted stricter truancy and tardiness regulations. This might be the attitude of a jailer, but it hardly seems what an educator would ask.

Instead of requesting a bigger lock on the door, shouldn't the superintendent ask why we need one. Are things in our schools so bad that the young people "take off" at the first chance?

I feel it would be a great experience for the administration to lock themselves in for lunch. How often does the administration go out for lunch and/or meeting, and for how long? If they need to get away for awhile, why not students?

Board President Robert Creek is reported to have said he opposed sending the survey format, a cost of $500, because it would be hard to check the reliability of the response and because it was unlikely to get more than a 25 per cent response from those it was sent to.

"A 25 per cent opinion isn't enough for Bob Creek to be content with," Creek said. He added that it also would not be enough for him to change his mind about the desirability to open lunch.

I might remind Mr. Creek, he was elected with less than 25 per cent of the registered voters voting. The election was also not supervised by the Justice Dept. or FBI, etc. I wonder how he feels about his election. Maybe it just depends on what side concerned people are. If they are opposed to Mr. Creek, they become an unreliable minority.

By his statements as reported, Mr. Creek has shown his low opinion of the people who elected him.

Unless Supt. Kolze has recent facts to prove that he needs a bigger lock, why not try "Open Lunch Hour?" Most of the young people in our schools are intelligent, reliable people. If they are treated as such they will act as such. But, if the board and the administration continue to treat the students and parents as unreliable and disinterested, this is what they will get. Why not send the survey. The board has nothing to fear but the truth.

Garbage rates hit

We strongly protest the recent decision of the Arlington Heights Village Board to increase garbage rates, when better alternatives were made to them. The disregard for village residents is unbelievable.

It would be no hardship for us to accept once-a-week garbage pickup at the curb at lower cost.

We urge village officials to take a survey of residents on this issue.

'Read U.S. Constitution'

A recent article in the Northwest Suburban Topics stated that Eugene F. Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, has introduced three new bills in the Illinois legislature. The purpose of these bills, according to the article, is to "preserve the natural character of Illinois' basic resources while meeting modern-day economic and social needs."

According to Mr. Schlickman, "The time is overdue for Illinois to take an inventory of the land it has, how it is being used, and what's to be preserved and maintained. We've got to strengthen the hand of local officials in meeting the attack of developers who see only dollars in land."

Now, if anyone has been led to believe by all this verbiage that Mr. Schlickman considers this matter of what Illinois should do with its land to be strictly of local concern, and to be left up to the people of Illinois and their legislators, do read on — for without even so much as a however, a whereas, or a therefore — the article continues:

"Schlickman's bills are in accord with proposed legislation now pending in Washington, D.C., and supported by the Nixon administration. This federal legislation is known by the National Land Use Policy Act. The claim is that it would stimulate the states to take a more active and intelligent role in preserving and enhancing their land resources. Schlickman's bills, according to Washington sources, would put Illinois in the forefront."

But in the forefront of what? In the forefront of going through the motions of deciding what the people of Illinois want, while someone in Washington is making the real decisions?

There are times when I am incredulous at the apparent disregard, or ignorance, displayed by those who should know better, with regard to the correct relationship between the United States Government and the various states.

For the benefit of those who have never bothered to read the United States Constitution, or those who would like to believe that it doesn't exist, the following is worth repeating:

Article IV, Section 4. The United States shall guarantee every State in this Union a Republican Form of Government, and shall protect each of them against invasion; and on Application of the Legislature, or of the Executive (when the Legislature cannot be convened) against domestic Violence.

Article X. The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people.

Article IX. The enumeration in the Constitution, of certain rights, shall not be construed to deny or disparage others retained by the people.

It seems to me that there are too many persons and groups in America today who only see fit to refer to the Constitution when it has something to say which favors their cause. The classic example of this is the media's constant reference to its First Amendment rights. But they are strangely silent when other parts of the Constitution are being flagrantly violated.

I would suggest to the readers of the Herald that they obtain a copy of the U.S. Constitution. I would suggest that they read it, understand it and teach it to their children. And when they see something going on that is not in accord with the Constitution, that they challenge this on Constitutional grounds.

If enough Americans would take the time away from their other activities to do this, they would scare those who are working night and day to destroy our Republic, back into the woodwork where they belong, and if they do not, they are in effect signing a blank check which is payable in the freedom of themselves and their children, and their children's children for generations to come — perhaps forever!

Impeachment? If needed, use it

The faith of the American people in their system of government may be destined for its sternest test in the near future.

That test could come when and if evidence is brought to light that the United States Congress must confront that dreaded word: impeachment.

It seems to be a measure of the times in which we live that the very mention of the word makes both friends and foes of Richard M. Nixon shake their heads in fear and uncertainty.

Nobody, nobody wants to see the President impeached.

But more and more people are beginning to talk about the possibility that impeachment could come about.

Such talk is shadowed by ominous questions: What would it do to our status with other nations? What would it do to the executive branch of government? What would it do to the faith of the people?

If evidence does surface that the Chief

Bob Lahey

Executive knew in advance and approved the perversion of political institutions into cheap burglary against political opponents, it will be known throughout the nation and throughout the world. It will be known in Moscow and Peking and it will be known in Perth and in Patagonia.

How then could those foreign nations be assured that they may deal with confidence with the leader of the nation? How could the integrity of the executive be restored? How could the people ever again place their trust in a president?

Only one way. Impeachment.

If the evidence is there, it must be examined in the court of the U. S. Senate. If a trial fails to prove what may be suspected of the President, reasonable persons must then accord him the respect his office demands. If impeachment leads to conviction, the office must be passed to another.

This brings up a fear which many Democrats and some Republicans cite as the reason that impeachment must be avoided at all cost. If Richard M. Nixon were to be removed from office, the executive would be headed by Spiro T. Agnew.

While not being exactly the president of the Spiro T. Agnew Fan Club, I believe that argument to be invalid.

Agnew has, after all, been twice elected by the American people as the man to succeed Richard M. Nixon, should he be removed by death, disability — or impeachment. Indeed, it is not wholly unlikely that he may even succeed Richard M. Nixon by election.

Four times in this century, vice presidents have been called upon to assume the presidency.

Theodore Roosevelt, Calvin Coolidge, Harry Truman and Lyndon Johnson all came to power following the death of presidents. Whatever judgment history may make on their administrations, all served and all were subsequently elected in their own right, and the Republic endured.

There seems no reason to believe that the same might not be true in the case of Spiro Agnew.

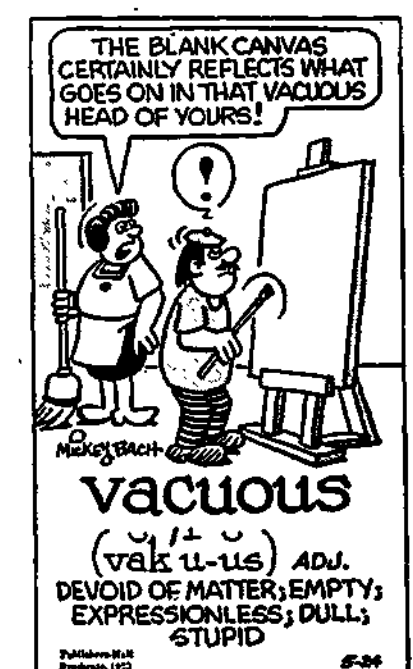

The fact is that it would not be impeachment that would cripple the nation. It would be — if they are there — the facts which make impeachment inevitable. If they exist, the facts of presidential misconduct will be what have damaged the nation. And the only way to repair the damage would be through impeachment.

We have boasted for nearly 200 years that we are a nation of laws, not men. We have told the world that only in America is there adequate provision for the transfer of power following election or assassination.

We must be ready to prove that the same applies to impeachment, if the facts are there.

Meanwhile, we must continue to hope that they are not.

Business Today

by PETER UEBERSAX

MADRID — The bull is somewhat of a symbol for Spain — and it certainly has been the symbol for its stock market.

In the past 12 years, the Spanish bolsa (stock market) has been one of the most bullish in the world. Except for a period of wobbling in 1970-71, it has been an investor's dream, according to foreign bankers stationed in Madrid.

Since 1960, Spanish stocks on an average have quintupled in value. A $1,000 investment 12 years ago in a cross section of Spanish bank stocks — traditionally the bolsa's leaders — would be worth more than $20,000 today.

STILL, Europe's most dynamic stock exchange has been attracting surprisingly few foreign investors, even though its bullishness combines with the absence of Spanish taxes on foreign-owned stock and dividends and the possibility of transferring dividends, capital gains or the whole investment out of Spain any time.

"Certainly we try to interest friends abroad in investing in Spanish stocks," said Miguel Echegaray, resident adviser of one of the big U.S. banks. "The reaction I got from a London group last week was typical — 'and what if Generalissimo Francisco Franco dies?'"

By all appearances, Franco is in good health for a man of 80. But the fear — whether founded or not — that his death some day will trigger profound political and economic change kept foreign investment in Spanish stocks to an estimated $30 million last year, Echegaray said.

"The Spanish economy has the biggest growth rate among the major industrial nations next to Japan," he said. "It is in a dynamic situation which will get still better."

In 1972, the overall market index rose by one third. In the first quarter of 1973 — undeterred by the dollar crisis or the downward trend on Wall Street — it climbed from 100, where it starts every Jan. 1st, to well above 120, indicating an even better rise this year.

WHAT MAKES the bolsa a go-go market?

Banking sources named these factors:

- Spanish companies on the whole have been reporting good earnings and a steady growth of profits (banks annually earn between 28 and 38 per cent of equity).

- Spain's major companies increase their capital almost every year, and they normally do it through rights issues which enable stockholders to buy new stock at nominal value.

- A new middle class is emerging in Spain and is beginning to invest in shares and funds.

- There is no legal way for the newly accumulated wealth of individual Spaniards to be invested in foreign shares.

Does your family have money woes?

Starting Friday, "Managing Your Family's Money" by Merle Dowd will become a regular feature of the Herald's Business Page each Monday and Friday.

The column will offer tips to families for saving money on merchandise and services.

Dowd, a family money management consultant to banks, credit unions and other institutions, as well as a columnist for the Seattle Times, makes his living telling others how to spend their money. He is author of six books on family finance and teaches a course in family money management at the University of Washington.

Rare interview with Harold Geneen

ITT chief makes $813,311 — and has no time to spend it

by DEAN C. MILLER

NEW YORK (UPI) — It's said that Harold S. Geneen is an executive who thinks only of work. Yet he likes to strum a banjo, listen to jazz music and try to break 104 at golf.

He earned $813,311 last year running International Telephone & Telegraph Corp.'s 250 companies in 90 countries but probably spent little of it. Not enough time. He works an 80-hour week.

Geneen, 53, is chairman and chief executive officer of ITT, ninth largest industrial company in the country with $8.6 billion in sales, the third largest industrial employer with a work force of 428,000.

Because he insists on personal monitoring of the ITT empire, from Brussels to Bangkok, Geneen seldom gives interviews. And he practically never speaks about Geneen, the man. He considers that a waste of time and uninteresting to most people.

In December, 1972, UPI started trying to change Geneen's mind. He finally consented to a session in his 12th-floor Park Avenue office. At it, Geneen talked and waxed philosophical about many things, including himself.

He talked, among other things, about the country's waning position in world markets, corporate responsibility in social areas, "screwballs," boating and fishing and what he'd like to do when he retires.

Q — Do you feel America is being seriously challenged for the business leadership of the world? What can we do to maintain our leadership?

A — There is no question that America is being seriously challenged. In some respects we are losing ground. If one talks about the "beachheads" established in various parts of the world by multinational companies, American business and capital set the pace. The multinational which establishes itself as a responsible corporate citizen and becomes part of host countries is welcome and accepted on that basis. Business feels strongly that this is the only way we can compete in these markets. Obviously it would be much simpler to export from the U.S.

American "management" methods and abilities are still unchallenged, but American "costs" are definitely under challenge.

We Americans have become accustomed to affluence and world leadership. So today we are "coasting." This fact is being challenged worldwide on the basis of costs and performance. It should be realized that technical ability is no longer a monopoly of the U.S. except in a few special fields and for the most part can be matched or even bettered at much lower costs in parts of the world such as the Far East and Europe. I believe that the U.S. must work hard to recover, and the first step is to get business, government, labor, and the consumer to recognize what is necessary.

It boils down basically to the story of creating jobs people want. Only if we succeed competitively over some guy in Japan or Germany or anywhere can we prosper. If we succeed everybody benefits. If we fail everybody is hurt to a degree.

Q — Corporate responsibility is a buzz phrase today. How far do you feel that responsibility should extend? To the point of possible negative effects on shareholders? Or what?

A — I said last year and the year before and I'm going to say it again. I think our biggest social contribution is the creation of jobs, real jobs, sound jobs that make us competitive so we don't have to close up factories tomorrow morning.

What should we take on in terms of the shareholders' money? If business is to survive I'm not sure what it is. Naturally, we support projects like education, and we've increased our contribution to one center city problem about seven times in recent years. I think it's important from the shareholder standpoint to identify with such issues. This year we started a student's exchange program which will run us over $500,000. We see it as an exchange of ideas. There may be even less friction between the Common Market and the U.S. because of it.

Q — There is some belief that the federal government caters to business interests. Do you feel that there is another side to that belief?

A — Yes I do. Actually, business has been on the defensive for some time in its relation to the U.S. government. This has been occasioned by the almost overwhelming importance attached to both labor and consumer interests. Since they represent much more political strength in terms of numbers, they carry more weight. The unfortunate part is that most of our basic economic problems are not fully explained or understood by either government, business, labor or the public. Much of the politicizing of issues is not logical and to a considerable degree is against the self-interest of the very people involved. I also realize there have been shortcomings on the part of business, and I would be the last to attempt to condone these.

Q — Mr. Geneen, you have a reputation, aside from brilliance, of being a coldly efficient driver interested primarily in work. Is that a fair appraisal?

A — Not true. Let me put it simply. I feel we have a responsibility, and we carry it out. I would much rather go out fishing or a lot of other things. But when we have a job we must do it. Now you asked about the suitcases down there in my office. I didn't want to spend all my weekends in this New York office, so I take my work with me ... in those suitcases.

Q — How many hours would you say you work daily?

A — Well, I probably put in 10 or 12 hours per day, five days a week. On weekends I probably put in eight hours. So I probably average 60 or more hours per week. (Ed: Associates say he works about 80 hours per week.)

Q — What qualities do you admire in people — social as well as professional?

A — I don't know. Maybe just the quality of being regular people ... Basically, I like competent people who get things done, who can correct their mistakes if they make any. Their batting averages should be good and they should be willing to put in a good day's work.

Wall Street chatter

NEW YORK — The Federal Reserve Board's actions to cool the surging economy via additional restraining measures will result in further increases in key money market rates in the coming months, Bache & Co. says in its fixed-income securities survey. It says, "While there is no indication of a near-term deterioration in the strong technical position of long-term bond markets, some build-up in the extremely light corporate new issue calendar can be expected in the second half of 1973." It concludes that buildup with the rate of acceleration in the money markets will largely determine whether high-grade, long-term corporate bonds can be held at or below the 8 per cent level."

E. F. HUTTON notes, "To the surprise of no one but to the consternation of many, the market continued to sink lower." However, according to the investment house, the large volume on the downside and the increased volume on the slide indicate the market may still have further to go before any kind of a turn around occurs.

STANDARD & POOR's outlook advises investors to avoid "hasty actions in the chaotic markets engendered by the prevailing atmosphere of uncertainty." It notes some "interesting values are developing" as a result of the market decline, but in uncertain times, it adds, markets "go to extremes." Thus, it says, "In the circumstances, it would be prudent to remain on the sidelines until the air clears."

THE MERKIN market letter advises investors to lighten position during any "near-term advance" and to accumulate funds for a buying opportunity ahead, possibly when the Dow Jones Industrial average reaches the 850-860 zone. If the stock market keeps to past patterns, it says, the market decline could stretch into early June until a summer rally begins.

A SLOWDOWN in price inflation coupled with continued strong corporate profit performance should invigorate waning investor enthusiasm by late summer, First National City Bank economists said. If monetary policy remains too tight for too long, however, "it may very well be that a turnaround in investor sentiment and the stock market upturn will have to wait until 1974," said Citybank vice president Dudley Johnson.

IN THE WAKE of the Teamster's Union demand for a large pay increase and Ford Motor Co.'s comment car sales would be somewhat lower in 1974, the discount rate increase made it "quite obvious that the bulls again have their work cut out for them," E. F. Hutton & Co. said. The recent loss in the Transportation Index suggests the Industrials are headed for a test of their latest lows. Unless some positive news develops, the letter said the previous lows will not hold.

"COMMON STOCKS are just about the most under-achieving elements on the national scene, with the exception of the 'White House Staff Ethics Committee,' assuming one exists," Reynolds Securities Inc. said. The letter said common stocks as reliable long term investments are undergoing a cleansing period of a confidence crisis brought on by Watergate but these issues will survive and revive.

CONCERN THE administration's preoccupation with Watergate will diminish its effectiveness in the economic sphere has contributed to the uncertainty coloring market psychology, according to Standard & Poor's The Outlook. Since stock fluctuations may be dictated by day-to-day developments, the letter advises investors "to move carefully pending some clearing of the air."

NEW FEDERAL budget projections should lay to rest the fears of a money-and-credit crunch that have "haunted investors in recent months and probably have made a major contribution to the decline in stock prices since early January," Abraham & Co.'s The Technical Review said. The projections, reducing the estimated U.S. deficit for fiscal 1973 from $12.7 billion to $5.7 billion, suggest no escalation of current monetary restraints will be necessary to curb inflation in the months ahead, the letter said.

Corporations gain in first quarter: bank

Profits of U.S. corporations for the first quarter of 1973 were 26 per cent higher than a year earlier, but it is doubtful that this rate of gain can be maintained, according to First National City Bank of New York.

Though profits will continue to increase, the high growth in earnings will be increasingly difficult to repeat as more firms are approaching practical limits of capacity. They will find that gains from cost cutting and improved productivity are dwindling, the bank said in its May economic letter.

The growth rate of earnings appears to have more speed than stamina. However, the broad upswing came at a time of year when earnings usually sag and in a period when doubts about the business climate were widespread.

Citibank's survey of 1,545 corporations with after-tax profits of more than $11 billion reveals that five out of six reporting firms had higher profits than a year earlier.

Alaskan oil pipeline needed now, Nixon reiterates

by LEA TONKIN
TRADEOFF TIME: this is what we can expect to hear again and again as our energy crisis becomes institutionalized. Just yesterday, President Nixon renewed his strong support for the construction of an oil pipeline across Alaska, as soon as possible.
"We need the oil; we need it now. The only way to get it is to build the Alaska pipeline," said the President's comment," said Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania.
The trans-Alaska pipeline, which would carry oil some 800 miles from Alaska's frigid north slope to the port of Valdez, should be coupled with plans for construction of another pipeline across Canada, according to Nixon. The Alaska pipeline has been opposed by environmentalists for the potential hazards it would create.
This is one of many environmental tradeoffs needed to meet our nation's energy demands, according to economist Dr. Charles Walker, speaker at an economic forum yesterday in Des Plaines. Speaking at the session sponsored by the First National Bank of Des Plaines, Walker said relaxation of environmental restrictions (as construction of the pipeline) and higher prices are among the trade-offs we must accept to gain energy supplies, and avoid national security problems.

SOOTIEST OF THEM ALL: top honors in this category go to the U.S. Steel Corp.'s Gary, Ind. complex, as announced this week by the Council on Economic Priorities.
It seems the plant spews out more dust and soot than any other steel plant in the nation, a prime example of the industry's "great reluctance to get on with the task of pollution abatement," the council said.
A study compiled by the council concludes that the industry as a whole "lags far behind what is legally required and technologically feasible" to control pollution in its plants, so U.S. Steel need not feel lonesome in the spotlight. The council noted that 40 of the 47 steel mills operated by the nation's largest steel companies have been cited for pollution, put on enforced cleanup schedules, or are facing legal action for their reluctance in the cleanup field.

The cost of bringing the steel mills into compliance with existing air and water pollution standards would mean an annual price increase of little more than 1 per cent over a five-year period, the study indicates. The $1.2 billion spent on pollution abatement in recent years by the steel industry is one small part of what's needed, the report states.
Steel companies indicated the council tabulations are incorrect, as well as the estimated price increase. Armco Steel Corp. was cited in the report as having a much better cleanup effort than others in this field.
The Council on Economic Priorities, which has zeroed in on electric utilities and paper industries in the past, says the steelmen did not cooperate in the study that other industries offered. Not a single steel company would provide information on pollution abatement equipment or emissions from their mills, the council said. The council is funded by the Rockefeller Foundation and other organizations.

HOW CAN SHORELAND planning provide for shore protection? This question will be considered today and tomorrow at a Lake Michigan Shoreland Planning Conference in Chicago. The conference will be held at the Field Museum.
Douglas Inman of the Scripps Institute of Oceanography in California will discuss man's impact on the coastal zone. He is among the authorities on shoreline processes who will participate in the program. Paul Godfrey of the University of Massachusetts will discuss natural and controlled dunes systems. Robert Miller, the Army Corps of Engineers, National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Administration, and Western Michigan University representatives also will participate in the session.

Solutions to current Lake Michigan shore problems will be discussed in workshop sessions. The conference is sponsored by the Lake Michigan Federation, Department of Development and Planning, City of Chicago, Water Resources Center University of Illinois at Urbana, Region V of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, and the Illinois Institute of Environmental Quality.
A registration fee of $20 includes lunch for both days. Additional information is available at the Lake Michigan Federation, 427-5121.
DON'T LEAVE IT to the experts; we can all contribute to the improvement and protection of our natural world, and this is the theme of a new booklet offered by the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency.
Your Illinois World: A Guidebook to Individual Action on Environmental Concern is a 24-page collection of practical ideas for becoming an active part of the environmental protection forces.

The booklet recommends recovery, reuse and recycling of the 400 billion pounds of refuse generated by Americans each year. Discourage unnecessary waste by avoiding food items that are excessively packaged, as individually wrapped slices of cheese, it suggests. Save paper bags, foil wraps, plastic and glass containers for use in your own home as small storage units for leftovers and small items.
Cardboard cartons can be converted into children's toys and wrapping paper to drawing sheets. Shopping carefully can reduce noise levels in your home appliances. Cut down on convenience gadgetry as electric carving knives and can openers.
Learn local, state and national laws and support needed legislation in this field, the booklet urges. Encourage environmental education in schools.
Copies of Your Illinois World can be obtained free by writing Public Inquiry Section, Illinois Environmental Protection Agency, 2200 Churchill Rd., Springfield, Ill. 62706.

Homes of the Northwest Suburbs

The Pennsylvania Dutch Farmhouse

The picturesque Pennsylvania Dutch Farmhouse is reminiscent of early Eastern New England architecture featuring an imposing style of home that reflects immediate warmth and rugged stability.

Originally conceived by settlers in the rocky Pennsylvania Farmlands, this style is most noted for its generous kitchens, equally spacious cabinet areas and handsome fieldstone fireplace.

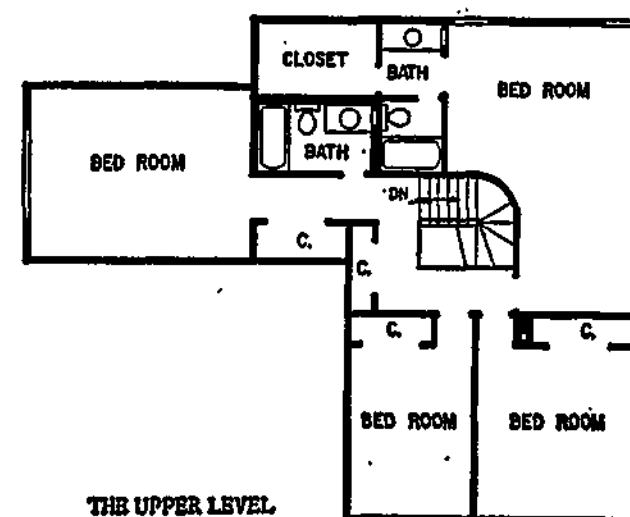

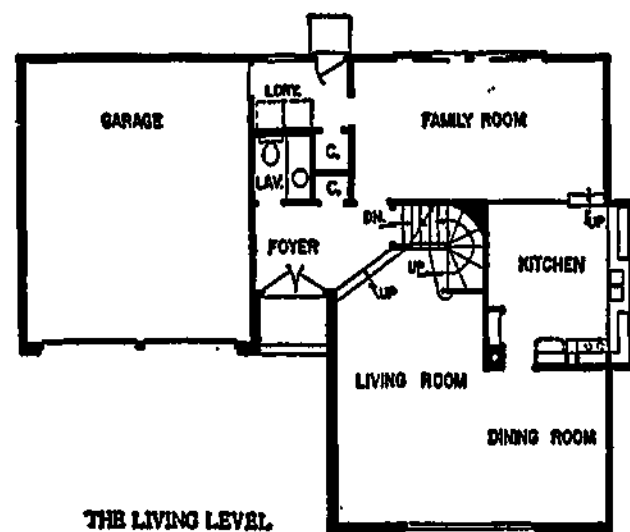

Massive double door entry accommodates many guests and offers central immediate access to the living quarters, usually including a large, well windowed living room for delightful furniture arrangements.

The upstairs is designed to feature a private master bedroom wing with adequate room for lounging & quiet seclusion and the overall harmony of the kitchen and adjoining family room is a favorite for active family living and gracious entertaining.

Rich in style and heritage, the Pennsylvania Dutch home is another of the many elegant styles found in and around Northwest Suburban Chicago.

Outdoor, garden lighting versatile, easy to install

For lighting steps, pathways, and borders there is a wide variety of outdoor and garden lighting fixtures available. Fixtures can be of the portable type with cord, plug and ground spike or wired for connection through a junction box to the underground cable.

Depending on the size of the fixture and what its function will be, light bulbs will vary in size from 10 to 100 watts. Select fixtures, especially those for use at steps and walks, which have no annoying bright glass or plastic parts since glare can hamper vision.

Lighting of trees, shrubbery, walls and fences can be done by locating fixtures on the ground and aiming them upward. To maintain an unbroken expanse of lawn, place fixtures either partially or entirely below ground.

TO PRODUCE a dimensional shape, rather than a flat appearance, direct two or more uplights at an angle on the feature being lighted.

There are also lighting fixtures that can be used for accent lighting of statuary, reflecting pools, small trees, flowers, tables and umbrellas. Small scale fixtures using 30 or 50-watt reflector bulbs can be used for up or down accent lighting.

Another important use of outdoor lighting is for the safety and security of your home and surroundings.

Post lamps or surface-mounted lanterns on either side of the front door will provide sufficient light to identify callers and also help light the front step so callers will not trip or slip. You can also use recessed units in the ceiling or roof overhang.

Adjustable weather-resistant floodlamps mounted high on the eaves of your house, or on tall trees will give broad illumination to the entire property.

Lighting can brighten your out-of-doors just as it does the inside of your house.

Well-planned outdoor lighting can not only make your home and yard a thing of beauty, but it can also provide safe passage for friends and neighbors as they come to call, to perhaps borrow a cup of sugar, or enjoy with you a warm evening on your patio, in your backyard, or around the pool.

When you light the outdoors around your home you do many things: reveal the beauty of the trees, bushes and gardens; expand the hospitality and comfort of your patio or porch; stretch the hours of outdoor recreation; and at the same time provide visibility to guard against an accident.

For outdoor lighting, start with the fixtures. They range in design from strictly functional types to those which are truly works of art, with in-between models, to satisfy any outdoor lighting need.

Generally, fixtures are made of aluminum, brass, steel, copper or bronze. Select fixtures of sturdy construction and good finish so they'll withstand all types of weather.

Large areas such as the patio, terrace, flower bed, driveway, or lawn can be illuminated by fixtures hung from tree branches or attached to the trunk. Others are designed to be placed at ground level or mounted on the house.

Fixtures should be placed at ground level on a scale and design so as to spread light patterns over an area 20 feet or greater in diameter. They should be from 30 to 65 inches tall with shade diameters 15 to 23 inches.

A SWIMMING pool or other possible outdoor hazards should be clearly illuminated.

Any enclosed passageway, adjacent to your house tends to be a favorite hangout for prowlers. Discourage them by installing lights of no less than 60 watts every ten feet.

The garage is another place intruders like to hide in. Have at least a 100-watt bulb on each side of a one-car garage, or three lights for a two-car garage.

According to the Electric Energy Association, these are only some of the multitude of tips to help you put outdoor lighting to good use. Though some people do install outdoor lighting themselves you're wise to use a qualified installer of outdoor lighting.

You can also check with your local electric utility for recommendations on the best way to plan your outdoor lighting so you'll be as proud and secure about your outdoor areas as you are of the inside of your home.

Commuting not limited to big metropolitan area

Commuting is no longer a life style limited to workers with jobs in the huge metropolitan centers of the nation and homes outside the urban areas.

"Five of the 15 cities with the highest percentages of commuters are located in Virginia — Richmond, Roanoke, Petersburg, Newport News-Hampton and Lynchburg," according to Sabino Marinella, president of Continental Investment Corp., Boston.

"A recent study shows 41 per cent of the jobholders in Richmond are commuters, 43.7 per cent in Roanoke, 42.4 per cent in Petersburg, 34.1 per cent in Newport News-Hampton and 33.3 per cent in Lynchburg," Marinella says.

Some 43.5 per cent of the jobholders in Washington, D.C. are daily commuters from the Maryland and Northern Virginia suburbs. New York City is in fifth place with a 42.2 per cent commuter rate.

In New Jersey, two areas — the tri-cities section of Paterson-Clifton-Passaic and Jersey City — report 38.2 per cent and 33.0 per cent respectively.

OTHER CITIES with large proportions of commuters include: Brockton, Massachusetts, 37.8 per cent; Atlanta, 36.0

per cent; Denver, 35.8 per cent; Baltimore, 34.9 per cent; and St. Louis and Columbus, Ga., both with 34.2 per cent.

"As for distances, about 25 per cent of the nation's commuters live 11 miles or more from their jobs. Another 26 per cent travel from 6 to 10 miles each way, while 17 per cent go 4 to 5 miles to work. Some 21 per cent of our work force commute from 2 to 3 miles in each direction," Marinella points out.

The majority of commuters — 59 per cent — need from 15 to 35 minutes to reach work. Twenty-five per cent travel 36 minutes or more and only 18 per cent reach their jobs in less than 15 minutes.

"Improved highways and transit systems make it increasingly easier for people to have homes farther from their jobs. While the average commuter may live only 10 to 15 miles from his job, workers whose homes are 30 or 40 miles away from the city are no longer rare.

"The attraction of open space living areas is strong. And a burgeoning number of workers are willing to face the daily commute, knowing they will be back in those tranquil open spaces beyond the city when the day ends," Marinella concludes.

Redwood has many uses around home

INDIVIDUAL brick or stone units are thin and lightweight, but won't crack or break. Mineral formulation will not burn, melt or discolor. A broad range of styles and colors are available to choose from.

Decorating: imagination as important as cost

Tasteful decorating is usually more a matter of imagination than cost. For every home improvement project inside or out, upstairs or down, imagination used in the choice of quality building materials will make the difference between just another effort or a finished project of lasting value and beauty.

Panels of simulated stone and brick used as decorating elements in the dining room and living room illustrate how the proper material becomes the magic ingredient by its imaginative use.

Sound—it can drive you nuts

Sound is a many splendored thing—but it can also splinter your nerves, upset your digestion, play havoc with your psyche. In short, it can drive you nuts.

The dangerous kinds of sound are those that annoy people. Called noise pollution, they are too strident, they bounce all around you to the point of distraction, or they are low, off-beat sounds that strain peoples' hearing, even frighten them.

These are sounds in the home that are capable of breaking up families by building up tensions between husbands and wives, parents and children, according to a University of Wisconsin report. It further stated that household noise is a major public health and ecological problem. Many problems of noise pollution in the home are caused by hard surfaced walls, floors and ceilings that permit sound to reverberate about a room.

The key to controlling sound is to use sound absorbing material, such as acoustical ceiling tiles, carpeting and draperies, according to The Celotex Corporation, a subsidiary of Jim Walter Corporation, national manufacturer of building and construction materials.

"What hard surfaces do is recycle sound," said J. E. Ross, acoustical ceiling expert with Celotex. "Recycling waste materials is fine for a lot of pollution problems, but absorbing sound is the answer to the problems of unwanted noise."

A properly installed acoustical ceiling will have a dramatic effect in reducing unwanted noises in any room of a home, Ross added. Tiles are easily installed by stapling directly into a ceiling or into furring strips. Lay-in acoustical panels are dropped into the grids of a suspended ceiling system.

Properly planned bathroom lends style, convenience

Families building a new home should not forget that bathrooms are perhaps the most permanent—and surely the most often neglected—of all the rooms they're planning, advises a leading design engineer.

"The kitchen also is a difficult room to change once installed," says Borg-Warner Plumbing Products designer Stan Korol, "but this area is a focal point for new home planners. Bathrooms normally get little of the planning attention lavished on the kitchen."

"It's only after the family has moved in and becomes settled that they realize their stark white, bland bathrooms are totally out of step with the other decors they've so carefully planned. But by that time it's often too late."

Most people would be surprised at the minimal extra cost of color bathtubs, lavatories and toilets, Korol explains, and once they're installed the decorating possibilities are endless.

"Modest upgrading of the bathroom fixtures themselves is another route to increased style and convenience," he says. "Such higher grade fixtures offer improved design and function at a surprisingly low cost."

BORG-WARNER market research shows that used housing buyers are paying more attention to bathrooms than ever before, and Korol points out this trend makes an extra investment in the bathroom sound economics as well as a matter of good looks and convenience.

Family rooms, bedrooms and other "dry rooms" are relatively easy to improve at any time, he continues. A new coat of paint or an afternoon of wallpapering or paneling is all it takes.

"However, a bathroom facelift can involve considerable time and effort from floor to ceiling," says Korol.

"Today's new products make such work much easier, assuredly," he adds, "but why should the homeowner wait until later when the time to insure bathroom style and convenience is during a home's planning stage?"

Borg-Warner suggests home planners consult their builder about color bath fixtures—giving thought to their bathroom color schemes just as they do to the kitchen's.

Today's living patterns allow more leisure time, with more diversified ways in which to enjoy that free time. More and more families are finding their pleasures at home, pleasures doubled in value by the simple expedient of adding low cost outdoor rooms in which to rest and relax—or to have fun gatherings.

One family in the Seattle area increased their living space by 50 per cent through the addition of beautiful and practical redwood decks at the front entry and to the rear of the house—both attractively oriented to the outdoor setting.

Redwood planter boxes and outdoor furniture complement the spaces, adding a degree of privacy as well as fulfilling designated functions.

The use of common grades of redwood can keep costs within a reasonable budget. Because redwood lends itself well to shaping and to detailing, any homeowner could accomplish the same results as this family did, either as a do-it-yourself project, or at a minimal cost with professional assistance.

LOCAL REDWOOD dealers have a variety of ideas to offer, not only for decking and furnishings, but also for remodeling projects, other additions, and the garden amenities.

The practicality of using redwood is demonstrated in its long life, even when exposed to the elements. More than any other commercially available wood, the heartwood of redwood resists decay and insect attack.

The beauty of redwood remains whether left to weather naturally to a soft driftwood grey, or finished with a semi-transparent stain that permits the natural textures to emerge.

The other extra benefit derived from redwood is found in the low maintenance qualities obtainable through the use of these natural materials.

The outdoor spaces added by the Seattle family further enhance the interior of the residence, adding a dimensional look that makes the house seem larger, adds warmth and richness to the total plan. The front deck provides an inviting entry; the back deck is an extension of the family room.

A SLIDING DOOR here gives easy access to the barbecue and family areas. Coincidentally, the potential resale value of the house has risen even though the investment was small.

The decks in these outdoor rooms utilized construction heart grade redwood in two by four and two by six boards. Construction common grade redwood would work equally well at even less cost. Siding and fencing was of resawn 9/16 inch tongue-and-groove, in four inch widths.

The redwood furniture and planter boxes lend themselves to all plans and all climates, to be enjoyed at any season of the year. Finishing touches for the outdoor rooms included one by four clear grade redwood trim around the front door and windows of the house and one by six clear grade redwood along the outside edge and the inside edges of the cut out planting areas of the deck. Redwood rounds and bark chips are used at the front entry and throughout the ground planting areas.

Over 140 Trained, Competent, Experienced Real Estate Sales Representatives Serve QUINLAN and TYSON Sales Clients

Area residents join realty firm

Four new sales associates at Robert W. Starck and Co., Realtors were recently announced by Starck, president. He said they are needed because of the expansion of services by the company's five offices.

Each new sales associate is required to attend a comprehensive training program before being assigned to an office. Starck is a Certified Residential Broker and the firm has been a leader in promoting education of sales associates as a means to more professional service.

Mrs. Marge Holderness had been in real estate sales in the area for more than a year when she joined Starck, just after the office opened recently in Palatine. She and her husband, Wallace, live at 53 Russet Way in Palatine and have four married children living in nearby suburbs.

Past business experience for Mrs. Holderness was as a receptionist and secretary for a Skokie firm. She is a member of the Council of Catholic Women at St. Theresa's parish in Palatine and is a member of the Women of the Moose, Lodge number 1535 in Downers Grove.

Another member of the Palatine sales force is Norman Macy. He and his wife live at 482 Glen Lake Terrace in Hoffman Estates and have three children.

MR. MACY ATTENDED Eastern Illinois University at Charleston and two of their children, Michelle, 21, and Stephen, 20, are students there now. Daughter Joanna, 17, will be graduated from Coanant High School this year.

The Macys are originally from Central Illinois, but moved to the Chicago area 12 years ago, spending the last seven years in their Hoffman Estates location. As a member of the Army Air Corps for four years, Macy spent three years in England and other European areas.

A lifetime member of Amvets, Macy has also been active in working for the Boy Scout program in Hoffman Estates.

Mrs. Bernie Leblca is a new member of the Starck Mount Prospect staff and had three years of previous real estate sales experience with a company on the Northwest side of Chicago.

She and her husband, Don, live at 711 S. William in Mount Prospect. Their son Kirk is at Prospect High School and daughters Kim and Karen attend Lions Park Elementary School.

A native of the Chicago area, Mrs. Leblca attended Wright Junior College for two years. She was active in Girl Scout work as a leader in Chicago and is helping with a troop in Mount Prospect.

The Starck office in Hoffman Estates gained an active, civic-minded individual in Adam "Bud" Jelen, his wife Marie and 5-year-old son Michael live at 329 Baxter Ln., in Hoffman Estates. Michael will be a first grader at Lakeview School next fall.

JELLEN IS A BOARD member of School District 54 and also a member of the Illinois Association of School Boards. In addition to activities for furthering and improving school programs, Jelen is active in VFW for the Hoffman Estates - Schaumburg group, the Schaumburg Rotary Club and the Knights of Columbus, Holy Ghost Council in Palatine. For advanced studies, Jelen attended Loras College in Dubuque, Iowa and was awarded a bachelor of science degree there. Serving in the U.S. Army from 1952 through 1955, he spent two years stationed in Hanau, Germany.

He brings many years of sales experience to Starck, having worked for 12 years as a pharmaceutical sales representative and for two years in the sales end of the food processing industry.

David Howell

David Howell named president of Willett

Howard L. Willett, chairman of the Willett Motor Coach Co., and all other Willett Cos., recently announced the election of David W. Howell as president of both The Willett Motor Coach Co. and The Willett Co.

The Willett Cos., Chicago's largest and oldest transportation group, are engaged in the trucking business as well as truck leasing on a fully maintained basis. Willett operates approximately 2,000 trucks and buses, all serving within a 100-mile radius of Chicago.

Howell was formerly vice president and the founder of the Howell Tractor and Equipment Co. of Elk Grove, He recently sold his holdings in that company to the F. L. Regnery Interests. Howell has had a 25-year career in management of construction equipment distribution.

Howell will have his offices at the Willett Companies headquarters building at 700 S. Des Plaines St., Chicago.

Lee Morrison to head Palatine bank

Taking over the presidency of the $32 million Palatine National Bank June 1 is Lee E. Morrison, president of Suburban Bank Group $12 million affiliate Suburban Bank of Hoffman Estates.

Morrison's appointment is one of a series of Suburban Bank Group promotions seeing Gerald F. Fitzgerald, president of the downtown Palatine bank since 1962, stepping down as president but retaining the board chairmanship.

Glen Short, president of Suburban National Bank of Palatine and previously a vice president of the Hoffman Estates bank, returns to Suburban Bank of Hoffman Estates as president June 1.

Gordon Ramsay, a newcomer to the Suburban Bank Group, takes over the president's position at Suburban Palatine on the same date.

Fitzgerald, who has quadrupled Palatine National Bank's assets in the last 11 years and built the seven-member $76 million Suburban Bank Group, will over-

Lee E. Morrison

Glen Short

see the group's expansion plans which include Suburban National Bank of Woodfield, now in organization.

New Palatine National Bank president Morrison has a bachelor of business administration degree from Detroit's Wayne State University, a master's degree in business administration from the University of Michigan Graduate School of Business and a diploma from the American Bankers Association's Stonier Graduate School of Banking, Rutgers University.

IN HIS 11 months at Suburban Bank of Hoffman Estates, Morrison has increased bank assets 70 per cent and profits 85 per cent. Prior to joining the Suburban Bank Group, he was vice president of Detroit's Bank of the Commonwealth, chairman of the board of Presque Isle Bank (Rogers City, Mich.) and director of the Peoples Bank of Port Huron (Mich.). He has also served as a banking consultant in loan, bond portfolio, operations, marketing, personnel and expansion areas.

Morrison is on the board of directors of Suburban National Bank of Elk Grove Village as well as at Palatine National Bank and Suburban Bank of Hoffman Estates. He is also an organizer of Suburban National Bank of Woodfield, slated to open later this year.

Short joined the Suburban Bank Group in May, 1970 as vice president of Suburban Bank of Hoffman Estates. His banking career began in the installment loan department of Evanston Trust and Savings Bank in 1964; two years later he moved to the northwest suburbs as assistant vice president of Schaumburg State Bank, where he became a vice president a year later.

He was appointed senior vice president of Suburban National Bank of Palatine and became president of that bank two years ago. Since then, he has doubled the assets and the profits of that bank.

RAMSAY STARTED his 20-year career in banking at First National Bank of Chicago. He was named assistant vice president of the Northlake Bank, assistant vice president of the First National Bank of Mount Prospect, president and director of the Countryside Bank and executive vice president, chief executive officer and director of the State Bank of South Elgin. Ramsay holds a degree from Northwestern University and is a member of the American Institute of Banking.

Fitzgerald and Morrison reside in Palatine; Short in Schaumburg; and Ramsay, in Bartlett. All four men are active in a variety of professional and civic activities.

ENTERTAINMENT CENTER of the new family room is this handsome shelf arrangement that houses television set, stereo components, books and knick-knacks. Shelving is faced with a prefinished hardboard with a simulated oak grain finish. Soft recessed lighting and comfortable seating help to make this the ideal place to rest and relax.

A good way to remodel your bathroom

One of the most used, most cleaned and, so, most often remodeled rooms in any home is the bathroom! Depending upon mood and pocketbook, bath remodeling ranges anywhere from a change in the color of accessories or the addition of carpeting to the selection of new fixtures, tile or wall finishing.

An effective means of improving the appearance of the bath plus cutting down on cleaning time is to focus remodeling on the tub or shower area.

Often the only change here is the purchase of a colorful new shower curtain. However, this does nothing to lessen dreary cleaning chores nor, in fact, change the basic look of the room.

Instead of a new shower curtain, consideration might be given to folding tub and shower enclosures. These plastic-paneled enclosures have the versatility of a shower curtain, the added safety of a bath enclosure and good looks all their own.

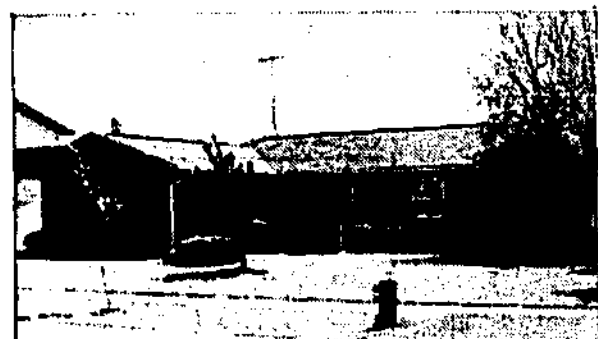

The flexible door panels are available in a range of decorator colors to subtly match any decorating scheme.

PULLING IT ALL together is what this abstract painting on the paneled wall does for a former garage-turned-recreation room. The painting features the oranges and yellows found in the shag carpeting, the chairs, the drapes and the orange gas-fired fireplace. The brown oak color from the paneling and the color in the hexagon coffee table are also found in the painting.

Durning's realty sales soaring

Robert Durning

John Christensen, broker for Village Realty of Elk Grove announced that Robert H. Durning, new sales associate has sold almost $750,000 in residential homes.

According to Christensen, Durning joined Village Realty in February this year. His performance is considered exceptional, especially in view of the fact that he has been with Village such a short time. An informal office gathering was the scene of the announcement, after which refreshments and snacks were served.

Durning holds an Illinois Real Estate Brokers license and has more than 3 years real estate sales experience with the bulk of his sales concentrated in Elk Grove Village. He and his wife, Carol, have lived in Elk Grove Village for the past 10 years. Bob is a retired military officer and has just completed a two-year appointment to the Elk Grove Village Board of Trustees.

Get maximum home value for your dollar

Because a home is the largest single purchase we will make, how can we be sure that we are getting the most for our money.

From surveys made by national realty associations and government organizations, the National Better Heating-Cooling Council has compiled some important advice for prospective homebuyers. At the outset, the council strongly urges you to think of the house's resale value. The national average of home ownership is only seven years, so the time to think about selling your house is when you buy it.

Secondly, don't just select a house, but look at its location. Is it near schools, shopping, work and close to family and friends?

Next, check the neighborhood. Is it going downhill? Is it near land zoned for industry or commercial use? If so, the resale value of the house will erode along with the neighborhood.

NOW CHECK THE important features of the house. How many bedrooms and bathrooms are there? Although your family may be small now, you should plan for growth. Equally important, almost one third of the homes sold a year ago had four or more bedrooms and at least two baths. Make sure the house you buy has desirable resale features.

Getting the most for your housing dollar is not just what you pay for the house, but what you have to pay to keep it in top condition. Maintenance, as every homeowner will tell you, is what makes a home out of a house. Some people choose brick because they know it requires little or no maintenance.

Check the heating equipment. Remember that a hydronic (modern hot water) home heating system with a cast iron boiler is reputed to last for 40 years; steel boilers will give 20 years of service. Warm air furnaces are said to last for 15 years.

Also, think in terms of expansion. Does the design of the house lend itself to add-on rooms? Since 9 out of 10 home improvement projects will require heat, if it is preplanned it will save time and money. On the other hand, if you wait until the project is completed, the cost for this simple addition may be prohibitive.

Another important point to consider when buying a house is that you will receive tax advantages. Also, if the costs of material and labor continue to increase, its present price is much lower than what it will be in five years.

TIPS TO HOME BUYERS AND HOME SELLERS FROM MAP MULTIPLE LISTING REAL ESTATE SERVICE

"Why shouldn't I sell my house myself?"

This is a question very often brought up by people who are contemplating selling their home. In the interest of public information, MAP Multiple Listing Real Estate Service helps answer the question with the following information.

Thru the years, a Real Estate Broker has acquired the contacts, the legal experience, and a knowledge of the market that the private citizen has never taken the time to learn.

If you sell your home without the services of a Real Estate Broker, you may find you've entered a situation that demands constant, time-consuming attention. And if you are not acquainted with the seemingly infinite details of a property transaction, you may be overwhelmed by the maze of responsibilities.

Are you able to find the market value of your house? Many owners don't know what a fair price might be. Frequently the owner asks too high a price and has difficulty finding a buyer. Worse yet, he may be asking a price that is considerably below the value, in which case he would be losing money he might have gained.

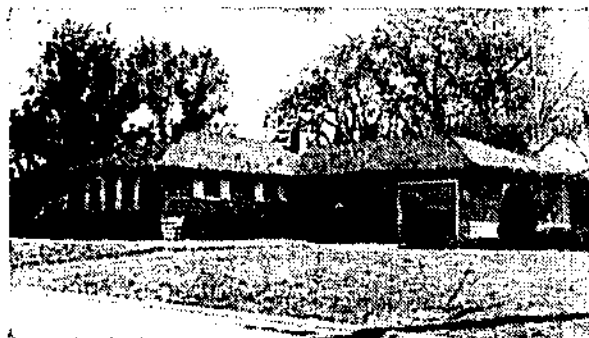

A Real Estate Broker is in contact with the market in your neighborhood. He would be able to make an accurate estimate of the value of your house in the market. His experience would help assure you of a fair sales price in a reasonable period of time.

Are you prepared to secure a mortgage for potential buyers? To whom would you go, and what would you do? What kinds of financing are available? Your Real Estate Broker is well acquainted with the financial aspects of transactions. He knows the people to deal with, and he knows the options available.

Lee Pillsbury named to post by Marriott

Lee Pillsbury has been named director of sales and marketing for the new, multi-million dollar Lincolnshire Marriott resort/convention hotel scheduled to open early 1975 in Lincolnshire, Al LeFavre, vice president of sales for Marriott Hotels Inc., announced recently.

Pillsbury is now headquartered in Chicago, where he recently opened a sales office at 8301 W. Higgins Rd., for the 400-room, year-round resort/convention complex. He and his staff will work out of these offices while the 168-acre Marriott property located 20 minutes north of O'Hare Airport is under construction.

LeFavre noted that Pillsbury's appointment two years in advance of the hotel opening enables Marriott to enter the first year of operation with business on the books. Pillsbury will be directing his sales efforts to corporate, group and association bookings.

When opened, the Lincolnshire Marriott will be the hotel chain's fourth resort property. It currently operates Marriott's Camelback Inn, Scottsdale, Arizona; the Paraiso Marriott, Acapulco, Mexico and Sam Lord's Castle, Barbados, West Indies.

Lee Pillsbury

A native of Rochester, N.Y., Pillsbury comes to the Lincolnshire property from the Houston Marriott where he also served as director of sales and marketing. While at Houston from 1970 to 1972 he rose from sales representative to the position he now holds.

Pillsbury joined Marriott in 1969 after graduation from Cornell University. He is a member of the Hotel Sales Management Association and Marketing Executives International. He and his wife reside in Lincolnshire.

Condo complex for Park Ridge

A $32 million community, consisting of 307 condominium apartments and townhomes priced from $65,000 to $95,000, plus a recreation center and commercial facilities, has been unveiled for Park Ridge, Illinois.

To be known as Park Lane, the new planned unit development is going up on an 18-acre site on the east side of Talcott Road, two blocks north of Touhy Avenue. The developer is The Venterra Group, 635 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago.

Groundwork for the development has already begun. The permanent sales pavilion and the models are scheduled to open in the fall, with the first residents expected to move in a year later. Completion of the entire development is slated for 1977.

The developers are planning extensive landscaping, including preservation of mature trees already on the site, transplanting more than one hundred existing trees, and planting new evergreens, shrubs, and flowers.

The market the developers see consists largely of adult families now living in single-family homes in and around Park Ridge. Their children are grown, and the couple seeks a new home, but wants to remain in the same general area. They also want a residence in keeping with their status in life and without the home maintenance burden.

THREE MID-RISE elevator buildings will each be graduated in size from three to five stories. The buildings will offer one-bedroom plus den apartments in four floor plans with several variations, ranging from 1,446 to 1,575 square feet, and two-bedroom plus study apartments in three floor plans with variations, ranging from 1,707 to 1,918 square feet. Ground floor units will have private gardens.

Prices for the 379 condominium apartments will begin at $65,000 and go to $80,000. An underground garage containing two parking spaces for each apartment and additional storage areas for the residents will be built in conjunction with the apartments.

Two types of townhome will be offered. A two-bedroom plus den model totaling 2,050 square feet, and a three-bedroom plus den model with 2,200 square feet. Both types include garage and basement. Prices of townhomes range from $90,000 to $95,000. There will also be six model units of two and three bedroom condominium apartment designs which will be built in a separate building and sell for $70,000 to $80,000.

An array of mechanical and electronic devices will provide security and privacy for Park Lane families. There will be an estate-type fence around the development and a gatehouse to greet guests. A telephone system will connect each home to the gatehouse as well as to the lobby of the apartment buildings. Closed circuit television will permit observation of callers in the lobby. Heat detector devices will be installed in the public spaces of each building.

Park Lane will include a 7,857-square foot Club House with saunas, exercise room, and an indoor computerized golf driving range. Outside there'll be two tennis courts, putting greens, jogging paths, and an outdoor heated swimming pool.

To round out the facilities, Park Lane will have a 9,206-square foot commercial center, including a gourmet food and wine shop, plus other shops to be announced later.

SITE PLAN DESCRIBES the layout of Park Lane, the $32 million condominium development on an 18-acre site in Park Ridge on the east side of Talcott Rd., two blocks north of Touhy Ave. The combination of multi-family buildings, townhomes, clubhouse and commercial center covers only 26.9 per cent of the site while 58.7 per cent of the heavily landscaped site is kept as open space. Roadway and parking area counts for 14.4 per cent.

"Pride In, Respect For, The Property of America"

Towers above San Francisco

Transamerica pyramid adds 'class'

by MURRAY OLDERMAN

SAN FRANCISCO — Everytime Al Sanchez walks by it, he'll look up to where the needle point tips into the sky, 853 feet above the sidewalk of Montgomery Street, and say to anybody who's with him: "This is the building that I built."

Proudly.

The building is the Transamerican pyramid which in the last year has intruded sharply on the San Francisco skyline, a startling addition to the skyscraper lore of America.

It was built to give identification to a $4-billion conglomerate which was suffering the anonymity blues. ("Some pizza parlors," complained John Beckett, Transamerica board chairman, "are better known.")

And Al Sanchez, who is an engineering coordinator, got recognition of a kind, too. Al was there right from the start three years ago when 70 trucks in constant relay carted concrete through the city's financial district to pour into the huge, block-wide slab from which the pyramid would rise.

"I remember," he says "a lot of concrete and gravel spilling from the trucks out in the streets, and we were hosing it down."

HE ALSO REMEMBERS the peculiar feeling as the pyramid started to rise: "We thought the corners would meet before it got to the top." (The Egyptian pyramids, at 450 feet, are only half as tall.)

Finally, he remembers the prodding by his neighbors, across the bay in Alameda, from where he has commuted for more than 700 days from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m.

"Most of my friends," he says, "are the slightly radical type who hate high-rises. They frown on how I make a living. I know it was controversial, but I could see these people slowly shifting over."

"I'm in love with this place. It's an ego trip. Somebody needed me to build this building. We all feel that we built it. We like to identify with something different at least once in a lifetime. This is it — the 'e-s-t.' Highest, biggest, you name it."

It is different, all right, a vertical spearhead among the drabber monoliths jutting above the bay of San Francisco, the jagged tooth in the bunch and yet slickly, cleanly white and strangely unobtrusive in its prominence.

LEONARD RODRIGUES measures its popularity by the number of hard hats with Transamerica decals which were heisted on the job. "We went through 500 of them," he said, "Everybody was coping them."

Rodrigues is the concrete form detailer who saw the first shovel scoop out the first load of foundation dirt in December, 1969. Since then, he has supervised the use of 200,000 board feet of framing lumber and 10,000 sheets of 4-by-8 foot plywood just for concrete forms.

"I'm probably more familiar with the job than anyone who's ever worked here," he says, "because I know where all the concrete went. This building, it's hell for stout. The amount of steel in it — it is BIG."

Construction is in the final stages, finishing off the top floors. It goes to 48, after which there is a 212-foot aluminum-encased spire with a red nose at the tip to warn off stray aircraft. The spire will be inaccessible to the public. But with hard hat and sturdy climbing legs, a visitor can glimpse from up close that last thrust of interlaced white steel to a juncture in the sky.

TRANSAMERICA, which started out as a bank holding company, cut away to insurance and then branched out to acquire such diversified operations as an airline, a movie company (United Artists) and an auto rental business (Budget Rent-a-Car), will occupy one-third of the building, which has a majestic view of the entire bay.

Nobody's going to jump off it. "You'll have to commit suicide," said a local wit.

There'll be no window washers clinging to its side. Its windows pivot out for accessibility.

Tenants closer to the top massage their vanity by occupying an entire floor. The 48th, which will be used as a corporate VIP room, measures only 45 by 45 feet.

Two windowless protrusions, looking like wings toward the top of the pyramid, house elevators on one side and a smoke tower on the other side. Architectural buffs note that the cooling towers for the air conditioning aren't on the roof — there isn't one — but in two decorative cylindrical forms implanted in the sidewalk at street level.

A half-acre plot next to the building is being transformed into a redwood park. One hundred of the trees have been growing in a nursery for the last two years.

A traditional vertical slab of a building might have made more sense economically. For its $34 million, however, Transamerica Corporation got notoriety. At least as much as a pizza parlor.

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Don't make a $50,000 mistake!

When you are buying a home, don't make thousand dollar mistakes just because you are not a technical expert on plumbing, wiring, heating, termite damage, etc.

National Home Inspection Service will give you a prompt, written report on the true condition of the home you are considering, indicating unforeseen future expenses and when to expect them.

Avoid uncertainty and worry with this consumer protective inspection for one low fee averaging $75.

Ray Hughes

Name Ray Hughes vice president

C. T. Mitchell, president and general manager of Howell Tractor & Equipment Co., recently announced the election of Ray C. Hughes of Lombard as vice president, product support.

The firm, located at 1901 E. Pratt Blvd., Elk Grove Village, is a leading distributor of construction, earthmoving and industrial equipment. Sales and service offices in Elk Grove Village, Rockford and Alsip, and Gary, Ind., serve the Northern Illinois-Northern Indiana highway, public utility and building construction markets.

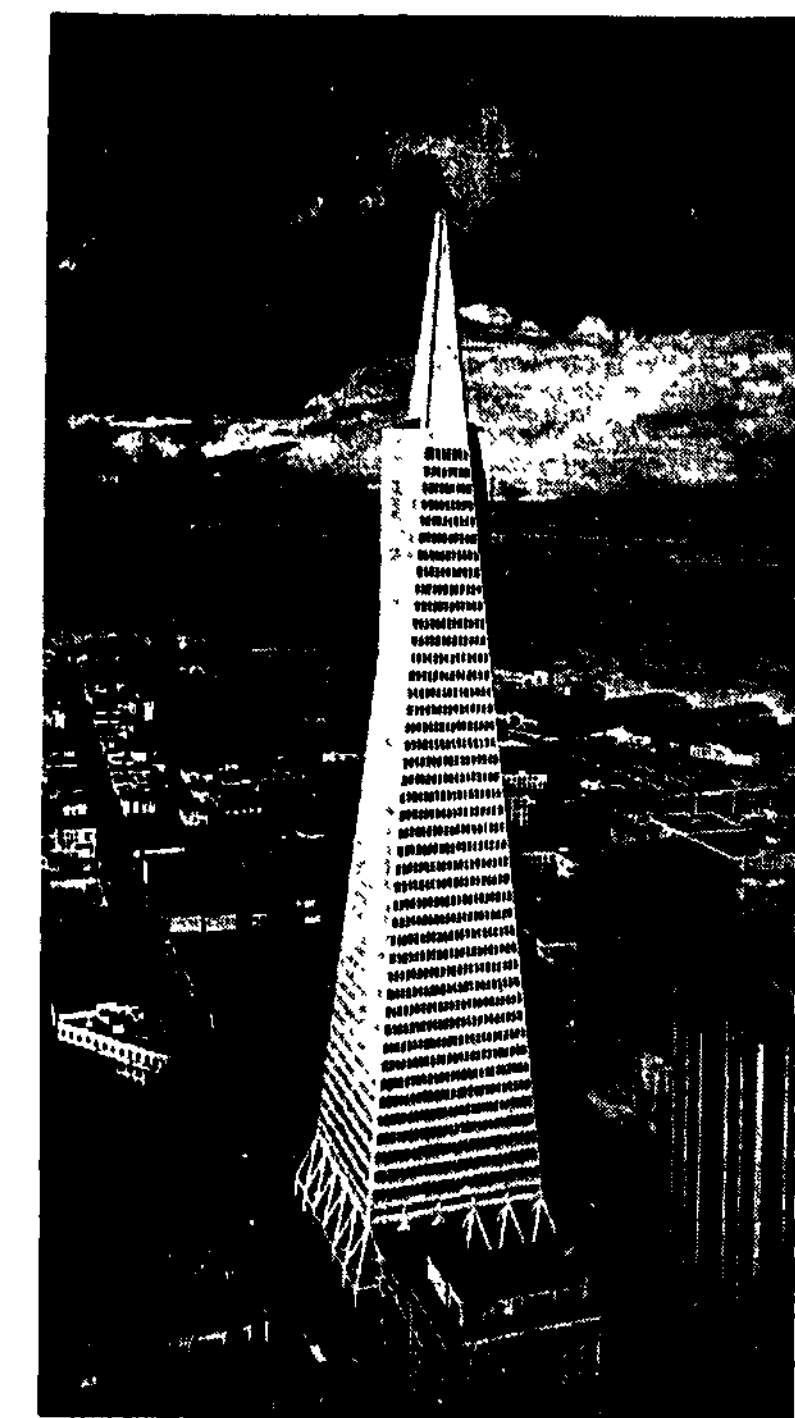

Hughes previously supervised Howell's rental fleet operations. He has had more than 20 years' experience in service and sales of construction machinery and equipment.

Consider a court

An entry court addition can handsomely alter the exterior of a house, remedy a mediocre approach to the front door and provide a private outdoor living area.

Perfect for pointing the way to the front door is a trellis-covered walkway. Screen-fences of western wood, combined with plantings, help define the approach and seclude the area from street traffic.

The outdoor living court is enhanced with decking and benches of western wood and fixed or movable planter boxes. Pools of recirculating water or dry stream beds of river rock complete the scene.

THE TRANSAMERICA Building zooms up into San Francisco's skyline like a giant exclamation point.

Lutheran Hospital elects board officers

Robert E. Wilkens of River Forest has been elected chairman of the board of trustees of Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge. He succeeds Norman Olson. Wilkens is vice president of the Wilkens-Andersen Co., Chicago.

Other officers are vice chairman William Brown, vice president of A. T. Kearney Co.; treasurer Frank McCullough, president of the National-Ben Franklin Life Insurance Corp.; and secretary Donald Petersen, partner in the law firm of Norman and Billick.

Record sales reported by Arlington Realty

Record home sales for April and for a four-month period were reported this week by Arlington Realty as the firm sold the highest number of homes in the 23-year history of the firm. Sales of 50 homes broke the previous record of 48 established in March 1972.

Sales volume for the four month period ending April 30 totaled $8,295,000 representing a full 26 per cent increase over the same period of 1972. Sales after four months of 1972 totaled $6,583,000.

Average sales price for 1973 is $48,990 representing a 12 per cent increase over the 1972 average price of $42,533.

Also announced by Arlington Realty were individual sales leaders for four months: South Arlington office, Lorraine Larson; North Arlington office, Ed Joyce and Evelyn Hines; Palatine office, Terry Leighty and Carol Falbo; Hoffman-Schaumburg office, Joyce Richards.

Dick Brickman wins landscaping award

Dick Brickman of Theodore Brickman Co. of Long Grove, was recently awarded a grand award in the environmental improvement awards program, sponsored by the Associated Landscape Contractors of America, Inc. (ALCA).

Brickman was recognized for work involved in landscaping the McDonalds Corporate Headquarters in Oak Brook, Ill.

The award was presented during ALCA's 11th annual meeting and exhibit held in Miami, Fla.

ALCA is a national trade association of over 360 firms dedicated to improving the landscape industry and the environment.

Wins gold medal for performance

J. Jeffrey van Ee, formerly of Arlington Heights and now an electrical engineer with the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's National Environmental Research Center in Las Vegas, Nev. was one of 14 employees of the center who received EPA's Gold Medal Award for exceptional service at a ceremony held recently in Washington, D.C. The Gold Medal Award is the highest honor the agency can confer.

Van Ee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert van Ee, 5 W. Orchard, graduated in 1967 from Arlington High School, and received a B.S. degree in electrical engineering in 1971 from Northwestern University in Evanston.

More new styling approaches than ever

Easy-care aluminum offers beauty, durability, insulation

Today there are more new styling approaches than ever before in the easy-care aluminum products available for exterior beautification.

The reason why aluminum is coming to market in ever-increasing variety, winning widespread recognition among architects, builders, and homeowners alike, is that the ductile yet sturdy metal can be drawn and molded into many, many shapes and forms; impressed with a wide range of attractive surface textures; and finished in a rainbow of colors, either through the anodization process or by applying the desired exterior coating.

Before you "freeze" on your home remodeling plans, you'd do well to "shop" the alternatives in architectural aluminum products now offered by qualified home improvement contractors and building supply merchants.

IN ADDITION to giving you the widest possible selection of styles, colors and textures (a mix-and-or-match just right for your home and family), aluminum provides three basic benefits: easy maintenance, durability, more effective insulation.

As far as maintenance is concerned, architectural aluminum products (prime windows, sliding glass doors, storm doors and windows, siding and rainware) are as close as the building industry comes to the ideal of "install and forget."

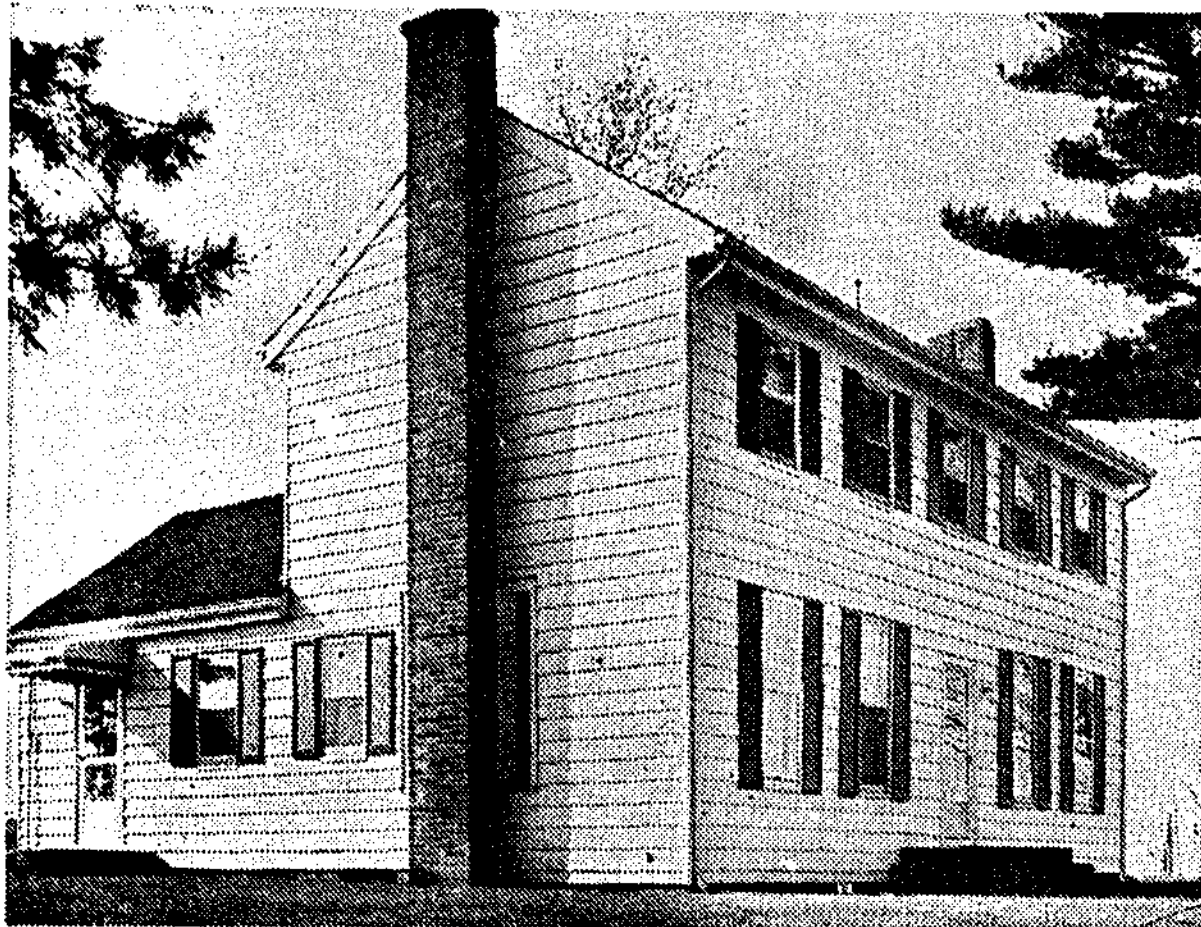

Whatever its finish, texture or color, aluminum cleans easily with water alone or a mild detergent solution followed by rinsing and drying. Over the years, savings in time, maintenance and materials can add up to an impressive total.

Durability is an important property of aluminum. Depending upon the product, lifetimes of 20 and even 30 years are not uncommon. Barring accidental damage (which can injure all building materials), replacement is most often made for the sake of style change alone. Should a color change be wanted, aluminum may readily be painted, repainted or re-enameled.

BECAUSE ALUMINUM is a reflective material and tightly fitted in place when installed, it improves insulation considerably, keeping the home cooler in summer, warmer in winter, helping heating and cooling systems to operate at great efficiency.

For these reasons, aluminum products increase the resale value of a home when it comes time to relocate. A quick tour of new residential construction in your area will confirm that in increasing number new home builders are recognizing the market importance of aluminum exteriors.

The best aluminum prime windows and sliding glass doors and aluminum combination storm windows and doors are easily recognized. They bear the AAMA Quality Certified (QC) label, which signifies that the product conforms to national standards of construction and performance, as established by independent laboratory tests.

As an experienced homeowner, you probably already know how important "prime" windows (the windows built into the structural wall) are to your home life... how often you open or close them. But perhaps you haven't thought of prime windows recently.

A PRIME window controls the amount and kind of light which enters your life; gives you a look-out at the world; and helps your residence breathe, letting in air, releasing excess moisture, admitting or excluding heat, keeping out bad weather.

Because of the strength of aluminum, frames are considerably narrower, making aluminum windows lighter and easier to operate and leaving more space for glass, thus providing more light. The tight seal provided by aluminum windows increases heating and cooling efficiency.

You can choose your aluminum prime windows from eight basic types — awning, casement, double hung and single hung, horizontal, sliding, jalousie, jalousie, projected and vertical sliding.

For maximum insulation, you may wish to consider one of the new "thermally-improved" windows which have been especially designed to reduce inside-outside heat transfer.

With the increasing concern for home security, some manufacturers are beginning to produce forced-entry resistant prime windows. To meet AAMA certification requirements, sash and locks of forced-entry resistant windows must withstand an opening force of 150 lbs.

This does not guarantee that a window is proof against a professional burglar but it does mean that the forced-entry resistant window will slow up an attempted break-in, perhaps discouraging amateur thieves and giving police a little more time to respond to the emergency.

YOUR NEW aluminum sliding glass door will be a gateway to expanded horizons.

Broaden your vista with a sliding glass door between bedroom and balcony, living area or family room and back patio, or you may want to think of a garden kitchen which brings together indoors and outdoors for a new dimension in living.

Thermally-improved sliding glass doors are now available.

These sliding glass doors certified by AAMA to be resistant to forced-entry will withstand an opening force of 300 pounds.

For safety's sake, be sure your new sliding glass door is equipped with safety glazing, as required by the Federal Housing Administration and the laws of many states. All sliding glass doors bearing the AAMA Quality Certified label meet this requirement.

PROPERLY INSTALLED, well-fitted aluminum storm doors and windows can cut heating bills substantially — in many cases by as much as 20 per cent, no small consideration in this day of rising costs. As a matter of fact, the storm window (or door) taken in conjunction with the prime window (or door) constitutes a true "thermally-improved" system.

If you have either central system or window-unit air conditioning, you'll find that the same insulating properties which cut your heating bills in the winter will increase your hot weather comfort — and so you'll probably leave your storm doors and windows on the year around.

New convenience is provided by aluminum combination storm-and-screen doors and windows (some of them self-storing, which means seasonal changes can be made with only a couple of operations).

Aluminum storm windows are available in types and sizes to fit all prime windows.

THE FIVE BASIC types of storm doors are Colonial, even-lite, high-lite, one-lite and self-storing. As in the case of sliding glass doors, storm doors should be equipped with safety glazing.

The AAMA Quality Certified label on an aluminum combination storm-and-screen door or window assures you that sash and frames are of durable easy-care aluminum which requires little or no maintenance; sash open and close smoothly and quietly, easily engaging in lock positions; latches work easily and lock securely; sash forms a tight seal with the frame, cutting drafts and heat loss; the screening is firmly set in place; and the storm sash is of quality construction and appearance.

Easy-care aluminum siding, shutters, soffit, fascia and rainware will give you decades of service, eliminating the time and expense of repainting and tuckpointing every few years. Cleaning requires only water and, for stubborn spots, a mild detergent.

The sliding will enhance your home's insulation. If you wish, you may choose an aluminum siding with insulated backing to reduce heat transfer even more.

BECAUSE properly-installed aluminum siding effectively seals cracks and openings, the home interior is protected from moisture build-up, preventing such annoyances as peeling wallpaper and dampened plaster, and from dust, which reduces housekeeping chores.

Choose from a virtually unlimited selection of colors, surface textures widths.

First step is to decide whether you wish a vertical or horizontal pattern. Vertical siding courses increase a home's apparent height, horizontal patterns apparent width. Then on to widths, textures (from smooth to rough-sawn) and colors to select the precise siding for your home.

Complete your exterior with complementary aluminum shutters, soffit and fascia panels and rain-carrying equipment (gutters and downspouts).

For a list of AAMA members, contact the Architectural Aluminum Manufacturers Association, 410 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago, 50511.

MEMORIAL DAY

We Pay Tribute to Those Who Gave Their Lives . .

We pause to remember . . . with gratitude and respect . . . the men throughout this nation's history who answered the call to arms and lost their own lives so that we can live in freedom and dignity. Today we count our blessings; we also consider their cost. Nobody ever said it better than Abraham Lincoln: "... from these honored dead we take increased devotion . . . to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion." Today let's pledge ourselves to just and lasting peace.

by LEA TONKIN
CHANGING CRITERIA for land use and development is the topic of an upcoming Midwest conference sponsored by the Chicago Association of Commerce and Industry. Comprehensive regional planning; changing policies of the federal government and the effect on land use; and land development as an issue in environmental control are among the topics to be discussed at the session May 31. The meeting will begin at 9 a.m. and continue until 4:30 p.m. at the Pick Congress Hotel, Chicago. Additional information is available from the industrial development division of the association in Chicago.

ALL AMERICAN Life & Financial Corp. established new sales and earnings records in the first quarter. John W. Gardiner, president, told about 400 stockholders at the recent annual meeting in Chicago. Net earnings rose 71.2 per cent to $2,188,333, or 36 cents a share, from $1,279,003 a year earlier. Revenue was up 17.1 per cent to $26,109,932 from $22,292,781. First quarter assets increased to over $339 million, a gain of 12.6 per cent as compared to March 31, 1972. Stockholders' equity increased to $30,145,046, a gain of 11.4 per cent.

Gardiner said, "The earnings progression announced in the fall of 1972 got underway with a 25 per cent earnings increase in the third quarter, a 65 per cent increase in the fourth quarter, and 71 per cent in the first quarter." The company anticipates an 18 to 20 per cent increase in earnings for 1973.

All American Life is a financial holding company whose subsidiaries consist of All American Life & Casualty Co., General United Life Insurance Co., Imperial Industries, Wilshire Insurance Co., O'Hare International Bank (N.A.) and All American Leisure Properties, Inc.

The board of directors recently elected Gardiner as president and chief executive officer. He will retain his position as president and chief executive officer of All American Life & Casualty Co. E. E. Dillard will continue as chairman and will serve the corporation and its several subsidiaries in a consultant capacity and such other duties as assigned to him by the board.

GENERAL FIRE Extinguisher Corp. signed a lease to occupy 20,270 square feet of space in an industrial building in Lehigh Industrial Park, Wheeling. The announcement was made by Hawthorn Realty Group. The new General Fire Extinguisher Corp. facility at 173 Carpenter Road is to be used for manufacturing and warehouse operations.

GENERAL MOTORS Speakers Bureau is providing programs for civic and school groups as well as business and fraternal organizations. With so much concern about air pollution, we decided to make a special program on the role of the automobile in the air pollution problem our foremost presentation, said M. A. Hartwig, chairman of the Chicago speakers bureau. Organizations wishing to schedule GM speakers may call Hartwig at General Motors Public Relations, 500 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60611. Other topics include industrial pollution, control, auto safety, and minority affairs.

VALLEY BANK and Trust Co. is the new name for the State Bank of South Elgin. Stockholders approved the name change at a recent annual meeting, as reported by Delvin Johnston, president. He is former executive vice president of the First Bank and Trust Co. of Palatine. Palatine resident, Richard Shorter is vice president and cashier. Among the bank directors reelected at the meeting are two Arlington Heights residents, William J. Hennig and Jack B. Whisler.

COMPLETION IS slated for August on the addition to the McDonald's Corp's Hamburger University in Elk Grove township. Hamburger U. is the training facility for licensees and managers of more than 2,300 restaurants in the chain. The original building of 13,282 square feet was opened at 2010 Higgins Road in 1968. The addition will increase the school facilities by 16,810 square feet. Donald Breikreutz, dean of the school, said the addition will enable Hamburger U. to train two classes simultaneously with smaller class sizes.

JAMES R. FANCHER, systems environmental engineer for Commonwealth Edison Co., will be the guest speaker at tomorrow's meeting of the Northwest Suburban Manufacturers Association. Fancher supervises the utility's environmental research activities and relationships with environmental regulatory bodies. The meeting luncheon at the River Forest Country Club, Elmhurst, will begin with cocktails at 11:30, followed by luncheon and the speech.

THIRTY-FOUR chemical facilities in Illinois are among 604 throughout the United States and Canada that have been awarded certificates of achievement by the Manufacturing Chemists Association (MCA) for having completed 1972 operations without a disabling injury. William J. Driver, president of MCA, noted that the safety performances of these chemical facilities contribute significantly to the chemical industry's overall safety record. Chevron Chemical Co., Orho Garden and Home Region in Des Plaines are among the facilities cited for safety achievements.

Do-it-yourself

It's time to condition your air conditioner . . .

Spring is the time to see that you are ready to cope with summer's indoors. If you have an air conditioner, get it set for summer use now. Take electric fans out of storage and make certain they are in condition to do you some good.

Fan blades and guards should be dusted and wiped clean. Look for oiling points on the motor and lubricate with light machine oil.

Take a good look at the electric cord for breaks in the insulation, frayed areas or a damaged plug.

Replace the plug if it is damaged. If the cord is damaged near the plug end, trim off the damaged part and attach the plug to the remaining wire if this does not leave too short a cord.

IF THE whole cord is in bad shape or has a break near the fan, replace it. With a little searching you can see where the cord enters the fan. Generally a base plate that is removable, or some similar arrangement, covers the place where the wire is connected.

Disconnect the old wire and connect new wiring in the same manner. The cord may be fastened to wires inside the unit, held in place with solderless connectors. Hang on to these and use them again.

Window air conditioners that have been in storage should not be put directly back into service. Find a level surface and place the unit upright and leave it there for 24 hours. This will allow the oil in the sealed system to drain back into the compressor.

Dust and vacuum all surfaces. Outlets and inlets for air should get special attention. Soap and water are O.K. on plastic surfaces. Rusted areas on metal surfaces should be sanded and painted.

GIVE THE unit a test run while it is still sitting on the floor. Pick a day when the temperature outside is in the mid-60s and in the 70s inside.

Run the unit for about 10 minutes. See how it cools. Listen for noises that are out of the ordinary. If it doesn't cool or if there are suspicious sounds, have the unit checked by a professional.

Oil the unit as outlined in the manufacturer's instructions. Put in a new filter if it is replaceable. Clean it if it is the permanent type.

Units left in the window all winter will need uncovering and oiling and a new filter. Check for rust spots.

IF YOU have hung on to the instructions and parts list that came with the unit, you will have no trouble with routine maintenance. Small parts that need replacing should be ordered now.

Check the window installation. You may need new rubber or sponge stripping that keeps the opening sealed.

Plug the unit into the outlet which will be used this summer. You may have added items to the circuit since you last used the air conditioner. See if the unit blows a fuse when you start it up. If so try to rearrange electrical items so that they will be distributed over other circuits. Don't wait until summer to find out you are going to have trouble.

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

YOU MAY NEED NEW STRIP SEALS.

Senger to head arrangements for data show

Richard Senger, 2 N. School, Mount Prospect, has been named chairman of the arrangements committee for the 1973 International Data Processing Conference & Business Exposition to be held in Chicago's Conrad Hilton Hotel June 25-29.

Sponsored by Data Processing Management Association (DPMA), the conference is the association's biggest annual educational program, and attracts data processing executives from all parts of the U.S. and from several other countries. DPMA is the largest professional organization serving the information processing management community.

Senger, manager of systems installation, Field Enterprises Educational Corp., Chicago, is an active member of the Chicago Chapter of DPMA, his last post in 1972 being vice president of member services.

He attended Wright City College, receiving an associate of arts degree, and majored in business administration at Roosevelt University.

Baird & Warner continues sales gains in April

Baird & Warner, Chicago-area real estate firm, posted sales increases in April to continue its 1973 string of year to year monthly gains.

Dollar volume soared from $14,107,681 last year to $20,057,690 for the current month, an increase of 42 per cent. Unit volume also climbed substantially. Sales participations rose from 318 in April 1972 to 390, a gain in unit volume of 22.6 per cent.

Robert G. Walters, vice president and general sales manager, residential division, disclosed the sale of 357 residential properties valued at $17,589,621 for the month.

According to Maco Cole, vice president and sales manager, commercial investment, and industrial division, his division recorded a unit volume of 33 properties and a dollar volume of $2,468,069.

Cumulative results for the first four months of the year are also running well ahead of the 118-year-old firm's record pace of 1972. Unit production is up 18 per cent from 1,250 to 1,477 sales for a gain of 277 sales. Dollar volume has moved from $63,215,145 to $83,849,963 for the four month period, an increase of $20,634,145 or approximately 33 per cent.

THIS QUIET STREET of Colonial "homes" is actually a commercial center of offices and shops. Their residential design allows them to live happily with a neighboring community of single-family houses. Architectural compatibility was achieved through extensive use of stock windows, shutters and panel doors of ponderosa pine in a variety of authentic Colonial styles.

Compatible design lets homes live harmoniously with shops

Can single-family homes live happily with shops and professional buildings?

They can if the commercial structures are architecturally compatible with the residences.

This good neighbor policy is being put to increasing — and successful — use, particularly in suburban areas. A recent example is North Country Village on New York's Long Island, where a 1.25 million dollar shopping plaza shares a rustic wooded site with Colonial-style single-family homes.

The builder, V. Sesti and Sons, assigned the same architect to the commercial and residential jobs to assure overall design harmony.

As a result, it's not immediately obvious that the shops and offices are what they are. Architecturally, they could be traditionally-styled homes. Even close up — where signs and window displays show their mercantile nature — the buildings retain an old-world charm. They were constructed as a long street of one- and two-story attached, village "shoppes" — and, as such, seem a natural adjunct to the surrounding houses.

BUILDER PAT SESTI says that choice of materials was as important as design in setting the village "tone." Wood was chosen for its compatibility with Colonial construction and with the rustic site.

Use of stock woodwork — ponderosa pine windows, shutters and panel doors — made it stylistically easy and financially feasible to instill an authentic architectural flavor throughout. Many of the wood design features — double-hung windows, divided lights, louver shutters, six-panel Cross-and-Bible and "farmstead" crossbuck panel doors — originated in Colonial days, and are considered de rigueur for realistic reproductions.

Within the overall styling, village buildings were individualized. Setbacks were staggered to avoid a row look. Different roof treatments were used; siding materials varied; and windows and doors installed in a variety of detailed surrounds, dormers and recessed openings.

Brick and flagstone walks, shrubs and newly-planted trees add a final homey, front-yard touch.

Report interest increasing in rural property buying

The burgeoning demand for second and leisure homes has created a fast growing demand for rural real estate.

"Individual investors are avidly searching for buying opportunities in the farming areas of the Northeast and Florida and in the eastern and middle atlantic dairy lands," observes Durand A. Holladay, managing trustee of Continental Mortgage Investors, Boston.

"Small farms are especially in great demand. While more and more urbanites are buying rural acreage as second and leisure home sites, many purchase farms with the idea of retiring there," Holladay says.

"The direct purchase of rural land may be a potentially valuable investment for the individual who is willing to investigate and make a thorough study before buying."

When shopping for rural property, Holladay advises, it is wise to talk with local people who are familiar with area property values, tax structures, highway systems — existing and planned — and land use trends.

"A LOCAL BANKER, lawyer or real estate broker is generally the most readily available source for such information. Additionally, a buyer who is considering any farming operations of his own, even on a limited scale, should meet the county agriculture agent.

"These specialists are familiar with conditions of the land in their areas; they can give useful advice on various crops that are best suited for individual farms, as well as any problems that might be encountered," Holladay points out.

Before buying improved country property, Holladay suggests, the prospective purchaser should check on:

- The soundness of all buildings.
- The water supply.
- The sewage disposal system.
- Zoning laws and any existing restrictions.

"It is also wise to have the land surveyed and a title search made to avoid any possible pitfalls.

"Prices are continuing to rise and the supply of available rural land is declining. There are, however, still many good buys available to the investor who is willing to ask questions — and get the answers — before purchasing," Holladay concludes.

Classes offered in real estate

With interest and activity in real estate at a high peak and with more difficult examinations being given by the State of Illinois Department of Registration and Education for real estate licenses, Robert W. Starck & Co., Realtors has announced a new three week course of instruction that will be open to men and women interested in obtaining a real estate salesman's license.

Instructor for the course will be Andrew P. Starck, Treasurer and general counsel for the company and a licensed attorney in Illinois and Texas. Classes will be held evenings at 209 S. Main St., Mt. Prospect, and will commence Tuesday, May 29.

They will be held twice a week for a three-week period. Registration fee will be $35.00 and will include the cost of textbooks and sample examination questions. Interested parties should call 255-2000 to register for the course, prior to May 29.

Old house versus new house-buying

What are the advantages of buying an old house and remodeling it, rather than buying a new house? First of all, if you're handy, you likely can save money.

If it's a pre-World War II house, the rooms will be larger than more recent construction. You likely can move in immediately, and after living in the house for awhile you'll know exactly what has to be done to suit you.

The yard and garden of an older home usually are established, allowing you to plan an outdoor living deck, garden structure or other amenities at your leisure.

It's usually cheaper to convert an attic, basement or garage to new living space than add new construction, and an older home offers one or all of these expansion possibilities.

If the neighborhood is established but not declining, if the house is not too large for easy future resale, if it's structurally sound, and if you're ambitious and handy with tools, then remodeling an older home could be your best bet.

GTE employe gets 2 new patents

July Fourth coloring contest set for kids

A "July 4th Coloring Contest," open to children up to 11 years of age, has been announced by the Gallery of Homes Northwest realty company in Arlington Heights.

Prizes include choice of boy's or girl's bicycle in each of three age groups, with runner-up prizes of popular black light kits in each group. Judging of entries will be handled by a panel of local artists and art dealers.

The contest will begin on June 1; deadline for all entries will be Monday, July 2. Announcement of winners will be made shortly after the July 4 holiday.

To compete in the contest, children, accompanied by at least one parent, must pick up a copy of the Gallery Coloring Book from the office at 314 S. Arlington Heights Road and register his or her name. The child may select any one page in the booklet and color it to the best of his ability, using crayons, colored pencils or water colors.

The child's name and age must then be lettered on the back of the booklet, and the booklet must be delivered to the Gallery office before the close of the contest.

According to Gallery president, W. Richard Impey, the contest will be publicized through newspaper advertisements, posters and fliers beginning next week.

70,000-square-ft. building leased

Podolsky and Associates has leased a 70,000-square-foot building at 2001 Landmiller Rd., Elk Grove, to two companies. The original building design was flexible so it could be leased to either one or two tenants.

Reynolds and Reynolds Company leased 48,000 square feet. Their main office is in Dayton, Ohio, and the Elk Grove Village location is the Midwest regional sales office. The company is involved in sales of computer systems, business forms and services. This building will also serve as their distribution and warehouse center.

Oxy-Dry Sprayer Corporation leased 24,000 square feet of this building. Oxy-Dry will use its new facility for the manufacturing and distribution of sprayer equipment and spray powder for use in the graphics art industry.

National award to Schaumburg firm

Motorola's Communications Division, headquartered at 1301 E. Algonquin Rd., Schaumburg, received an award recently from the White House for outstanding contribution to environmental improvement.

The award to Motorola was in recognition for the establishment of a 3,600 square foot garden atrium at the company's Schaumburg facility. The atrium, overlooked by the company's cafeteria, is open to employees during the lunch period for recreation or lunch.

THE ARLINGTON GALLERY OF HOMES NORTHWEST

WHERE THE BUSINESS OF REAL ESTATE IS A FINE ART

IT PAYS IN MANY WAYS TO "GO WITH THE GALLERY!"

1 19 YEARS OF PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE

Why take second best when you can go first class with the Gallery? In-depth experience with all aspects of real estate sales in the northwest suburbs... highly-trained personnel... and thorough knowledge of real estate and the money market assures trouble-free handling of all of your home buying and selling transactions. As a member in good standing of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, the Arlington Gallery takes pride in its strict adherence to the highest standards of marketing ethics in the field. When you select the Gallery, you know you are dealing with an established business of unquestioned integrity.

2 FAST TURNOVER FOR MOVES IN THIS AREA

Whether you're buying a new home or selling your present home—or both—going with the Gallery means action! With its many exclusive listings and access to hundreds more through the M.A.P. Multiple Listing Service, the Gallery's expert counselors can help you find the right home for your family without aimless searching. Browse among the choice homes included in our illuminated "picture gallery," or examine other listings pre-selected to suit your exact needs.

When selling your home, heavy advertising—locally and in the national Glimpses from the Gallery magazine—gives it maximum exposure here and in 44 other states. The same professional follow-up by Gallery counselors then helps find the right buyer and close the sale as near the appraised price as possible.

3 INTERNATIONAL RELOCATION SERVICE

The Arlington Gallery is part of a network of more than 1,100 Gallery offices across the U.S. and in Canada, Mexico and the Virgin Islands. When you move calls for relocating out of state, the Gallery employs a "hot line" service to obtain from the new area detailed maps, descriptions of communities and their resources and tax rates, and listings of available homes in your style and price range... all before you go there. Select only those homes you want to see from illustrated descriptive sheets. A Gallery representative will then meet you at your destination... give you "red carpet" treatment... even arrange overnight accommodations... and take you directly to just those homes you want to see. You save hours and days of valuable time, and complete all negotiations quickly and easily.

4 EQUITY ADVANCE AND GUARANTEE PLAN

Lets you purchase a new home now... even though your present home has not been sold!

The Arlington Gallery's Equity Advance and Guaranteed Sale Plan provides special advantages to both buyers and sellers. No longer is it necessary to delay purchasing a new home until you sell the one you now own. No longer is it necessary, if you are transferred to a new community, to be separated from your family for months at a time until a new mortgage agreement can be arranged. Under the Gallery Plan, up to 80 percent of the money you expect in equity from the sale of your home can be released to you now! Ask your Gallery counselor about this unusual plan.

New clubhouse opens doors at Carson Inn Nordic Hills

Less than a year after the doors were opened to the 222-unit twin towers motel at Carson Inn Nordic Hills, the resort complex in suburban Itasca is expanding.

Ground has been broken for an additional clubhouse of 5,000 square feet to house two large meeting rooms and banquet facilities. Opening date for the new addition, developed by Carson International Inc., an enterprise of Carson Pike Scott & Co., is set for Oct. 1.

According to Martin T. Wellman, vice president, planning and development for Carson International, the new facility will match the architectural style of the existing clubhouse, described as "Nordic rustic." It is designed so that rooms can be sectioned off to provide two or four large rooms for dinner dances, banquets, or to accommodate classroom or theatre style seating on either level to handle a total of 500 people.

In announcing the new addition, James Chapman, president of Carson International said, "Coupled with the existing clubhouse facilities that include 11 meeting rooms for groups up to 600, plus our restaurants, lounges, indoor and outdoor pools, and an 18-hole golf course, Carson Inn Nordic Hills is fully equipped to handle the vacation minded, weekend visitors, or moderate sized business meetings and sales conventions with equal ease."

Architect for the new addition is Arthur Swanson and Associates, Rosemont, and general contractor is Cornell & Fornell, Des Plaines.

Nordic Hills opened as a private country club in 1928, became a public golf course in 1940, and was purchased by Carson International in 1969. The twin-hexagonal towers that form the 222-room motel facility were opened to the public on June 1, 1972.

A NEW CLUBHOUSE addition, shown on the right, at Carson Inn Nordic Hills is designed to match the existing facility. The two-level facility will house banquet and meeting rooms.

'Fourplex' boom sweeping housing industry: Goss

New products are changing the complexion of America's housing industry and putting smiles on the faces of builders and buyers.

"For example, the fourplex — four homes under one roof — is now considered one of the top chargers in the history of housing," says Jackson W. Goss, president of Investors Mortgage Insurance Co., Boston.

Investors Mortgage works with lenders, such as savings and loan associations, mutual savings banks and commercial banks, by insuring the top 20-25 per cent of high-ratio conventional mortgage loans.

"The typical fourplex costs a relatively low $18,300 compared with more than $44,000 for a single-family detached home — yet it offers the same financial benefits of home ownership," Goss points out.

Each unit usually has two bedrooms, a den or living room with fireplace, kitchen and dining areas and one or more baths.

"And amenities such as swimming pools, indoor gyms and even golf courses often found in new fourplex developments are pluses usually not available to other home buyers without considerable extra expense," Goss says.

He notes that a recent survey found the typical fourplex buyer:

- Is 25 years old, compared with more than 34 years for buyers of larger homes.

- Earns roughly $10,000 a year, compared with $19,000 for the buyer of the average larger detached home.

- Is more likely to be single—more than 47 per cent are unmarried, many of them women, compared with just 4 per cent of other home buyers.

- Is buying his first home — more than 80 per cent of all fourplex purchasers move from rented homes or apartments, while only 22.3 per cent of other buyers leave rented dwellings.

"The fourplex owner usually is young, has a moderate income and more apt to be a 'swinger,'" Goss notes. "He wants a small home — with comfort and convenience — not a lot of maintenance and responsibility to tie him down."

Keep your floors hot

Homes which are equipped with hydronic (modern hot water) baseboard heating panels never suffer from cold floors, even if they are built on slab foundations, reports the National Better Heating-Cooling Council. That's because hydronic baseboard heating emits radiant heat which warms the floors.

Don't shop for a house like you were 'fishing'

Most people, according to the National Better Heating-Cooling Council, shop for new homes as though they were fish. As you know, most fish can adjust to varying temperatures. In fact some fish can live frozen in a pool of ice and come out all right when the ice melts.

When people shop for new homes, they rarely, if ever, check the heating system although heating is needed at least nine months of the year in most parts of the country. Perhaps, it's because most localities have codes which call for minimum standards.

The key word, warns the Council, is 'minimum.' Unless it is equipped with a balanced heating system, your new house may be overheated and stuffy, or underheated and drafty. In either case, it won't be the house of your dreams.

From studies made by the University of Illinois, the Council recommends the installation of hydronic (modern hot water) heating with baseboard heating panels installed on all the outside walls, especially under windows.

Not only will the baseboard set up a curtain of warmth, but the difference in temperature between floor and ceiling will be only two or three degrees. Everywhere is comfortable.

Here's how to tell when your home needs a new roof

What part of your home gives you the most protection for the least amount of money? According to building experts, it's your roof.

Today's roofing shingles come with guarantees ranging from 10 to 25 years. At current average prices, that means that your roof will protect you from the elements for less than $30 per year, and will remain virtually maintenance-free while doing it.

It's not surprising, then, that roofers are experiencing a great demand for their services. One of the chief reasons is that the millions of homes built during the housing boom of the late forties and early fifties now have roofs which have begun to exceed their average 15-year life expectancy.

Determining whether your home needs a new roof is not simply a matter of looking for leaks in your attic during a rainstorm. Unseen leaks, which permit moisture to seep down through the roof structure and into the walls can cause serious damage to your home before you're aware that anything is wrong.

For this reason, experts at Certain-teed Products Corp., a residential roofing manufacturer, recommend that you have a qualified roofer inspect your roof every two or three years — especially if your present roof surface is more than 15 years old.

YOU CAN, of course, make preliminary checks on your own. Warped, cracked, or missing shingles are obvious signs that surface repairs are in order. They may point to more serious damage underneath. Moisture in the walls, flaking plaster inside or peeling paint outside might also indicate that your roof is no longer doing its job.

If you suspect trouble, have a qualified roofer inspect your home. The amount of damage a faulty roof can do to your home makes the project too risky to leave to the judgment of the average do-it-yourselfer.

In recent years, the roofing industry has developed new types of shingles that are longer-lasting, more fire-resistant, and more attractive than ever before. Whatever style you select, however, chances are that it will be an asphalt shingle. Asphalt shingles cover 75 per cent of the nation's homes, and their popularity grows every year.

The basic asphalt shingle consists of a heavy sheet of felt which is saturated with asphalt, then, when dried, is given another coating of asphalt and a covering of colored mineral granules. The granules help the shingle retain its life-giving asphalt saturant, and allow manufacturers to offer a wide variety of roofing colors.

THE BASIC advantages of asphalt shingles are durability, fire-resistance, ease of repair, freedom from maintenance, a wide range of colors, and perhaps of greatest importance to the average homeowner, reasonable cost. Consequently, asphalt shingles traditionally outsell all other varieties by a wide margin.

The others include wood shingles, asbestos shingles, slate, tile and various metal shingles. All are more expensive than asphalt, and have other drawbacks, depending on conditions in your area.

Chances are, then, that you and your roofer or dealer will choose asphalt shingles for your roof. If so, there are still other options that you should consider. These include the weight of the shingle, its sealing ability, its texture, and its color.

Roofers measure the weight of shingles in "squares." A "square" equals 100 square feet. Thus, a "240 pound shingle" means that a ten-foot by ten-foot area of that particular variety weighs 240 pounds.

Asphalt shingles available today weigh from about 165 to 380 pounds per square. As a general rule, the heavier shingles offer more years of protection and cost more. This does not mean, however, that lighter weight shingles cannot be ideal for your roofing needs.

ONE OF THE newest developments in roofing is a fiber glass shingle. It offers superior fire-protection qualities, and since it is manufactured of an inorganic base material that is affected less by harsh weather conditions, is extremely long-lasting, despite its lighter weight. Several leading manufacturers offer fiber glass shingles.

Many shingles are made in extra thicknesses and weights for greater eye appeal and protection. If you desire a roof of these heavier shingles, your roofer should check the strength of your roof "deck" (the surface, usually plywood sheets, upon which the shingles are laid) to be certain that it can support the weight.

The way in which shingles are sealed together on a roof, or mounted in interlocking patterns is another important factor in your choice of shingles. Some shingles have heat-activated adhesive strips which seal each row of shingles to the row beneath, to help prevent lifting and breaking in high wind conditions.

Other shingles are designed with special tabs that are interwoven during installation to form, in effect, a one-piece roof. The trend is definitely to the more popular self-sealing variety. If your home is likely to be exposed to high winds, you'd be wise to consider this type shingle for your roof.

THE TEXTURE of shingles is becoming more important to today's style-conscious homeowners. Many people prefer the sculptured appearance of wood shingles (or "shakes"), yet they don't wish to give up the advantages and more moderate cost of asphalt shingles.

To satisfy these preferences, manufacturers offer shingles that simulate the texture and color of wood shakes. They are generally heavier and more expensive than regular asphalt shingles, but they have become popular among homeowners who wish a more distinctive roof design on their home.

As for color, modern decorating principles have come to the world of asphalt shingles. Contemporary styles come in white, black, and every color in between, including the popular new earth-tone hues, and may be used to complement the rest of your home's exterior design.

Dark roofs tend to make homes appear smaller, while light ones seem to add size even to a modest bungalow. White or very light colors also reflect heat away from your home in the summer.

With all these options in mind, and with the help of your building materials dealer or roofing contractor, you should be able to choose an asphalt shingle perfect for your home.

THIS ROOF is typical of the trend toward heavyweight, textured shingles. The "woodgrained" styling, earth-tone colors and three-dimensional design simulate the appearance of more costly wood shakes and they give greater fire protection.

McDonnell heads credit association

A resident of Arlington Heights, Thomas J. McDonnell, general credit manager, DeSoto, Inc., Des Plaines, was elected a director of The Chicago-Midwest Credit Management Association at its 77th annual meeting held recently at the Bismarck Hotel, Chicago.

Membership in the association is composed of more than 1,950 credit and financial executives in manufacturing, wholesaling and banking institutions in the Greater Chicago and Northern Illinois area. It is affiliated with the 36,000

He received the executive award after completing a three-year course at the graduate school of credit and financial management at Dartmouth and is currently serving as president of the Chapter of the GSCFM Alumni.

Home ownership: sure savings source

If a family has trouble saving money, the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors advises that they make their biggest lifetime expenditure and buy real estate.

"It's a built-in savings account when savings are hardest to put aside," notes Arthur W. Pipenhagen, president of the board.

Realtors cite from their experience that house payments are one "sure source of savings" that are more systematically maintained than any other form of payment. "There are always new shoes to buy, dentist bills to pay, and tires needed on the car," said Pipenhagen. "But in the minds of most families, these expenses come after the house payment."

"The increase in value of the average home coupled with income tax deductions provide a compelling reason for families to invest their money in home ownership," said Pipenhagen.

TO FURTHER illustrate the sound economics of owning a home, the board provides the following example of owning a "typical" home — a $25,000 house financed under a 30-year Federal Housing Administration loan at a 7½ per cent interest rate — and the money saved in one year.

Assuming FHA appraises the house as worth every cent, a family may receive maximum financing of $23,050, which amounts to a $1,950 down payment plus closing costs. The FHA monthly payment, including mortgage insurance, would come to $178.09. To that would be added taxes and insurance of roughly $50.00. Total payments, according to the example, would amount to $228.09 a month.

Of that total payment, $20.26 will actually go toward paying off the loan. While it does not sound like much, the amount going into equity increases by 11 cents each month. By the year's end, it totals $244.54.

Increases in property values during the past several years have averaged from 3 to 5 per cent annually, sometimes more. Based on a conservative 3 per cent increase in value, the home has appreciated by $750.00 in one year.

"Add that to the $244.54, and the cash value of the investment has risen to $994.54," explains Pipenhagen. "And there's more. Taxes and interest are deductible from income tax."

AN ARBITRARY but reasonable figure for taxes can be set at $500. Interest per month is $144.06, reducing each month by 11 cents as the balance goes down. That comes to $1,727.40. Assuming a family is in the 20 per cent tax bracket, which is average, the refund from that income tax deduction would be 20 per cent of $1,727.40, or $345.48.

The actual savings is $111.67 per month. Deducted from a monthly payment of $228.09, and it's actually costing $116.42 per month to live in a $25,000 house.

If the same money went into an investment for a 5 per cent return, it would earn only $120 in a year, taxed as income," said Pipenhagen. "Each month and each year, the built-in savings account mounts, with an unbeatable 'interest rate' of increases in property values coupled with income tax deductions."

ROOF TROUBLE SPOTS may need checking now, especially after winter rains and winds. If you can't inspect personally, it would be wise to have a professional to check these for you, to avoid costly damage in future.

Need your roof checked?

You don't have to get up on a roof to check its condition, if you follow the practice of men who inspect homes for a living.

John J. Heyn, president and founder of National Home Inspection Service, Inc., of Washington, D. C., says inspectors employed and trained by his firm carry field glasses and flashlights when they make field inspections.

NHIS offers its services to homebuyers who want the reassurance of a structural inspection before making an offer or closing a deal for a new or used home. For a fee, inspectors check the house from roof to basement and furnish buyers with a written report, including items such as the roof that may have to be repaired or replaced.

NHIS INSPECTORS use field glasses to check the roof from ground level. The flashlight is used to peer around dark corners of the attic, where telltale water stains may warn of a roof leak.

"Climbing up on the roof is not only dangerous, but can damage the roof," says Heyn. He offers these hints in estimating the condition of the roof:

- The heavier and thicker the roof covering, the better the quality. For example, a heavyweight asphalt shingle roof is designed to last 25 years or more, whereas standard shingles have a 15-year life expectancy.

- From the ground, look for cracks, blistered surfaces, curled or missing shingles. Granules of a new roof have luster, whereas a dull, flat or faded color is a sign of aging.

- Check base of downspouts for excess granule deposits. Ceramically-coated mineral granules protect asphalt shingles from the sun's drying rays and provide the shingles with fire resistance. Loss of granules accelerates the aging process.

Dominion's recreation complex is a place for you and your neighbors to gather and enjoy your leisure time to the fullest.

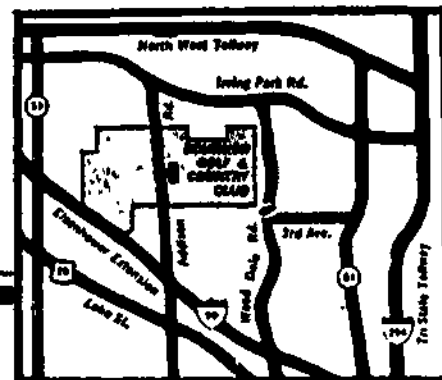

The Incomparable Dominion Golf and Country Club is a private club with charter golf or social membership offered to Dominion homeowners. The elegantly appointed three million dollar country club includes a full array of facilities for dining, hosting social activities or just relaxing in the lounge, clubroom or saunas. The cost of operating and maintaining the club is not a part of your monthly condominium charge.

Only one word can describe the way of life at Dominion Golf & Country Club: incomparable.

An incomparable 18-hole championship golf course surrounds Plaza One, for the exclusive use of Dominion Golf and Country Club members. It is designed to be a challenging test of golf for the low-handicapper, as well as an enjoyable course for the average weekend golfer. In addition, it provides magnificent vistas from the adjacent patios and balconies of Plaza One's high-rise homes and plaza homes.

Models located in the Clubhouse of Dominion Golf and Country Club, from 10:00 A.M. until 6:00 P.M., or by appointment. Take Lake Street to Addison Road in Wood Dale, then North on Addison to the Dominion Clubhouse. Phone: 768-8500.

Realtors form speaker bureau

The formation of a speakers' bureau whose members discuss a variety of subjects before Northwest suburban organizations has been announced by Robert A. Kolo, president of Kolo Real Estate Ltd.

"We believe there are many people who wish to learn more about buying and selling their homes, the legal details involved and the many aspects of real estate sales," Kolo said. "That is why we established the speakers' bureau."

The speakers' bureau includes attorneys as well as real estate specialists. Currently, hundreds of organizations are being notified.

Among the subjects to be covered are "How to Make Your Home More Marketable When It's Time to Sell It," "How to Shop for a Mortgage," "What to Look for When Buying a Home," "Women in Real Estate," and "Income Investment in Real Estate."

Additional information may be obtained by calling Rosemary Bonaguidi, 394-0900.

Boggs, for the past six years manager, exchange engineering department, joined the communications manufacturing company in 1958 as an exchange engineer. Two years later, he was named supervisor of the department.

He studied at Austin High School, Chicago, and East Leyden High School, and at Elmhurst College.

He has long been active in scouting in his home community, serving as assistant cubmaster, and as treasurer for the Parent-Teacher League of Immanuel Lutheran School.

Applies for patent for phone system

Jack W. Taugner, 150-D Northwest Hwy., Des Plaines, of the switching laboratories of GTE Automatic Electric, Northlake, has applied for a United States patent.

Taugner, manager, Cross Point Tandem development, is a co-inventor of a technique for automatic distribution of calls in a telephone system to equalize the loads among operators and minimize the effects of load fluctuation.

Breitenbach joins 'million dollar' club

Edward J. Breitenbach of Lincolnshire, general agent for American United Life Insurance Co. in Des Plaines, has met the requirements for a qualifying member of the Million Dollar Round Table, the insurance industry's top sales organization.

MDRT is an independent, international association of life insurance agents.

Banker completes lending short course

John J. Lynch Jr., assistant cashier of Palatine National Bank, Palatine, recently completed a two-week course at the National Commercial Lending School at the University of Oklahoma in Norman.

The school is sponsored by the Commercial Lending Division of the American Bankers Association. Some 250 bankers attended the school to take a variety of specialized courses to improve their ability in lending to business.

Security systems firm leases headquarters

The Consumer Security Systems Division of Duncan Industry, a division of Qonaar Corp., has recently leased a 5,800-square foot building at 100 Lively Blvd., Elk Grove Village, Ill., from Peter Chelostopoulos. The building will house the headquarters of the Consumer Security Systems Division of Duncan Industry.

V. P. Nicholas

Service station course completed

V. P. Nicholas of Chicago, the new Standard Oil dealer at 68 and 53 in Palatine, recently received a diploma from the oil industry's most comprehensive course in service station operation.

A three-week course, it is conducted at a specially equipped training center operated by the Standard Oil Division of Amoco Oil Company in LaGrange.

Nicholas is a graduate of Valparaiso High School, and attended Indiana, Northwestern, and Loyola universities.

Brentwood Industries buys new building

Nardi and Company, Chicago-based industrial realtors, has announced the sale of the building at 2200 Devon St., Elk Grove Village, to Brentwood Industries, a California-based manufacturer of women's apparel and accessories.

The 33,000 square foot building on a 120,000 square foot site will be used as office, warehouse and distribution center for Brentwood Industries' Midwest operations. Features of the one-story building include 3,500 square feet of air conditioned office space, two exterior truck level docks, 30 by 40-foot bays, full sprinkler and extensive landscaping.

Samuel Meyerhoff, president of Brentwood, stated the reason for the move was consolidation of Midwest operations and expressed pleasure at the suitability of the facilities and location. Brentwood Industries makes and distributes jewelry, handbags, wigs and other women's accessory and apparel items.

Adolphus qualifies for 'round table'

Philip W. Adolphus, 2203 Theda Ln., Palatine, an agent for New York Life Insurance Co., has completed all the requirements to be certified as a qualifying member of the 1973 Million Dollar Round Table, according to general manager Eddie J. Hamilton, CLU of the company's Park Ridge general office.

The MDRT is an independent, international association of life insurance agents. Membership reflects a commitment to continuing advanced education to better serve the financial security needs of families, individuals and businesses.

Adolphus joined New York Life in Park Ridge in 1955. He is a member of New York Life's Top Club for leading agents. He has earned the industry's National Quality Award for eight consecutive years, and the National Sales Achievement Award for two years.

TWO EASY STEPS TO REDUCE REPAIR CALLS AND CONSERVE NATURAL GAS

The next time a trusty gas appliance balks, stop! Don't rush to call a repairman; you'll save time and money if you can solve the problem yourself. Make a routine check of automatic controls. Unless you are "programming" an oven meal, be sure the controls are set for manual operation. Select the proper temperature and time for the food you are cooking. Ovens won't bake when they are set on "Keep Warm." Air conditioners won't cool if the thermostat is turned up too high. Furnaces won't heat if they are set too low. To be sure the automatic controls are properly set, check the operating manual that came with your appliance. You'll be surprised at how many little problems can be solved with the aid of the manual.

A public service announcement from the AMERICAN GAS ASSOCIATION

Gallery of Homes adds 5 affiliates

The recent affiliation of five real estate salesmen from various sections of the country with Gallery of Homes, Inc. has increased the membership of the international real estate marketing firm to 405.

W. Richard Impey, president of the Gallery of Homes Northwest in Arlington Heights, an affiliate of the Gallery organization, said the 400-plus member firms operate more than 1,100 offices across the U. S. and in Canada, Mexico and the Virgin Islands. With a total professional sales staff of some 11,000 Gallery members in the aggregate are expected to assist in the transfer of more than $4 billion in residential real estate in 1973.

The five newest members, according to Impey, are representative of the geographic diversity of the 23-year-old Gallery organization. Two are from the Los Angeles area. The others will operate Galleries in Corsicana, Tex.; Oxford, Ohio; and Sacramento, Calif.

Gallery membership is expected to soar to even greater heights during the year, predicts Impey, because of the success of its International Relocation Service and a massive multi-media national promotional campaign now under way.

Headquarters offices of the Gallery of Homes organization are in Chicago and Rochester, N.Y.

Franklin Wells

Schleuning gets sales award from Clark

William Schleuning of Palatine, sales representative for Clark of Chicago-North, in Chicago recently received the top professional salesmanship award from E. J. Sperr, director of marketing for Clark Equipment Co. Industrial Truck Division.

The select Inner Circle award is presented annually to a few salesmen in the Clark field sales organization of over 800 who have displayed outstanding sales leadership over a period of years.

The award originated in 1956 with membership in the highly coveted Inner Circle group presently numbering 43.

Wells named to board of Brinks Inc.

Franklin E. Wells of 250 Lake Blvd., Buffalo Grove, has been elected to the board of directors of Brink's Inc., Chicago.

Wells became executive vice president - international a year ago. Since coming to Brink's in 1957, he has held a number of positions in both sales and operations, including vice president - international operations, general manager of the Chicago region, assistant general manager of the South Atlantic region and assistant director of national accounts.

Schaumburg resident merits top USG award

Willard N. Grummert of Schaumburg, construction sales engineer, United States Gypsum Co., was honored recently through membership in the U.S.G. President's Club.

Members of the group were hosted by U.S.G. president Edward W. Duffy at a two-day meeting, and tour of company headquarters and research facilities in Chicago. The International building materials and industrial products manufacturer annually recognizes top sales performances of the previous year through the President's Club.

Accept no substitutes.

The New Total Environment* concept of condominium planning is really catching on.

With consumers. (You've bought over 300 of our apartment homes to date.) And with our competitors. (At last count, there were nearly a dozen look-alikes around town.)

But no matter how often they imitate Willow Creek, they never duplicate our value.

Nobody, for example, gives you our living space per dollar. Our 1, 2 and 3 bedroom residences contain up to 1,388 sq. ft.; yet they cost you as little as $21/sq. ft. Elsewhere? You can pay up to $28/sq. ft.

Nobody gives you as many facilities near or on the property. We adjoin a 30-acre lake and park. We have a swimming pool and clubhouse. And a shopping center, medical center and office center, too.

Nor does anybody match our location. Palatine is Palatine. And nobody can duplicate its desirability or convenience.

Finally, we show you a finished product, not fancy plans. Visit us and you'll see finished "full-service" buildings, completed community facilities and hundreds of happy owners. So, when you're buying a condominium, accept no substitutes. Buy the original. Willow Creek.

Addison Trail ace fires 3-hitter; St. Viator bows out of tournament

Paul Logan

Cards' ace grew up beating the MSL

ALTHOUGH WEIGHING about 110 pounds and standing only 5-foot-2, Jim Merkel wasn't considered the "97-pound weakling" type.

Still, it would seem to be a pretty small size for a high school freshman playing with a varsity team.

As freshmen go, Jim wasn't real small. But when he was on the tennis courts at Arlington High School with junior and senior sized athletes, it was most noticeable.

"I was kind of scared of them," Jim now recalls of those early days in the 1970 season, "... afraid of them pushing me around."

However, a great equalizer made the big guys respect and accept little Jimmy — a steady two-handed style that could beat most of his varsity teammates.

The rest is history. Briefly, here are some of his more notable prep accomplishments:

- Undeclared both in MSL dual (he was taken three sets just once) and conference meets.

- Conference champion all four years, the final three while playing first singles.
- All-time winner among area varsity competitors with 103 victories starting this week (the Arlington old record was 101).

- Four times a state qualifier, the past three as a district champion.

Jim's career began inauspiciously enough in park district classes when he was around seven. He was interested in just about all sports at that time.

As a seventh grader he was big on baseball. By eighth grade, he was bored with it ("I used to play shortstop but there was just too much standing around...").

Tennis — an almost continuous motion sport — began occupying more and more of his time.

Bob Killians, who was Arlington's sophomore coach before he died several years ago, helped interest Jim in youth tournaments. Merkel's success in those did much to convince him that tennis was his sport. And Killians' influence brought him to Arlington.

He spent very little time on the lower level before being promoted to the varsity when the MSL season began. It was there that he came under the tutelage of Tom Pitchford, the Cardinals' head coach.

"As a freshman, he kind of scared me," Jim now admits. Since Pitchford had the reputation of being a pretty tough disciplinarian as a football coach, his tennis people took the mark, especially the underclassmen who didn't know him very well.

Jim had doubts that he'd make the varsity one wintry spring day when he and his underclassman teammates were told to shovel the snow off the courts. His worries quickly melted away.

He finished that first varsity season with an impressive semifinals victory over Palatine's Paul Burras. Then Jim lost in the district finals to Greg Harris, Arlington's No. 1 player.

Merkel recalled the semifinal match while discussing his role this season as chief cheerleader when his teammates are playing.

"I try to cheer the guys on," he explains. "I know how much it helped me as a freshman in the districts. I never would have made it..."

Over the past four seasons, Jim has grown physically (6-1, 155) and mentally ("I used to have quite a temper..."). Despite all his accomplishments, however, he still isn't satisfied. Besides trying to reach the ultimate goals of a prep — the state team and individual title — he's also had this dream of beating Hinsdale Central in a dual meet.

Hinsdale ruined his latter goal last week. The defending state championship team beat Arlington 4-1. This weekend Jim might get some revenge.

Arlington hosts the state finals Friday and Saturday, the first time the tournament has been outside Champaign. Jim and John Paczkowski will be shooting for the doubles title. The farther they advance, the better chance they'll have of meeting Hinsdale.

Some give the Merkel-Paczowski combination a good shot at going all the way. Jim thinks so, too.

"It's my last chance to prove to myself that I'm a champion," adds Jim, who with his four district qualifying teammates have an outside shot at the state team title.

There never was a doubt in the minds of MSL net opponents about his championship ability. They're just happy to see him moving on to Northern Illinois University — a place where his left-handed serves can't hurt them anymore.

top player in the Arlington Tennis Club.

Defending champion Morlin Schultz, 57-year-old guidance counselor at the Maine high schools, is one of five surviving contenders in the 78-draw men's "C."

In the top bracket he'll meet Bill Schmalz of Des Plaines for the right to meet electronics engineer Ziggy Mednieks of Oak Park. In the bottom bracket Art Schalk of Park Ridge, former Loyola University basketball star, will go against Jim Finley of Wheeling, recently moved from St. Louis.

In the women's "B," Kathy Guerrero of Skokie, an instructor at the Park Ridge YMCA, is awaiting the winner between 1972 runnerup Mary Ostrem of Mount Prospect and Caryllann Mucha of Barrington.

Finalists in the 77-draw men's "C" are Hermes Haralambous, a mechanical engineer from Lincolnwood, and 14-year-old Billy Siebold, a freshman at Elk Grove High School. Cheryl Ruyak, 16, of Park Ridge, who has been playing tennis only eight months, won the women's "C" with a 7-4 victory over Jamie Peters of Schaumburg.

In women's doubles Kotsakis and Pat Rittio of Mount Prospect will meet Sue McDonald and Helen Buck of Mount Prospect for the title. Jack Laffey of Palatine and Len Greenberg of Elk Grove Village appear the players to beat in the senior men's and junior boys' events, respectively. Three teams stand out among men's doubles survivors — Ed Heffern and Jack Deshida, George Sell and Nick Zawacki, and Dave Johnson and Roger Gutner. Gutner, a 27-year-old medical student from New York, is a former Dartmouth star.

Singles matches are one-hour and doubles matches an hour and a half in length. Scoring is in terms of games, not sets.

One of the most "live" high school arms around stopped St. Viator cold Wednesday, as hard-throwing right-hander Bob Beierwalters and his Addison Trail mates eliminated the Lions from further competition, 1-0, in the Elk Grove Regional.

A sizable cluster of baseball scouts were on hand to check out both Beierwalters and St. Viator's fine lefty Mike Cook, and they must have liked what they saw.

Cook pitched one of his better games with only four hits allowed (none until the fourth inning), nine strikeouts and just one walk. But he was outgassed by Beierwalters, who fanned 11 and also walked only one in a three-hit shutout.

Rick O'Donnell, St. Viator's third baseman and No. 8 hitter, collected two of the three hits off Beierwalters, both solid raps. Bob Foster had the only other hit leading off the first inning.

The Lions never really threatened, getting just one runner as far as second base against the husky Blazer hurler, whose fast ball matched the team's nickname. Stan Bobowski reached on an error in the sixth and stole second with two outs, but a strikeout quickly ended the inning.

Cook was perfect for the first 3-2/3 innings before Beierwalters finally reached base on a bad-hop single. Addison Trail pushed across the only run it needed in the fifth when Sam Katsikeas singled sharply to left, stole second and came in on Mike Thomim's solid hit to center. There were still no outs but Cook had no trouble the rest of the way, though he allowed an infield hit and walk in the sixth.

Wheeling's scheduled game against Warren for the North Chicago Regional title Wednesday was called off because of wet grounds. The two will meet today for the right to advance to sectional play.

Bruins leave for California, 16-team tourney

Just like the swallows returning to Capistrano, the Bruins are flying back to Santa Clara.

This fine 16-inch softball team will be making its second trip to this California community for the second annual Mission Bell Classic, a 16-team invitational tournament which the Herald area's perennial super team won last year.

The 12-man traveling team, under the principal sponsorship of the Kenny General Elevator Co., will be jetting westward this afternoon for the four-day double elimination tourney that winds up on Memorial Day.

Hoping to make this trip as memorable as the inaugural will be the following members of the "Dynamic Diamond Dozen":

Don Welker of Schaumburg, Bill Nay of Mount Prospect, Bob Nay of Chicago, Ed Pitts of Villa Park, Al Ostrowski of Addison, Dewey Krycyk of Palatine, Tim Prodyna of Des Plaines, Gene Freeze of Mount Prospect, Gil Muratori of Palatine, Ken Izral of Arlington Heights, Rich Ursinski of Arlington Heights and Bob Campbell of Buffalo Grove.

Besides the major sponsorship of Kenny Elevator, the Bruins also wish to thank 17 others who helped make this big tourney trip possible:

Larry Paul Oldsmobile in Schaumburg, Roselle Dodge, Inc., Colonial Chevrolet in Schaumburg, Durty Nellies West Irish Pub in Palatine, Leslie D. Welch of Buffalo Grove, Red Onion Restaurant in Rolling Meadows, Stan Lieberman Realty in Buffalo Grove, Seven-Eleven at Arlington Heights and Dundee Roads, Wheeling Trust and Savings Bank, Shackle Products in Medinah, Bank and Trust Co. of Arlington Heights, Kemper Insurance Co. of Long Grove, St. Paul Federal Savings of Chicago, Lattot Chevrolet in Arlington Heights, Jim Cass Ford in Des Plaines and Lenny Fine, Inc. in Arlington Heights.

Also playing with the team but not making the trip are these athletes:

Roger Syska, Charley Winde, Jim Salvetti, Greg Parker, Ron Huize, John Zump, Barry Sigale, Bill Rosenberg and Paul Duval.

The Kenny Elevator Bruins team had racked up seven straight opponents without a loss. Last year the team finished fourth in the World Tournament in St. Louis.

Although most of the teams open on Friday, the Bruins will play a doubleheader Saturday morning.

Western getting harder to win

The statistics prove it beyond doubt! The Western Open Championship is getting harder to win year-by-year.

The 70th Western Open, second oldest major golf classic in the nation, will be contested June 28-July 1 at Midlothian Country Club. First played at 36 holes in 1899 and in 1901 (none was played in 1900), the format changed to 72 holes in 1902 and has been at that distance with two exceptions — In 1910 and 1911, when the Western was at medal play.

With no Westerns played in the war years of 1918, 1943-44-45, the Western Open has been decided over 72 holes in 65 championships, with the average winning score being 281.56 strokes. During the last 15 Western Opens, that average has been beaten. Highlight of that span was the record tying 268 turned in by little Chichi Rodriguez in 1964 at Tam O'Shanter in Chicago. (Sam Snead also holds the low 72-hole mark with Chichi on the 268 he shot at St. Paul in 1949.)

Jim Jamieson of Moline, Ill., will defend the Western title he won last year at Sunset Ridge with a 72-hole total of 271 strokes, 13-under-par.

Highest 72-hole aggregate of 318 shots was by Alex Smith in 1903 at Milwaukee. Winning scores in the Western of more than 300 strokes also were registered in 1904, 1906, 1907 and 1915.

Midlothian, where the Western first was played in 1901 and again in 1969, when Billy Casper won, measures 6,654 yards and has par of 36-35-71.

Title matches slated at River Trails center

Players from 15 communities, including five with Chicago District rankings, will vie this week for five club singles titles at River Trails Tennis Center, Mount Prospect.

In the finals of the 48-draw men's "A" tournament, 17-year-old John Paczkowski, one-half of Arlington High School's state contender doubles team, will meet either his 18-year-old teammate, Jim Merkel, or 40-year-old ambidextrous Tom Leafstrand, a bank vice president from Wheaton and former District junior veterans' champion.

Paczowski upset second-seeded Laddie Birge, an FBI agent from Wilmette and the District's No. 9 player, in the quarterfinals, 11-7, before edging Roman Wirschuk, a dentist from Norridge, 10-8, in the semis.

The women's "A" final will pit either Australian Pat Freebody of Chicago, for several years in the District's top four, or senior star Chris Canar of Park Ridge against Rachel Kotsakis of Palatine.

The meet is being staged by the Northwest Suburban Special Athletic Organization. Each team will have a limit of 40 participants.

Events will include the standing long jump, high jump, softball throw, 50-yard dash and 300-yard run.

Special track meet June 5

A track meet involving five schools and centers for mentally handicapped will be held Tuesday, June 5 from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. at Maine East High School, Dempster Road, Park Ridge. One of the participating teams will be from Kirk Center in Palatine.

The meet is being staged by the Northwest Suburban Special Athletic Organization. Each team will have a limit of 40 participants.

Events will include the standing long jump, high jump, softball throw, 50-yard dash and 300-yard run.

WAYNE SELVIG bestows a congratulatory handshake upon Fred Gaines who's holding the trophy he recently received for being named Illinois gymnastics Coach-of-the-Year. Gaines led Elk Grove to a second place state finish. Selvig will be the new athletic director at Buffalo Grove next fall after serving as gymnastics coach at Wheeling.

Tony O

Sun shines again for Twins' star

by IRA BERKOW

NEW YORK — With his dark eyes and tawny cheeks and gold tooth shining, Tony Oliva is oddly ebullient for a man whose career may be on the precipice.

"When the weather comes good all over," said Oliva at breakfast recently, "my knee won't be stiff no more. Then I start to hit out the bullets."

"And I don't play for so long my timing is not too good, either. But I have the confidence still at bat. One thing I always know: If one time I miss, the next time I go smoking for sure."

Oliva is trying to regain some of the form that made him a three-time American League batting champion (the only man ever to lead a major league in hitting in his first two seasons) as well as Golden Glove right fielder. But at April's end, this 31-year-old Cuban with a career batting average of .313 was batting below .250.

Oliva might not even be on the Minnesota Twins' roster right now if not for the brand new designated pinch hitter rule in the American League. Oliva bats but he does not field. He hopes soon to return to the outfield because, he says, "my blood would be warmer for hitting."

In June of 1971 Oliva dived for a fly ball and shattered cartilages in his right knee. He was hitting .390 at the time. He underwent surgery and was through for the season. Last season he was hitting .375 in only a handful of at bats when the knee buckled again. Comeback and season were short-lived. Another operation.

Oliva suffers the pain of running down the basepaths on a hit, and suffers the rigid leg-weight program that he hopes will hurry him along the comeback trail. He does it all because he loves to play baseball; it is all he has ever really concentrated on since he was a 7-year-old boy in Pinar del Rio, Cuba, and he and his friends cut up a corn cob and used it for a ball in his father's farm field.

He ran and lifted leg weights all last winter at the University of Minnesota. "Every day I went, even in 15 below zero with the snow piled on the ground," he said. Oliva continues to lift leg weights every day now, going to the ballpark early to do it.

In the winter especially, he sank not only into snow drifts but into depression. He wondered if his career was too soon through.

"But my wife said, 'Tony, you are lucky to have done what you have already.' I think 'Yes, you are right.'"

Oliva's despair was of a different nature when he first began playing professional baseball in the United States.

He now has a family, including two daughters, aged 4 and 14. "Now I got somebody to wait for me," said Oliva. "One little one coming. Then another little one coming. When I come home from a trip they say, 'Poppa, you bring us a surprise?' If I don't, they say, 'Poppa, let's go to the store and buy a surprise.'"

"Before this I was very happy on the field but I come home and gee, I am depressed. Boom. No old friends. No family. I miss my country. But I can't go back because of the revolution and they can't come out."

"And in the beginning I play in Virginia. I learn that every country has its own custom. Gee, I find that they treat the animals sometimes better than the colored people. That is rotten. Hard to understand. Not like in Cuba. I hear Americans are the smartest people. They read the Bible. There is religion in people in America. But I can't eat n restaurants. 'Go to the kitchen,' they tell me. And I can't stay in same hotel with white players."

Home often seemed a good place to be. He called at least once a month. Each call cost $30 or $50. "I talk long because I have a big family," said Oliva. "My parents, nine brothers and sisters, relatives, friends. I talk to everybody."

In recent years his mother, father and two sisters have made brief visits to see Tony. (His father took back 17 suitcases filled with everything from television sets to blue jeans — scarce items in Cuba.) They returned to their home, Tony to his and to the struggle of his career.

Oliva became a big league star shortly after he signed to play baseball in the United States in 1961. He now earns $100,000 a year. Recently, his autobiography was published: "Tony of the Trials and Triumphs of Tony Oliva" (Hawthorn, $6.95) with St. Paul sportswriter Bob Fowler.

The future? In Oliva's eyes, it is sunny.

"Every day it get warmer and every day my leg get better," he says. One game recently, Oliva, limping all season, tagged up from third on a fly ball. "I flew," he said triumphantly. He slid safely home for the lead run. He rose, dusted himself off and trotted to the dugout. His teammates greeted him with a standing ovation.

They had seen the first glimmer of summer in Oliva in nearly two years. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Stingiest hurlers

Best earned-run average for any White Sox pitcher in 1972 was 1.56 by reliever Cy Acosta for 34 innings. The team's most valuable pitcher, 24-game winner Wilbur Wood, had a 2.51 ERA in a huge total of 376 innings. Worst earned-run average was Bart Johnson's 9.22 in just 13 innings.

Area baseball team schedules tryouts May 26

The Northwest Rebels, an area baseball team for players older than 18, will hold tryouts Saturday, May 26 at 9 a.m. at Harper College, Algonquin & Roselle roads.

A second session will be held at the same time and place the following Saturday, June 2, for late college returnees, but others are encouraged to attend the first tryout session.

The Rebels were founded and coached by Frank May last year and May is back at the helm. The team, composed of players from several northwest suburbs including Palatine, Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect, will compete for the first time in a league this year with at least a 26-game schedule. The first 11 games will be at the home field at Harper.

The team had a 28-11 record last year. It is still in need of help from prospective sponsors. Those wishing to try out should have at least one baseball reference.

Further information can be obtained from May at 537-7377.

L'Nor gains VFW golf lead

The Arlington VFW Monday night golf league suffered through another evening of rain, but it didn't bother low grosser Darryl Burkett who fired a two-under 32 or low netter Wes Trautner who turned in a 29.

Burkett led the first flight with Virgil Rolfs pacing the second, Richard Spirek and Chuck Baranowski the third, George Baranowski the fourth and Bill Becker the fifth.

Virgil Rolfs, Wayne Rolfs, Dick Hoppe, Bob Rokos and Bob Erickson pushed L'Nor Cleaners into first place in the team standings with 47 points.

Cooper's Campbell wins state 50

The Cooper Junior High School thin-clads returned from the state track meet held at Mattoon with two awards.

Cooper won the 3rd place trophy in the Class A competition and the 5th place award in Class B competition.

Individuals placing in the meet were Scott Campbell, who is the new student champion in the 50 yard dash and who also placed 4th in the 100 yard dash.

The 440 yard relay team consisting of Mike Shin, Steve Jaske, Tom Mianulli, and Tom Smith also captured a championship. In addition, Tom Smith placed 3rd in both the 50 and 100 yard dashes.

This is the first year that any Dist. 21 student has had an individual State champion and is also the first year that any Dist. 21 team has placed as high as 3rd in Class A competition.

Superman's birthday!

Washington Commentary

Superjets--do they signify progress or more pollution?

by ROBERT F. BUCKHORN
WASHINGTON (UPI) — When a jetliner screeches overhead aiming for an airport runway what do you think of first — noise pollution, or progress?

Only a diehard aviation enthusiast would opt for progress. Even the president of United Air Lines, Edward E. Carlson, says:

"Let's face it, no matter what else a jet engine is, it's noisy. It may have given us the most dynamic, most mobile society in the world, but it is noisy."

What should be done about jet noise? There is little agreement. Los Angeles International Airport virtually banned all landings and takeoffs between 11 p.m. and 6 a.m. The City of Burbank forced the Burbank airport to do the same thing.

BUT NOW, the Supreme Court has ruled that cities do not have the power to impose curfews on local airports.

According to Justice William O. Douglas, "If that change is to be made, Congress must do it." Douglas claimed Congress assigned the power to regulate airport traffic to the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA).

The court's decision came on a 5-4 vote.

Justice William H. Rehnquist, who wrote a minority opinion, contended that "noise regulation has traditionally been an area of local, not national concern."

The growing hassle over airport noise is having one result: it has slowed construction of new jetports. None has been started since 1970.

ENVIRONMENTALISTS see that as a type of victory. They argue that up to 20 million Americans are regularly bothered by jetliners landing and taking off from airports near their communities.

Aviation advocates contend that such reasoning is simplistic. By 1982, U.S. airline passenger traffic is expected to jump from its present 182 million passenger total to 442 million.

Without new airports, jet noise, pollution, and traffic congestion will produce just the results the environmentalists seek to avoid, industry supporters argue.

IS COMPROMISE possible? Yes, but it will cost money, and it will not satisfy everyone. Part of the money already has produced the new, quieter jumbo jet engines which must meet FAA noise requirements.

The noise problem is not centered on new jets, but 1,700 older crafts which still make up about 80 per cent of the airline jet fleet.

In the past, the airlines have contended that the price tag for muffling older jets would be astronomical. But increasing government and public pressure is bringing changes.

METROPOLIS, Ill. (UPI) — Superman, the do-gooder from the planet Krypton, will observe his 35th birthday tomorrow night at a party in the town that adopted him. They're calling it the "first birthday party for an alien."

On Saturday, as the last notes of the national anthem as played by the "Screaming Eagles" band from Fort Campbell, Ky., fade across the Ohio River and 1,000 helium-filled balloons are released, the "Amazing World of Superman Exhibition Center" will open its doors to the public.

Seven elementary schools are already booked in three days.

Maybe James Hendricks Gains Wilcox and William McBean, who founded the town with wide streets in 1839, knew that someday Superman would be along.

SUPERMAN is the comic strip character who performs his good deeds while masquerading as Clark Kent, a mild-mannered reporter on the Daily Planet in "Metropolis."

Superman adopted this town of 7,000 persons deep in southeastern Illinois in ceremonies Jan. 21, 1972. The town is supposed to be the only Metropolis in the world. The newspaper, the Metropolis News, changed its name to the Metropolis Planet last May.

The home of the Superman exhibition center is an 11,000-square foot former roller skating rink adjoining Fort Massac State Park. It is decorated in the red, yellow and blue of the Superman costume and contains what is described as the world's largest collection of Superman memorabilia.

An exhibit shows step-by-step how a comic magazine is created. There's the world's largest mural of Superman, a model of Superboy's home, Superman movies, Kryptonite exhibits and model drawings of a planned future Superman museum estimated to cost $5 million.

AND, OF COURSE, Superman will be on hand to greet and talk to youngsters. Mike Forbes, 26, a Marion High School English and psychology teacher, will quit his job to take the role of Superman on a full-time basis. He says he regards it as a "challenge."

A former Marion High sports star and a shot-putter at Murray State College in Kentucky, Forbes is 6-feet-6½ inches tall and weighs 250 pounds. He wears a 52 extra long coat and size 14E shoes. And he is mild-mannered.

"He really looks the part," said Bob Westerfield, former professional football player and dry cleaning plant owner who launched the Superman campaign after he moved to Metropolis from Owensboro, Ky., instead of buying a dry cleaning plant at Peru, Ind.

A LOCALLY organized-for-profit group known as Metropolis Recreation, Inc., negotiated with National Periodical Publications Inc., New York, owner of Superman rights, about opening the center. The Metropolis group sold $250,000 in stock in about six months, most of it to residents of the county in amounts ranging from $10 to $30,000. The Superman Party Friday night will be by invitation only for about 700 stockholders and other officials and dignitaries.

The exhibits were put together by Sol Harrison, production manager for National Periodical Publications.

SUPERMAN has already brought new hope to Metropolis.

"He's put us on the map," said Leslie Easterday, executive secretary of the Chamber of Commerce. Easterday feels he had a hand in the new home for Superman by selling his dry cleaning plant to Westerfield.

"We don't have any rental homes left in Metropolis and we've had more industrial inquiries in the last 18 months than we had in the prior 18 years," he said.

And those cards keep coming in from the small fry — the youngster from Maryland wanting a map of Metropolis and the boy from Decatur, Ill., wanting to know how he can buy a Superman T-shirt.

Superman promoters feel that the Superman story helped bring them a new industry that will result in the Superman center having to find new quarters by Oct. 1.

THE McDONOUGH Power Equipment Co. of McDonough, Ga., bought 43 acres of the old Massac County Fairgrounds that includes the exhibition center and plans to manufacture power lawn mowers and related equipment. Expectations are that it will mean 500 new jobs.

"We didn't make any fuss," said Westerfield. "That wouldn't be the Superman way. Superman is just happy that those jobs are coming to town."

"We have options on four 1,000 acre sites that we are looking over," Westerfield said.

Metropolis Recreation, Inc., hopes to have a Superman museum operational by June 1, 1975. Among other things it would include a rogues gallery of Superman enemies and an illusionary ride to Krypton.

Some day, it has visions of a Superman entertainment complex that would cost in the millions and be second only to Disneyland.

"We don't know how far this will go," Westerfield said. "But we do know that there are 20 million tourists a year at places within a 60-mile radius of here and that half the population of the country is within a 10-hour drive."

Social Security and you

Q. My husband, who worked for many years as a coal miner, died of Black Lung Disease this year. I am already receiving widow's benefits from Social Security. Can I apply to receive Black Lung widow's benefits in addition to Social Security benefits?

A. Yes, you can receive a Social Security widow's benefit and a Black Lung widow's benefit if you qualify for both. A miner's widow can get benefits if: 1) her husband died of Black Lung Disease from work in a U.S. mine, 2) if he was entitled to Black Lung benefits at the time of his death, or 3) if he was totally disabled by Black Lung Disease at the time of his death — whatever the cause of death. You can get more information and file your claim at your local Social Security office.

Q. I'm 18 and I'll graduate from high school this spring. I get monthly Social Security checks because my mother gets Social Security disability payments. I know my checks will continue until I'm 22 if I go to college full time. Since I'll need to work part time, can you tell me what Social Security considers full-time college attendance?

A. Full-time attendance is usually a course load of 12 semester hours or more; but since this can vary from school to school, the Social Security Administration will usually accept the school's standard of a full-time student.

Q. I just became 65 and I now have medical insurance coverage under Medicare. After reading my "Medicare Handbook," I have a question. Is it true that Medicare will pay only part of my doctor bills?

A. Yes, that's correct. After the patient has met the $60 deductible each year, Medicare pays 80 per cent of the reasonable charges; the Medicare patient is responsible for the remaining 20 per cent if the patient's doctor has not accepted the "assignment" method of payment.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday in the chapel of the funeral home, with the Rev. William H. Herman of Community Church of Rolling Meadows officiating. Burial will be in Memory Gardens Cemetery, Arlington Heights.

Contributions may be made to the Heart Fund.

The Lighter Side...by Dick West

White House 'leak' that became a flood

WASHINGTON — We have been hearing in recent testimony about a group at the White House called "the plumbers" whose job it was to track down news leaks.

Although few details are known, I think I have had enough experiences with plumbers to get a pretty good idea of how they worked.

Let us use for illustration purposes the 1969 disclosure that the United States was secretly bombing Cambodia.

THAT NEWS obviously didn't come from Cambodia. The Cambodians are very good about keeping secrets and would never tell anybody they were being bombed.

Officials of the National Security Council therefore conclude that it is an inside leak. So they decide to call in the plumbers.

"Hello. This is Henry Kissinger at the National Security Council. Would you please send someone over to fix a leak?"

"CERTAINLY, SIR. Will two weeks from next Tuesday be all right?"

"Two weeks? I'm afraid we'll need someone sooner than that. It's rather a bad leak, you see, and..."

"If we take the job on an emergency basis it's going to run you into a lot of overtime. Will you be in your office this evening?"

"I'll have to break a dinner date with Golda Meir, but I'll be here."

AFTER CALLING twice to get directions, the plumbers arrive at the council office shortly after midnight. They spend the next 15 or 20 minutes poking around the premises, shaking their heads, clucking their tongues and muttering among themselves.

Finally one of them turns to Kissinger and says, "You've got a bad leak here."

"I suspected as much," Kissinger says. "How long will it take to fix it?"

"It's going to be a major job. It will mean firing 70 per cent of the aides in the West Wing of the White House and on two floors of the Executive Office Building."

KISSINGER GASPS and turns pale. "Why is all of that necessary just to fix one leak?"

"The personnel in these old buildings is getting saturated with confidential information. Once they start leaking, the only thing you can do is rip them all out and replace them with new staff members."

"Couldn't you plug the leak with a few phone taps?"

"That might hold for a little while," the plumbers reply, "but in a week or two the leak will break out in a new place. It will be like water pouring through a gate."

And, as we now know, they couldn't have picked a better simile.

First Federal Savings offers all its passbook savers everyday interest on every dollar every day it's on deposit with us.

"everyday"

Interest. That's pretty special. But there's more. That daily interest is compounded daily. Paid quarterly. So you can deposit when you like. Withdraw when you need to. Never lose interest provided you maintain $25 or more in your account at the end of the quarter. In fact, you even gain. All money deposited by the 10th earns from the 1st ... if you leave it on deposit until the end of the calendar quarter. Sounds interesting? But what does "everyday" interest mean in dollars and cents? It means that our 5% passbook interest actually earns more when compounded every day the First Federal Savings way. It makes a difference.

New program in Arlington aids elderly

"It's not that someone comes in, but that someone cares enough to come and try," says a new volunteer in regards to the satisfaction she experiences in visiting the shut-in elderly citizens of Arlington Heights.

The Arlington Heights Health Department under the visiting nurse, Marion Callos, has initiated a program utilizing volunteers to provide that "someone who cares" for her clients who are in need.

The elderly couple who maintain each other within their home have had the services of a volunteer for several hours so that the wife could do some shopping — the first time she had been shopping since Christmas. "Someone who cares" visited with the husband during this time as he could not be left alone.

THE AGED woman confined to a walker has "someone who cares" who is reawakening her interest in embroidery and stitching. The volunteer spends an hour or two a week as a friendly visitor.

This friendly visitor type of volunteer is only one of the assignments developed by Mrs. Callos in her attempt to serve the needs of the shut-in of Arlington Heights.

Other assignments are simple home maintenance such as repairing a leaky faucet, changing the furnace filter; yard work such as shoveling snow or cutting grass; simple house chores such as washing windows; cooking a nutritious lunch; and a more complicated assignment is the one of simple nursing care such as assistance in getting in and out of the bathtub.

All the volunteers receive an orientation and a degree of training in accordance to the job assignment. Needs of the aged and the art of visiting are explored, and the procedures of reporting to Mrs. Callos after each visit are explained.

ALL RECIPIENTS of the service are visited first by Mrs. Callos and the needs assessed. The volunteer is introduced to the client by Mrs. Callos and the first visit may be a team of the volunteer and Mrs. Callos.

Insurance for the volunteer is provided by the Village of Arlington Heights.

More "someone who cares" volunteers are being sought. The simple nursing cares of changing bandages, assistance in bathing, etc. do not require professional nursing skills although nurses are welcome to the program.

The friendly visiting, home maintenance, and assistance in interpreting mail and forms with Social Security and Medicare, etc. are the type of help that many are giving their own elderly parents, or would if they were in the vicinity.

If you can spare a few hours a week and you are seeking a lot of satisfaction, perhaps the program within the Arlington Heights Health Department is the spot for you. Call 253-2340.

As one of the volunteers says, "You know you're really helping someone."

Sacred Heart juniors to tour East by bus

Washington, D.C., New York City, Boston and Niagara Falls will be among the stops on a 10-day bus tour juniors at Sacred Heart of Mary High School in Rolling Meadows will take in June.

The tour will stop in six states and highlights will include a boat tour of Manhattan Island, a Broadway play, dinner where the Boston Tea Party was held and a visit to Williamsburg, Va.

A special feature of the trip will be a visit with several Sacred Heart of Mary nuns who used to teach at the high school and are now teaching at Marymount College in New York. The nuns have planned a Mass and Sunday brunch for the students.

Enrollment to climb at Sacred Heart

The 1973-74 enrollment at Sacred Heart of Mary High School in Rolling Meadows is expected to climb more than 25 percent over this year's enrollment of 450 students.

The current freshmen enrollment totals 118 students. The Rev. James Michaelcz, school superintendent, said there have also been several inquiries concerning transfers to Sacred Heart's upper classes. Students interested in transferring to Sacred Heart should contact the school before June 1.

Veterans' News

Q — Is the Veterans Administration cutting back the number of people operating its hospitals?

A — On the contrary, by the end of fiscal year 1973 (June 30), VA will have increased personnel in its hospital and medical care program to a record 154,000 — nearly 10,000 more than last fiscal year, and 20,000 above the fiscal year 1971 level.

Q — Can a veteran get VA help in dealing with his family and job problems even though he isn't sick?

A — Yes. Some of VA's veterans assistance centers are staffed with social workers (now called community service specialists) to help meet the veteran's total counseling needs. Specialists are on duty in Boston, New York, Chicago, St. Louis, Detroit and other principal cities, and VA plans eventually to place them in all centers.

Q — Are husbands of female veterans eligible for the same Veterans Administration benefits as widows of male veterans?

A — Yes. Under PL 92-540 (Oct. 24, 1972), the term "wife," for purposes of benefits, includes the husband of a female veteran and "widow" includes the widower of a female veteran.

The Doctor Says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I want to know what happens when one takes vitamin E and estrogen. Does the vitamin destroy the estrogen or the estrogen destroy the vitamin? Also, what happens when one takes the pill longer than she should without stopping for a period?

Dear Reader — I am not favorably impressed with the general use of vitamin E for treating a large variety of medical illnesses, neither are the Food and Drug Administration or the American Medical Assn. However, in moderate doses it is not harmful and in a few problems it has value. It will not affect estrogen, nor will the estrogen affect the vitamin E.

Common birth control pills contain substances that have the same action as natural female hormones. During pregnancy increased amounts of female hormones are formed in the body to prevent another ovulatory cycle. This principle was used to develop the birth control pill. If you take the pill continuously, it is similar to being pregnant.

During pregnancy you have a long nine-month period of high levels of the female hormones. This is essential to maintain the pregnancy. Taking regular birth control pills without interruption is not likely to cause significant damage; however, it does increase the likelihood of the complications attributed to birth control pills.

Most doctors would prefer for women to interrupt the regular pill as directed. There is a new low dose mini-pill (Micro-nor and Nor-Q.D.) just approved which is taken daily throughout the year.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I'm 15 years old, 5 feet 2 inches and weigh 98 pounds! (Female.) I'm a vegetarian, I eat no meat at all and I don't eat any type of seafood and very seldom do I eat eggs. My diet consists of vegetables, fruits, candy and other sweets. I only stopped eating meat about a year ago. And I take no type of protein. I take B complex, A, D, E and multiple vitamins.

I often get tired and feel depressed. So would you please tell me what to do to stay healthy and to gain weight.

Dear Reader — I am not surprised you feel tired from the description of your diet. It is unlikely that you are getting all the different types of protein you need. Most vegetables do not contain complete proteins. That means that the different types of amino acids that make up the proteins in the foods you eat do not include all of the essential amino acids that should be included in the diet.

Now, it is true that if you use a mixed variety of incomplete proteins then you might get all of the essential amino acids in the diet, but this requires some particular attention.

The foods that contain complete proteins are the meat, eggs, milk and in short, animal protein. Most vegetarians think that milk is all right. You can stay on a vegetarian diet and use milk and milk products such as cottage cheese. Soybeans and other nature bean seeds are nearly complete proteins but you need to eat a sufficient amount of those to meet a growing individual's biological needs.

One can have mood changes anyway irrespective of the diet. But I would feel a lot better about your situation if you would at least include an abundant amount of milk or cottage cheese in your diet.

Area students teacher interns

Nine Illinois State University students from the Northwest suburbs have begun their teaching internships in connection with their degree work in education.

The students are assigned to their schools for a nine-week period in which they do student teaching, work with supervisory teachers and become part of that school's community.

Students from Arlington Heights are: Becky Blaine, 2107 E. Fremont Cr., teaching art at Lyons Township High School, La Grange; Ralph Brock, 708 S. Dunton St., teaching elementary education at Bowlesburg School, East Moline; Sharon McGinn Chakolan, 420 Rammer, teaching French at Wheeling High School; Larry Larson, 1202 N. Race, teaching health and physical education at Glenbrook North High School; Katherine Levon, 2110 E. Fremont Cr., teaching elementary education at Brook View School, Valley View; and Arlene Zelnz, 1564 N. Highland St., teaching art at Downers Grove South High School.

Linda Soderlund Brown, 9508 Forest Pl., Des Plaines, teaching history at Niantic-Harristown High School.

Georgia Fink, 106 Arcadia Ct., Hoffman Estates, teaching history and library science at Schaumburg High School.

Sandra Berg, 104 Fern Dr., Mount Prospect, teaching English at Proviso West High School, Hillside.

Program seeks to find, cure defects

Something goes wrong in 70% of births

by KATHLEEN NEUMEYER

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Some babies get off to a better start in life than others.

In fact, doctors say that in as many as 70 per cent of all births, something — however minor — goes wrong during pregnancy, labor or delivery.

Sometimes this mishap causes no harm and the child develops normally. Other times the infant suffers from a minor or a major disability which may hinder him all his life.

The worst defects show up right away but the minor ones often go undetected until the child enters kindergarten.

The problem that doctors at UCLA School of Medicine are grappling with is how to determine at the earliest possible point which high-risk infants are going to have lasting problems.

"People in general and the government specifically have been concerned that some children end up at school functioning mildly retarded or mildly handicapped," says Dr. Arthur H. Parmelee, professor of pediatrics and director of the federally funded Infant Studies Project.

"It is not entirely clear whether if they had been given help earlier, they wouldn't be in trouble at school."

Parmelee says the purpose of his study, to be conducted during a five-year period on some 200 premature infants born at UCLA Medical Center or transferred there immediately after birth, is to "sort out those with continuing difficulties."

"WE CHOSE premature babies because we wanted to work from birth with a small population with the most perinatal problems," Parmelee explained.

"With premature birth, there is usually some other complication, so prematures are a population of children likely to have more risks."

"What we want to develop is a technique for identifying infants who persist in deviance over the first months of life. The object is not really to see what happens to prematures, but to see how good our tests are."

Infants selected for the project are tested at the time of their due date — when it had been predicted they would arrive — and again at three or four months and at eight or nine months.

In addition to full medical care for the first two years, they are given batteries of psychological tests, including brain waves sleep studies, visual attention and hand skill tests.

At nine months, the staff, including doctors, nurses, psychologists and educational aides, determine whether the child appears to be persistently performing below normal levels.

PARMELEE SAYS that the mothers of deviant infants often "sense that they are not reading this baby like others, not getting the expected responses, so they do inappropriate things with the baby. Then the mother and baby begin to get into difficulties."

"The one we can help the most is the baby who is lacking in muscle tone, and passive. In time, he develops normal muscle tone, but in the meantime, it can be threatening to his development because his mother will assume he is just a good baby. She won't give him the attention that an active baby demands and he loses out on the interaction he needs."

country who are just like her. Their symptoms are the same — perhaps their personal backgrounds are somewhat different. But they all have one thing in common: their addiction to alcohol, the nation's No. 1 drug problem.

Alcoholism affects every facet of life. Families, industry, safety, medicine and law with all their ramifications: school, religion, mental health institutions, hospitals — each is touched by alcohol and the alcoholic.

In a series of columns on alcohol and alcohol addiction, the staff of the Forest Hospital Alcohol Rehabilitation Service will explain the scope of this national problem.

YOUR MONEY...

There aren't very many large-scale employers in America which one hundred years ago employed no one.

and today are responsible for an annual payroll of more than $5 billion. But the nation's insured savings and loan associations fall into this select group.

Generally these associations aren't thought of primarily as "employers" (unless you happen to work directly for one), but in a very real sense they are.

Savings and loan associations provide the payroll for $5 billion in new home construction each year — the money that pays the architects and builders, carpenters, electricians, bricklayers, plumbers — everyone involved in building the home. Because of savings and loan association new home financing, thousands of workers find employment for their skills... and thousands of families are able to enjoy a new home financed on terms tailored to their individual needs. Because savings and loan associations do more new home financing than all other financial institutions combined, we have the experience to serve you better!

Watergate hearings boring video fare

HOLLYWOOD — The televised Senate Watergate hearings can be an exhausting experience for viewers trying to keep up with the ceaseless flow of questions, answers and form statements.

Intrigacy piles upon complexity, and thus the hours and hours of words and words sometimes leave one with a thirst for a cool beer on a warm beach.

As the details and complications unfold, one instinctively searches for little human details to counteract the formalities. Perhaps it is the taste in clothes of someone being questioned that catches the eye.

AT ONE POINT in Tuesday's hearings, I found myself sizing up James McCord's dark blue suit. I noticed he didn't appear to have a dandruff problem, and I envied him for that.

There were some moments in the hearings on Tuesday that probably broke the atmosphere of complexity for television viewers. As an instance:

Samuel Dash, the Senate committee's majority counsel, had McCord, at his table, show how to bug a telephone which was not connected. There were closeups of the procedure.

THEN, LATER, THERE were the remarks of John Caulfield about his old friendship with McCord and how they once even thought of going into business together — before the matter now being investigated affected their personal relationship.

McCord, who remained in the hearing room to listen to Caulfield's lengthy opening statement, sat several rows behind him. And the camera caught his reactions to various things Caulfield said.

The absence of women as key on-camera figures in the video proceedings, at least to this point, is noticeable.

One woman's name has come up in an important way in the questioning, and there are females in the hearing room, and, for all a viewer knows, perhaps working on staffs behind the scenes. But on-camera, up to now, the Watergate hearings are a male province.

And in this province we daily become more acquainted with the senators. Most of their work, naturally, is heavy-going material. Thus, our attention, which may wander from time to time, is snapped back when one of them injects a personal comment, as when Sen. Howard Baker, before paraphrasing a McCord statement, said to him: "If I'm wrong, for goodness sakes tell me." He wasn't.

IN FACT, ONE of the things that stands out in the televised hearings is the astuteness throughout of the senators and their two counsels.

In this era of information explosion there is an unending need to work at just keeping up with the flood of material. But you can concentrate on things — especially video's fact output — for only so long before a sort of dulling effect sets in.

Shortly after Tuesday's televised hearings were adjourned until today, I flipped the dial, and, by chance, up popped Cary Grant's face in an old movie. It certainly was nice to see him.

'Douglas built one hell of a plane'

DC3, the old warrior of aviation, finally being phased out

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — The DC3, the workhorse airplane that carved so much of America's aviation history, is nearing the end of the line with the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA).

The twin-engine craft formed the backbone of commercial aviation in the United States for more than a decade and in World War II its military version, the C47, was America's key air transport.

Scores are still flying in private hands in the United States and with some government agencies.

The FAA uses the old planes to run checks on aids to aerial navigation but its days are numbered.

"The target date for phasing out all the DC3s in the FAA is 1975," says Dick Corbitt, an FAA pilot who runs the inspections on the navigation devices.

"WE'LL PROBABLY BE replacing them in Oakland with jets some time next year," he said.

The DC3, lovingly nicknamed the Gooney, was built by Douglas Aircraft, and carried 95 per cent of all airline traffic in the U.S. by 1938. As late as 1968 a survey showed that a third of the world's transport planes were still DC3s.

The old birds even had a role in the Vietnam war.

"When I was in Vietnam I remember seeing them clear out jungles the size of a football field with their machineguns," said John Jones, a fellow pilot of Corbitt.

The Gooney was designated the AC47, then, equipped with a battery of machine guns.

To most veterans, however, it was the C47 of World War II and Korea that probably is best remembered.

BY 1945 THE military had bought 10,000 of the planes from Douglas and they hauled men and cargo in every war theater.

Veteran pilots recall that the airlines taught the military how to fly the DC3 and the services taught them how to overload the craft.

The DC3 in which Gen. Jimmy Doolittle fled from China after his famed Tokyo raid carried 72 persons. Several aviation historians say the record was 96.

Harry Hughes, FAA traffic officer here, feels "Douglas built one hell of a plane."

But, he said, the DC3 did not have to face the high, pressurized flights of modern aircraft.

"That can put quite a strain on the structure," said Hughes, who flew the Gooney with the Marines in World War II.

THE FAMED DC 3 the type of craft in which Gen. Jimmy Doolittle fled from China after his Tokyo raid, is nearing the end of the line with the Federal Aviation Administration.

'Why walk when you can fly?'

NORWOOD, Mass. (UPI) — The PAPAs have a motto, "Why walk when you can fly." Their symbol is a patched-up pelican with a crutch.

For like the pelican, the PAPAs are awkward on the ground, but in the air they gain a measure of grace and freedom many felt was beyond their grasp.

It's a whole new world opened to those who perhaps at some time felt the world had abandoned them.

PAPA is the Paraplegic and Amputee Pilots Association, a newly formed group of men who are enrolled at Norwood Municipal Airport in what is believed to be the only organized flight-training program for persons who have no use of their legs, or no legs at all.

ARTHUR ZERVAS, 48, the town treasurer of Burlington, is the catalyst of the group, which now consists of six men although more are expected to join this spring.

Zervas, whose personal philosophy has been not why, but why not, is a double amputee whose legs were injured during World War II and eventually amputated.

Although his mobility was obviously restricted because of the handicap, Zervas said he has never let it rule his life and does whatever he wants to, even things many people felt were beyond his reach. Such as flying.

"You see lots of fellows around who had thought that losing legs or not having the use of all their extremities, that this is the end of life, or something like that," Zervas said. "Not for me."

"I'VE TALKED to some fellows who tried to commit suicide. They didn't even want to see tomorrow morning come," he said.

Showing, by example, that life doesn't have to come to an end just because of such handicaps has inspired others in similar situations, Zervas said, particularly with so many who were maimed during the Vietnam War.

"If I could do this, why could not they," he said.

Zervas, the father of three, said that getting someone to teach him how to fly was a problem. He contacted several small airports and was turned down.

Eventually, he contacted Wiggins Airways at the airport here and instructor Richard Angelo of Framingham agreed to take him on a student. PAPA grew from that beginning.

THE SPECIAL program for teaching paraplegics to fly was formally begun in August, 1972. The six students formed their own club, PAPA, although there already is a national organization, The Wheelchair Pilot's Association, Inc. There are an estimated 150 paraplegics and amputees in the United States who learned to fly on an individual basis, but the program at Wiggins is believed to be the only organized program for training paraplegics and amputees to fly.

To fly a plane, a pilot with full physical ability must use both hands and both feet to perform all the control functions. A person with no use of legs, obviously, faced a serious drawback. This was overcome, Zervas said, through the use of a special hand control developed by Bill Blackwood of Escondido, Calif.

Zervas now has in mind that he would like to become a flying instructor for others like him because only an amputee can fully understand their peculiar problems.

Zervas' son designed the shield to represent the PAPAs. On it is the motto, "Why walk when you can fly," and depicts the injured pelican.

"If you've ever seen a pelican on the ground you know that he's an awkward bird," said Zervas, drawing the comparison to paraplegics and amputees. "But in the air, it is extremely graceful."

Remotely piloted plane developed by Boeing Co.

SEATTLE (UPI) — The Boeing Co., a pioneer in the development of multi-engine warplanes and jet transports, has taken the wraps off of a neat little package called Compass Cope, a single-engine job that can fly high like a spy and be controlled from the ground.

Boeing developed the Compass Cope secretly for the Air Force under a contract awarded July 15, 1971. It was rolled out Nov. 30, 1972, and now is undergoing extensive system checkouts prior to shipments to Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., for flight testing.

The plane is a first of a new generation of remotely piloted vehicles using advanced digital communications systems to allow a pilot to fly the craft from the ground.

The technology involved in digital communications is similar to that used in television communications, a Boeing spokesman said.

Compass Cope will be able to fly much longer unrefueled missions than any aircraft now in the Air Force inventory. It will be able to cruise thousands of feet above storms and commercial air craft. It also will be able to carry many different payloads on a wide variety of missions.

BOEING BELIEVES it has the potential of becoming the No. 1 spy plane for the Air Force during the next decade. It presumably would replace the super-secret SR71 high-altitude reconnaissance plane, the current work horse in this mission. Info which the public got a glimpse when Gary Powers was shot down in the U2 a few years ago.

The Compass Cope has a 90-foot wingspan. Its fiberglass fuselage is just a shade over 40 feet in length. Gross take-off weight is in the "13,000 pound category."

The plane's all fiberglass fuselage permits it to be used as a "flying radome" in which radar and other sensing equipment can be installed.

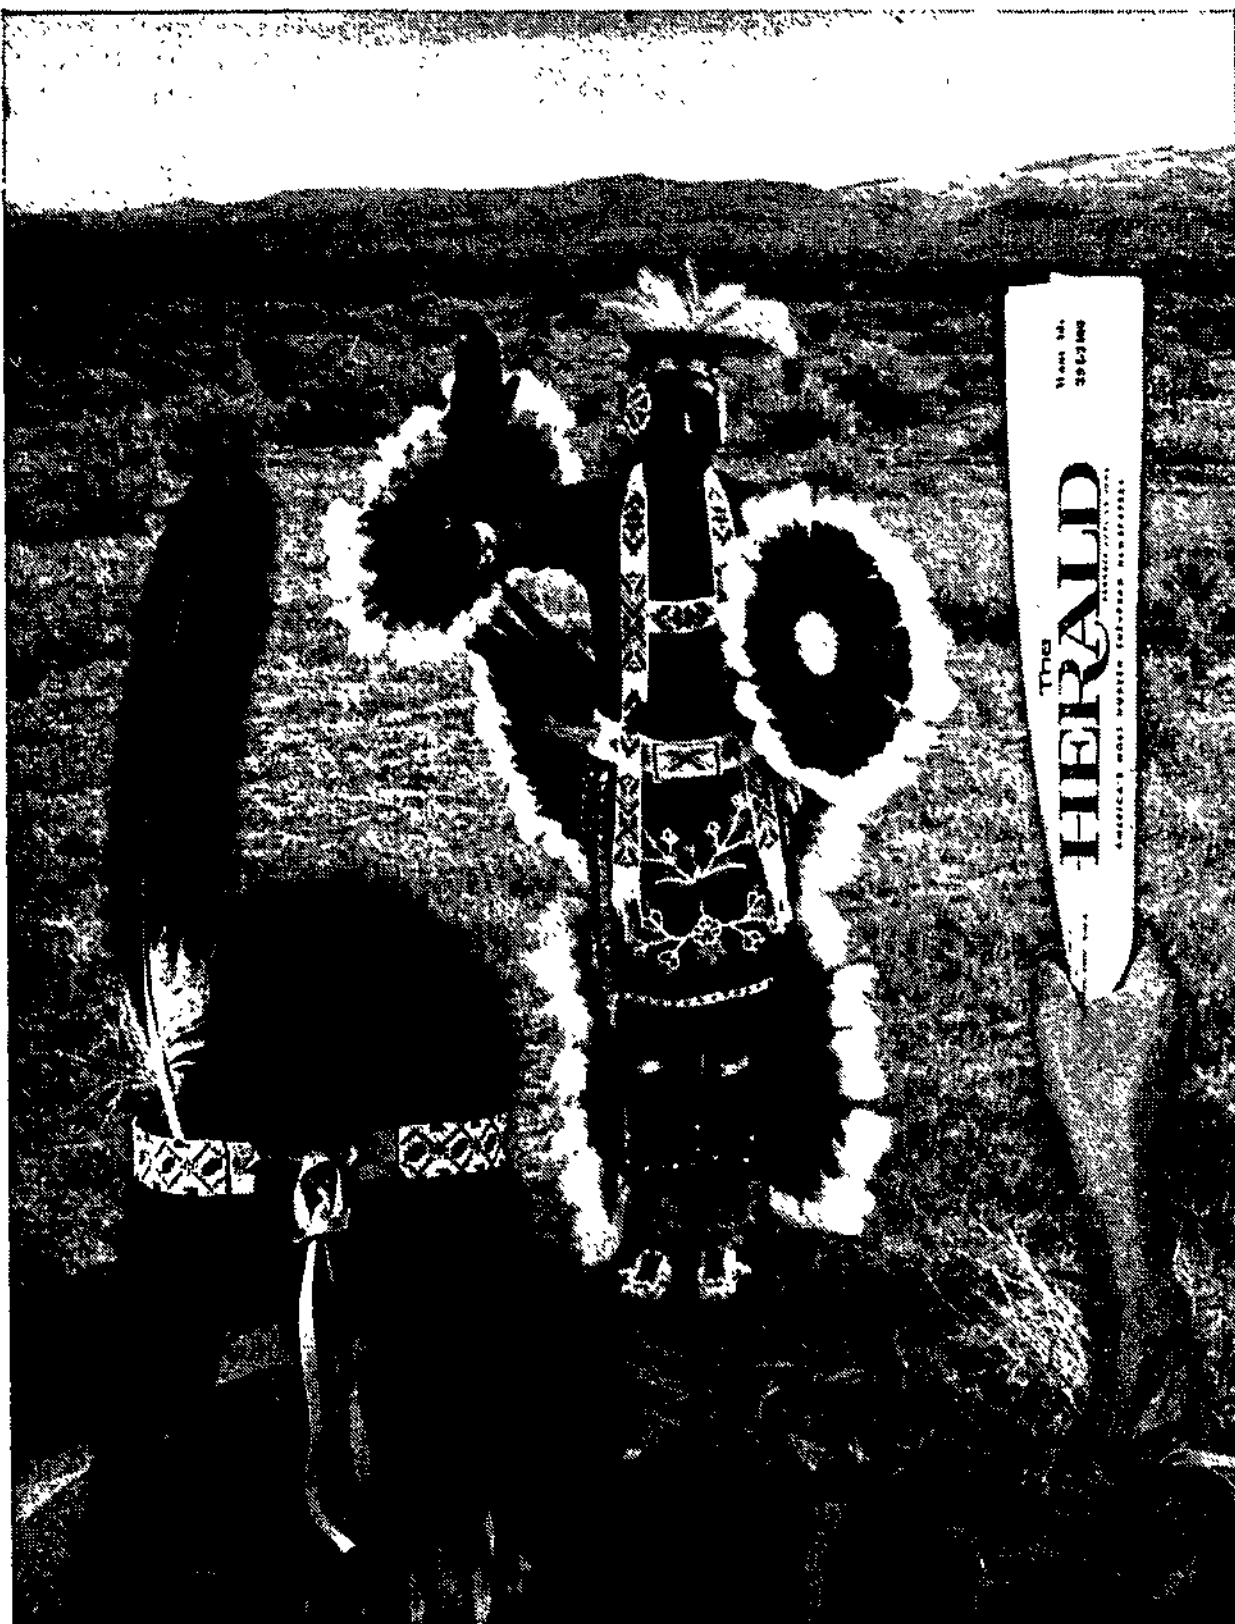

Boeing recently completed a two-year, company sponsored research program which demonstrated successfully that flying remotely piloted aircraft was practical. A light aircraft was modified for that purpose and flown by remote control.

During the demonstration program, several pilots flew dozens of missions, day after day, and successfully developed the ability to fly these drones with the same skill they displayed in piloting standard, manned aircraft.

FOR SAFETY purposes, a check pilot always rode in the cockpit and monitored the flights which were operated by a pilot on the ground.

Why the Air Force permitted revelation of the Compass Cope program was not explained. A Boeing spokesman said the Seattle-based aerospace firm was under instructions from the Pentagon from the beginning to keep the project secret.

The Air Force "changed its mind," the spokesman said, after two Washington, D.C., aviation magazines printed the story.

THE ACCEPTED INFLUENCE IN THE NORTHWEST SUBURBS

Collecting Coins

by Mort Reed

Despite the similarity in design, the Kennedy half-dollar series contains three distinctly different coins. The 1964 with a 90 per cent silver content, the 1965 to 1970 with a 40 per cent silver content and the 1971 of cupro-nickel with absolutely no silver in its alloy.

With the sudden appearance of "silver" 1971 and 1972 half-dollars, there is a mad rush to acquire as many Kennedy half-dollars as possible in hopes of finding a valuable mint error among them. Which of course, is a waste of time because the mint has never, intentionally or accidentally, struck a silver Kennedy half-dollar dated after 1970.

Of the specimens I have personally examined, all were extremely fine examples of silver plating but not beyond the point of detection. A sharp knife tip or needle soon revealed signs of the copper core when the plating was disturbed between the readings on the edge.

The same is true of "silver" Washington quarters and Roosevelt dimes dated after 1965. Without exception, each has been plated to resemble an all-silver piece which would command a fair price on the collectors' market if it were genuine.

AT ONE TIME, plating a coin of the United States for the purpose of increasing its value was considered an illegal act and such pieces were usually confiscated by the Secret Service. A case in point was the famous gold plated Liberty-head nickel of 1883. Because it lacked the word "CENTS," it was possible to gold plate a sharp copy and pass it off as a five-dollar gold piece which became known as the "Racketeer's nickel." It is no longer confiscated by the Secret Service, and with the open sale and distribution of gold plated Eisenhower dollars, I see no immediate federal intervention into the plating and sales of Kennedy half-dollars.

Top Canadian painter to be cited in commemorative

The Canada Post Office will release a 15-cent stamp June 8 honoring the 100th anniversary of the birth of J. E. H. MacDonald, one of Canada's leading painters.

James Edward Herve MacDonald was born in Durham, England in 1873. The family moved to Canada in 1887 and settled in Hamilton where MacDonald attended art school for two years.

He worked as a lithographer and designer before devoting himself completely to painting in 1911. In 1929 he became principal of the Ontario College of Art, a position he retained until his death in 1932.

The design for the J. E. H. MacDonald stamp is a reproduction of one of his finest canvases, Mist Fantasy, used through the courtesy of the Art Gallery of Ontario.

ASHTON-POTTER LTD., of Toronto is printing 12,000,000 of the stamps in four-color lithography. Marginal inscriptions including the name of the artist and the title of the painting appear in the four corners of each pane of 50 stamps. The entire production will be Ottawa tagged.

Mint stamps are available through the Philatelic Service, Canada Post Office, Ottawa, Ontario K1A 0B5.

Collectors desiring first day cancellations should send their requests to "MacDonald Stamp, First Day Cover Service, Philatelic Service, Canada Post Office, Ottawa, Ontario K1A 0B5" enclosing the proper remittance (in Canadian funds) plus a 5-cent service fee for each cover requested.

AUSTRALIA will issue four stamps in its National Development Series June 6.

The 20-cent adhesive honors the shipping industry; 25-cent, iron ore, and steel; 30-cent, beef roads, and the 35-cent, mapping.

Fully serviced first day covers bearing all four stamps are available for $1.19 and a souvenir pack, containing all four stamps and an information folder, can be purchased for $1.10 from the Philatelic Section, Australia Post Office, Communications House, 199 William St., Melbourne, Australia 3000. Be sure to send your remittance in Australian funds.

AREA STAMP CLUBS: The Northwest Suburban Stamp Club meets at 7:30 p.m. on the second Monday of the month at the Des Plaines Funeral Home, 1717 Rand Rd., Des Plaines.

The Northwest Philatelic Club meets at 7:30 p.m. on the first Tuesday and the third Wednesday of the month at St. Mark's Youth Center, 205 W. Wille St., Mount Prospect.

The Twinbrook Stamp Club meets at 7:30 p.m. on the second and fourth Friday of the month (except during June, July and August when the one monthly meeting is on the second Friday) at the Vogel Park Administration Building, 650 W. Higgins Rd. (just west of Golf and Higgins roads), Hoffman Estates.

Guests are welcome at all club meetings.

DON'T FORGET COMEX '73 (Combined Philatelic Exhibition of Chicago-land) this weekend at the LaSalle Hotel, Chicago.

Doors open at 10 a.m. and admission is 50 cents for adults, 25 cents for high school students up to age 15. There is no admission charge for youngsters under this age or for men and women in uniform.

Hersey musician wins $500 prize

Jeffery Hickey, a Hersey High School senior, has been awarded a $500 prize in Northwestern University's 1973 prize competition for entering freshmen.

Hickey, who will enroll in Northwestern's school of music in the fall of 1973 as a freshman, won the award for his outstanding performance on the trumpet.

The prize competition was held April 3 and 4 on Northwestern's Evanston campus. Thirty high school seniors participated.

Hickey lives at 1830 N. Forrest Ln., Arlington Heights.

Win At Bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

The student won the first trick with dummy's ace of clubs and played the ace of trumps. West showed out and the student looked imploringly at the Professor, who was kibitzing. Finding no encouragement in the Professor's countenance, the student led a second trump and finished his eight. Then he led his last club.

West won the trick with the queen and led a spade. The student won with dummy's jack and tried to cash the jack of clubs. East ruffed and the student overruffed.

The student played on for some time, but eventually was one down.

"Did I miss a trump coup?" he asked. "No," replied the Professor. "You missed an easy game because you panicked and tried to play the hand indirectly. Direct play would have brought you 10 tricks in no time at all."

All the student had to do was to cash his king of hearts at trick four and lead another heart. The contract would wheel in after that although if East played king and another diamond it would be up to South to discard his last club on the sec-

50 Sacred Heart pupils in honors unit

Nearly 50 students were inducted into the National Honor Society at Sacred Heart of Mary High School in Rolling Meadows during ceremonies last night.

The honor students were selected from 220 candidates in the junior and senior classes. To be eligible for membership, the students had to have at least an accumulative "B" average. In addition to scholarship, the faculty rated the applicants on leadership, character and service.

AND EVERYTHING NICE ABOUT FOOD

Memorial Day marks the time to get out the grill and get into the swing of the outdoor scene where the mood is relaxed and the tempo leisurely. For culinary inspiration look to tranquil tropical isles where cookery under sun and stars is a year 'round thing.

A lean boneless pork loin roast provides a flavorsome focal point for an informal summer feast staged for family and friends. This roast is easy to cook in the oven or on the outdoor rotisserie.

For additional flavor, brush the rotating roast with a Polynesian glaze — a blend of pineapple preserves and soy sauce. A medley of vegetables, deliciously sauced and served tender-crisp, makes a tasty table partner for the pork.

a patio feast fit for the holiday

Rotisserie Pork Loin Roast — Polynesian Glaze

4 to 8-pound boneless pork loin roast
Polynesian Glaze

Insert rotisserie rod through exact center of roast, using prongs to hold meat in place. Insert meat thermometer, angling it so bulb is centered in roast, but not resting in fat or on rod. Place on rotisserie and cook at low to moderate temperature to well done (170 degrees). Allow 2 to 3½ hours cooking time depending upon size of roast. During last 30 minutes, brush several times with Polynesian Glaze.

Polynesian Glaze

- ¾ cup pineapple preserves
- ½ cup soy sauce
- 1 tablespoon sesame seed
- ½ teaspoon ginger
- ¼ teaspoon garlic powder

Combine pineapple preserves, soy sauce, sesame seed, ginger and garlic powder.

Tricolor Vegetable Medley

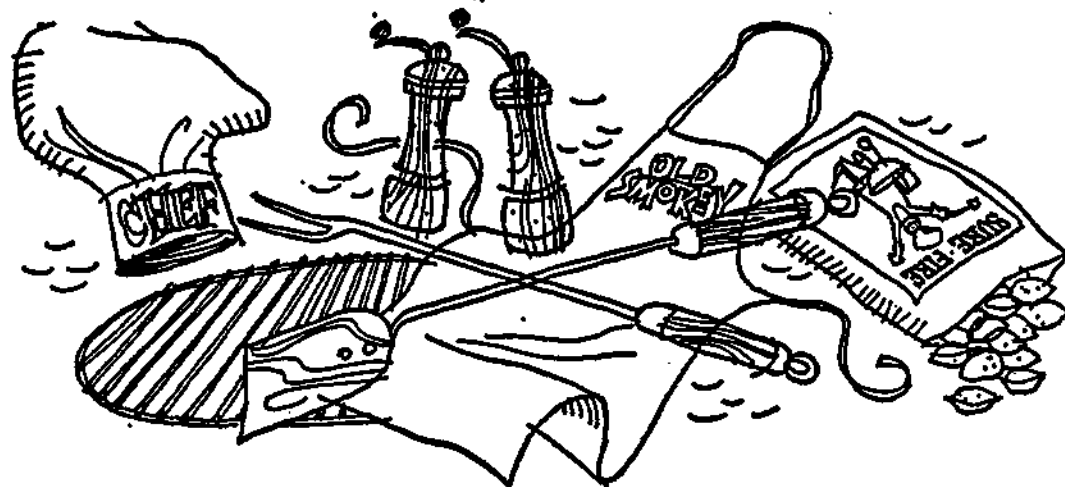

- 1 package (9 ounces) frozen Italian green beans
- 1 cup diagonally sliced celery
- 1 medium-sized green pepper, cut in julienne strips
- 1 onion, cut in 8 wedges and separated
- ½ to ¾ cup boiling water
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- ½ cup cold water
- ¼ cup soy sauce
- 1 can (4 ounces) water chestnuts, drained and sliced
- ¼ cup strips of pimiento

Add beans, celery, green pepper and onion to boiling salted water in large frying pan (water should cover bottom of pan). Bring to boil, separating the beans. Reduce heat to maintain a gentle boil, cover and cook 6 to 9 minutes or until vegetables are tender crisp and drain thoroughly. Combine sugar and cornstarch, in frying pan, blend in cold water and soy sauce and cook, stirring constantly until thickened. Add cooked vegetables, water chestnuts and pimiento strips, stirring to coat all vegetables and heat through.

Grape Vine Souffle

- 1 package (3 ounces) lemon flavored gelatin
- ½ cup boiling water
- 1 pint ice cream (your favorite flavor)
- 1 cup whipping cream, whipped
- 4 cups Thompson seedless grapes
- Chocolate curls, if desired

Pour boiling water over gelatin, stirring until completely dissolved. Soften ice cream by mashing with wooden spoon. Pour gelatin over ice cream, stirring to blend and chill until partially congealed. Fold in 2 cups grapes and fill 1½-quart dish, alternating ½ cupful of the ice cream mixture and whipped cream. Swirl slightly with handle of wooden spoon for a marbled effect. Chill until almost set and cover top with remaining grapes. Chill 4 to 6 hours or overnight. Top with chocolate curls before serving, if desired. 6 servings.

Savory Grilled Pork Steaks

- 4 to 6 pork steaks, cut ½ to ¾ inch thick
- 2 tablespoons brown sugar
- 2 teaspoons curry powder
- ¾ cup soy sauce
- 1 can (15 ounces) tomato sauce
- 1 small onion, chopped

Blend brown sugar and curry powder in small saucepan. Gradually add soy sauce, tomato sauce and onion, stirring until blended. Bring to boil, reduce heat and cook slowly 5 minutes. Cool. Place steaks in large plastic bag. Add marinade. Press air out of bag, close securely and place in utility pan or dish. Marinate 4 to 6 hours or overnight in the refrigerator. Remove steaks and place on grill; reserve marinade. Broil steaks at low to moderate temperature, brushing with marinade and turning occasionally for 30 to 40 minutes or until well done. 6 to 8 servings.

Grape Clusters with Little Cheese Pies

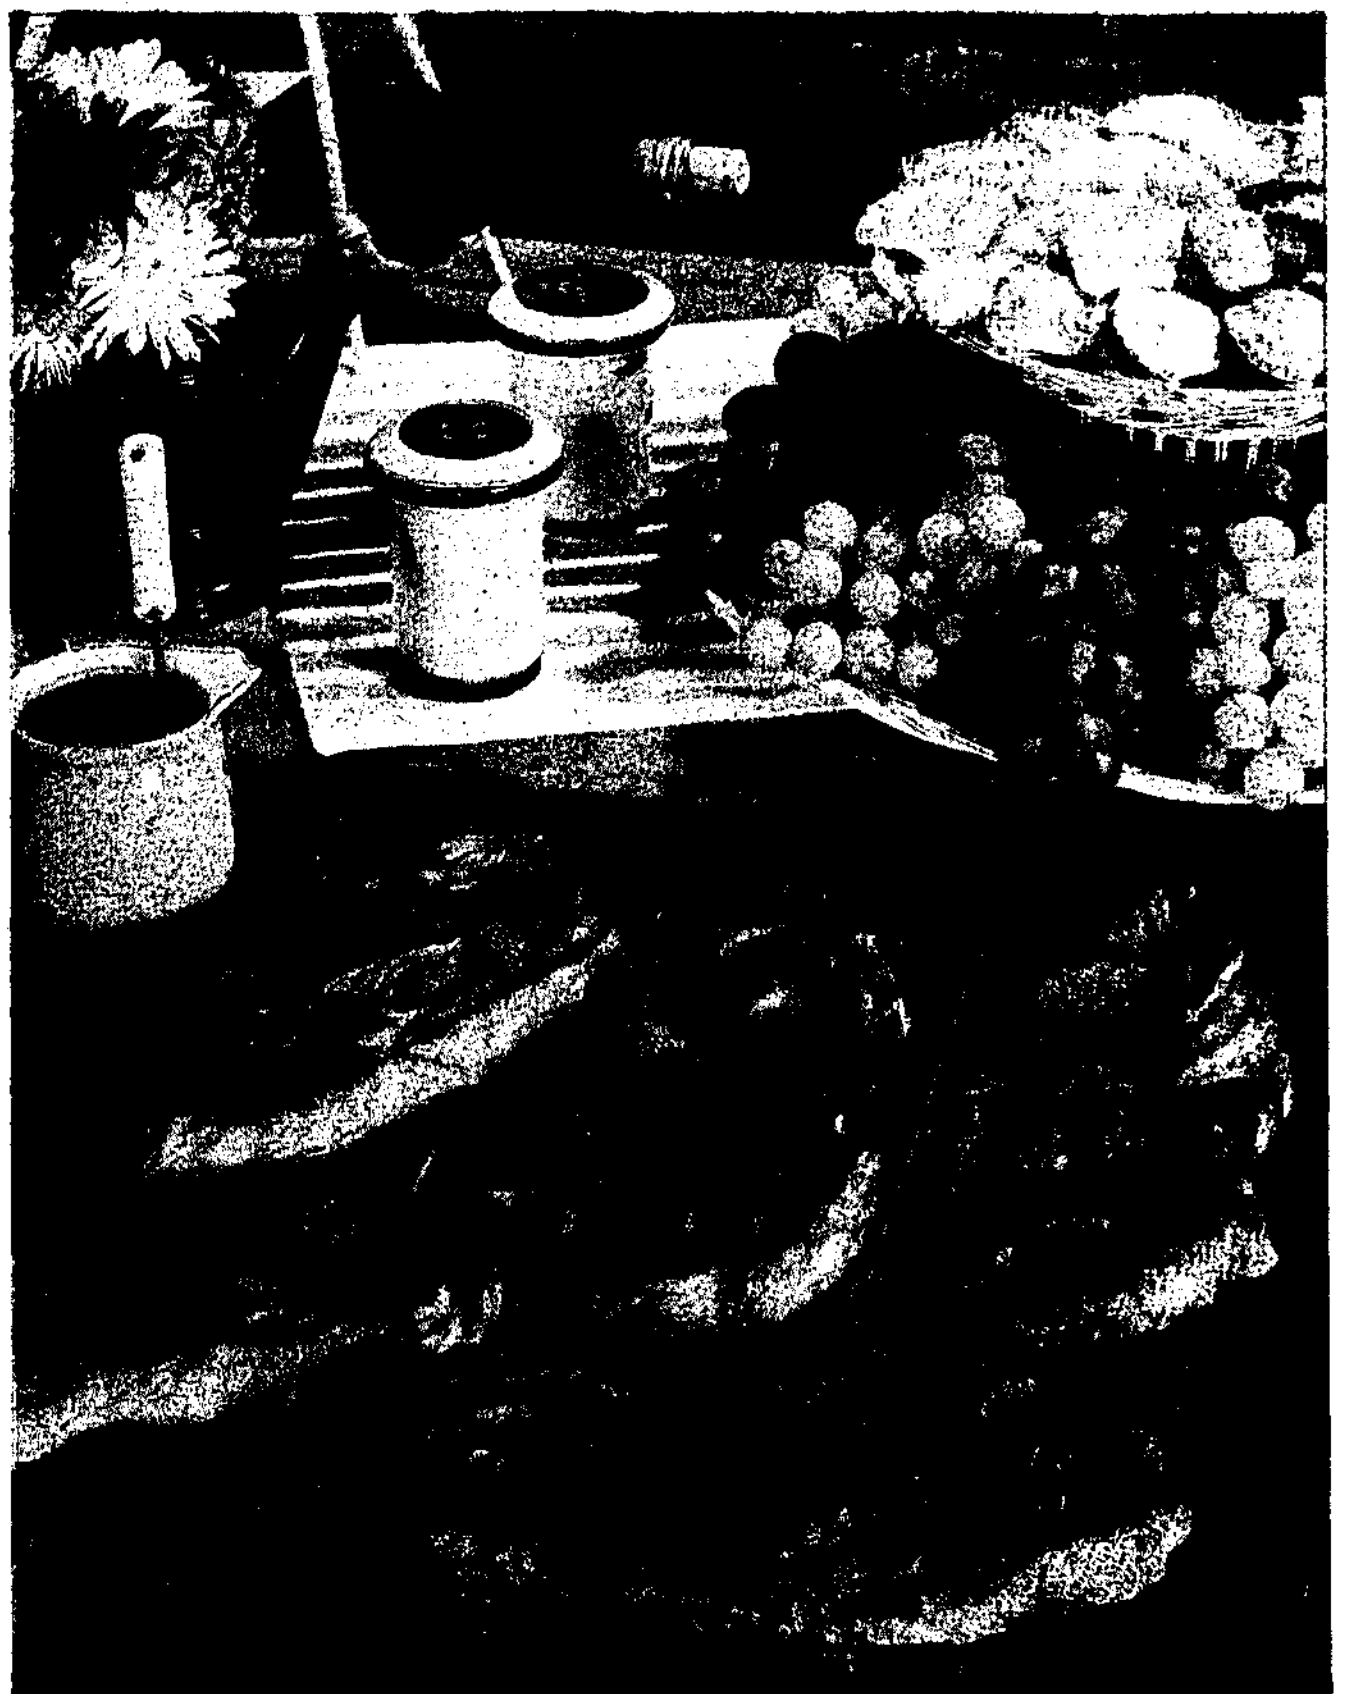

- 4 ounces grated sharp Cheddar cheese, or crumbled blue cheese
- 1 package (8 ounces) cream cheese
- 2 cups flour
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ cup lard
- 1 egg yolk
- 3 tablespoons cold water
- 1 egg white
- 1 tablespoon cold water
- ¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese
- Clusters of California grapes

Mix grated Cheddar or crumbled blue cheese with ½ package cream cheese (4 ounces) until blended, cover and chill while preparing pastry. Sift together flour and salt. Cut in lard and remaining cream cheese with pastry blender or fork until crumbs are the size of small peas. Beat egg yolk with 3 tablespoons cold water and add, a little at a time, mixing quickly and evenly through flour with a fork until dough holds in a ball. Divide dough in half and roll each portion to ¼ inch or less in thickness. Cut into approximately 3 dozen circles, each 3½ inches in diameter. Lightly beat egg white and 1 tablespoon cold water and brush over pastry circles. Place approximately 1 teaspoon cheese filling on each circle, fold dough over enclosing cheese to form semicircles and crimp edges with floured fork to close securely. Prick tops with fork, brush with remaining egg white mixture, sprinkle with Parmesan cheese and place on baking sheet. Bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees) 15 to 20 minutes or until lightly browned. Serve warm with chilled grape clusters.

Fresh fruit, a fine finish for any alfresco meal, is superb when the choice is green grapes molded in swirls of coffee ice cream and whipped cream.

Economical pork blade steaks can be broiled on the grill. When marinated in a curry-flavored mix of tomato and soy sauces, the flavor of the steaks is fantastic. Complete the main course with vegetable and salad favorites.

For dessert provide a combination of green and red grapes for nibbling. Paired with make-ahead cheese pies, this is a delightful twist on the classic cheese and fruit theme.

Mrs. Herman Divito

Italian fare pleases her guests

BY LOIS SEILER

Because her guests expect it, Lee Divito of Des Plaines usually serves Italian food at dinner parties. Lee and her husband, Herman, are of Italian descent, yet they enjoy all types of cooking. But their friends look forward to Lee's Italian specialties, which have been handed down in the family.

A favorite is stuffed manicotti shells, for which Lee makes her own pasta. Unlike commercially-prepared shells, hers resemble a crepe or pancake. Lee rolls them up with a mixture of Ricotta and Parmesan cheese seasoned with garlic and parsley.

The stuffed manicotti is baked in a savory tomato sauce containing ground beef and Italian sausage. Lee objects to the pungent flavor of fresh garlic, so uses garlic powder instead. Her sauce is also less spicy than many Italian recipes.

"The recipe sounds like a lot of work but really isn't," Lee explained. "It is best made a day ahead, so there is little to do other than bake the dish before serving."

"Italians are noted for their hearty meals," Lee said, "and our family is no exception. We often serve roast chicken or browned Italian sausage on the side, along with the manicotti."

She also serves a vegetable, a salad tossed with a vinegar and oil dressing and French bread.

The vegetable is usually fresh zucchini squash or asparagus made in the Italian manner. It is sauteed in oil with onion until tender. Then eggs are scrambled in and the dish is seasoned with salt, pepper, a little garlic and Parmesan cheese.

For dessert Lee recommends one of her American favorites, a festive Banana Split Pie. As its name suggests, this dessert resembles a banana split assembled in a pie shell. It is decorated with maraschino cherries and chopped nuts, and may be served with chocolate sauce, if desired.

"You can make it in advance, pop it into the freezer and forget about it until serving time," Lee said. "It is pretty for a summertime party, and very popular."

The pie always makes a hit with her own family, which includes daughter and son-in-law, Janis and Jack Duffy of Des Plaines, and sons Joseph, a senior at Western Illinois University, and Alan, 18.

STUFFED MANICOTTI SHELLS

Shells:

3 eggs
2 cups cold water
1 1/2 cups flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 stick margarine, melted
In electric mixer, combine eggs, water, flour and salt and beat well. Add melted margarine and mix well. Pour into a pitcher.

Heat a 7-inch Teflon skillet over low heat. Pour 1/4 cup mixture into pan, shaking to cover bottom. Cook until glossy, as you would a crepe or pancake. Do not turn over. Lift out of pan with spatula, being careful not to break. Layer on waxed paper, using waxed paper between each layer. Cool. Shells may be frozen or kept in refrigerator until ready to use.

Filling:

1 1/2 pounds Ricotta cheese
3 eggs
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
1/4 teaspoon garlic powder
1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese
Mix ingredients together. Fill each crepe with the cheese mixture and roll up. Cover with the following sauce:

1 pound Italian sausage
1 pound ground beef
1 small onion, chopped fine
1/2 teaspoon garlic powder
1/2 teaspoon oregano
1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese
2 medium-size cans Hunt's tomato puree or sauce
2 small cans tomato paste
6 small cans water

Remove casing from sausage and break up Brown sausage and beef. Add onion and remaining ingredients and simmer, covered, for one hour.

Put a little sauce in the bottom of a 9 by 13-inch baking dish. Arrange filled crepes in single layer over the sauce. Cover with remaining sauce. Sprinkle a little Parmesan cheese over the top. Cover with foil and bake for a half hour at 350 degrees. Serves 4 generously. (If assembled a day ahead, do not bake until ready to serve.)

ZUCCHINI SQUASH

2 large zucchini
Cooking oil
1 small fresh onion or 2 green onions, sliced thin
2 beaten eggs
Salt and pepper
Garlic salt
Parmesan cheese

Slice zucchini in rounds about 1/4-inch thick. Saute in oil about 20 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add onion and cook about ten minutes or until onions are soft. Add eggs and mix through, cooking until eggs are set. Season with salt, pepper and a little garlic salt and sprinkle with Parmesan cheese. Serves 4.

BANANA SPLIT PIE

Crust:

2 cups flour
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup Crisco
5 tablespoons cold water

Combine flour and salt. Cut in shortening until mixture resembles coarse meal. Sprinkle in water and form into dough. Divide dough in half and keep half in freezer or refrigerator for future use. Roll out other half and fit into a 9-inch pie pan. Prick with a fork and bake in a 400 degree oven for ten minutes. Remove from oven and let cool.
1 pint strawberry ice cream
2 bananas
1 small carton Cool Whip
Maraschino cherries
Chopped walnuts

Soften ice cream. Slice bananas into baked and cooled pie shell. Swirl softened ice cream over bananas. Freeze about one hour or longer. When set, remove and swirl half of the Cool Whip over this. Dot with eight halves of cherries (one for each slice of pie) and sprinkle nuts around each cherry. Place in a baggie and store in freezer. Remove a half hour before serving. Serve with chocolate sauce over the top, if desired. Serves 8.

STUFFED MANICOTTI shells are a favorite of Mrs. Herman Divito's dinner guests. This Des Plaines homemaker prepares her own pasta for the shells using an old family recipe. After stuffing the crepe-like shells with a mixture of Ricotta and Parmesan cheese seasoned with garlic and parsley, Mrs. Divito covers them with a savory tomato sauce before baking.

Sausage in Midwest style

It's that time of year again when homemakers would rather be outside than in the kitchen involved in time-consuming meal preparation.

Precooked sausages are time and money savers. Specially selected meats are chopped and seasoned before stuffing into casings. After smoking, which imparts flavor and color, the sausage is ready to heat and eat — or combine in casseroles and salads.

Polish sausage here is boiled with new potatoes, then carrots and asparagus are added at the end of the cooking time. A version of the traditional New England boiled dinner, which is made with beef brisket, potatoes and various vegetables, this sausage dish can be every bit as attractive.

For another sausage idea, make cassoulet salad, a bowlful of three kinds of beans, well-seasoned and tossed with slices of smoked Thüringer sausage and garnished with salami rosettes. Serve it with crusty bread for lunch or for a supper after a hard day's work.

MIDWESTERN BOILED DINNER

1 1/2 pounds Polish sausage
1 pound new potatoes, washed

Salted water
1 large bunch carrots, pared
1 pound fresh asparagus, trimmed
Salt and pepper

In large Dutch oven, place Polish sausage and new potatoes with water to cover. Cover and bring to a boil; reduce heat to simmer. Simmer 20 minutes or until potatoes are almost done.

Add carrots and cook, covered, until almost tender, about 5 minutes. Add asparagus and cook, covered, another 5 minutes. Drain. On large platter, arrange as follows: Place Polish sausage links in circular fashion on platter and fill center with potatoes. Arrange carrots and asparagus in spoke fashion around sausage. Season to taste. Serve at once to 4 to 6.

COLD CASSOLET SALAD

1 (16-ounce) can garbanzo beans, drained
2 (16-ounce) cans red kidney beans, drained
1 (16-ounce) can pinto beans, drained
1/2 cup chopped green onions, including tops
1/2 cup chopped pimiento
1/2 cup vegetable oil

1/3 cup wine vinegar
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon oregano
1/2 teaspoon each: basil, dill weed, salt and pepper
Dash Tabasco
1 pound smoked Thüringer sausage, cut on diagonal 1/4 inch thick
1/2 pound thinly sliced salami
Parsley

In large bowl, combine beans. Stir in green onion and pimiento. In a jar, combine oil, vinegar, lemon juice and seasonings. Shake well and pour over vegetables. Cover and chill several hours. At serving time, toss Thüringer slices with bean mixture. Drain. Heap into salad bowl. Fold salami in half and roll into rosettes with sprig of parsley in center of each. Place around rim of salad. Serve to 6 to 8.

Midwestern Boiled Dinner

Day-ahead artichoke salad teams flavor and nutrition

Good nutrition and good eating are the delights of the salad bowl. Creative salads add menu interest in terms of texture, flavor and appetite appeal. And more importantly, they round out the day's requirements for nutrients.

Day Ahead Artichoke Salad is innovative in its use of two compatible salad dressings and because it's a green salad which can be prepared mostly in advance. Its uniqueness made it a winner in a recent Salad Safari search among U.S. Food Editors sponsored by Kraft Foods.

The day before serving, the artichoke hearts, sliced carrots and ripe olives are marinated in a tangy Italian Dressing. Greens can be prepared in advance too and stored in the refrigerator until serving time. At the last minute, ingredients are tossed, then topped with a creamy blue cheese dressing. Crisp and nutritious, colorful and cool, Day Ahead

Artichoke Salad is a specialty salad for all seasons.

DAY-AHEAD ARTICHOKE SALAD

2 7-oz. cans artichoke hearts, drained, cut in half
1 1-lb. can sliced carrots, drained
1 cup sliced pitted ripe olives
1/2 cup Italian Dressing
1/2 lb. spinach
2 quarts lettuce chunks
Blue cheese dressing
CROUTONS
Marinate artichoke hearts, carrots and olives in Italian Dressing several hours or overnight.
Tear spinach in bite-size pieces into a salad bowl. Add marinated vegetables and lettuce; toss lightly. Sprinkle with croutons. Serve with blue cheese dressing.
8 to 10 servings.

From the Pennsylvania Dutch

One-pot specialties with chicken

Savory, one-pot specialties of the Pennsylvania Dutch, such as a pot pie rich with chicken, simple vegetable flavors, and noodles, offer excellent nutrition in readily-digestible dishes.

Pennsylvania Dutch Chicken Pot Pie is different. Instead of a pastry topping, it has hearty noodles, sprinkled with bread crumbs and put under the broiler to crisp.

The chicken is simmered, cut into smaller pieces, and the broth used to make a fine, rich sauce. The vegetables are traditional. Diced potatoes are included with the noodles; then there are green peas and a generous amount of parsley. This is a hearty, home-oriented main dish that will please all members of your family, young or old.

Anyone who has traveled to Pennsylvania Dutch country during the season of their great country fairs has enjoyed dining from a big tureen of Chicken-Corn Soup. The corn is brought in fresh from the field and the kernels removed from the cobs. The chicken is simmered with savory vegetables, then included in good-sized chunks in the soup. It's a unique soup — really a main dish — wonderfully worthwhile for your family to enjoy at this time. Frozen corn kernels will see you through this dish when fresh corn is not plentiful.

PENNSYLVANIA DUTCH CHICKEN POT PIE

2 tablespoons flour
5 cups chicken broth (from Simmered Chicken)
2 tablespoons chopped celery leaves
2 cups diced pared raw potatoes
1 package (10 ounces) frozen peas
1/4 teaspoon dried leaf marjoram
2 teaspoons salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
2 cups (4 ounces) egg noodles, cooked
5 cups cut-up cooked chicken (from Simmered Chicken)
2 tablespoons fine dry bread crumbs
In large kettle, blend flour with a little chicken broth to make a paste. Add remaining broth, celery leaves, potatoes, peas, marjoram, salt, pepper and parsley. Bring to boil, reduce heat and simmer 20 minutes. Add chicken and heat through. Turn into casserole, place cooked noodles on top and sprinkle with bread crumbs; broil 5 minutes to crisp top. Yield: 8 servings.

SIMMERED CHICKEN

2 broiler-fryer chickens, whole or cut in serving pieces
4 cups water
1 onion, sliced
4 celery tops
2 sprigs parsley

2 bay leaves
2 teaspoons salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper

Put chickens in kettle; add water and remaining ingredients. Bring to a boil; cover tightly. Reduce heat and simmer 1 hour or until tender. Remove from heat; strain broth. Refrigerate chicken. When chicken is cool enough to handle, remove meat from bones and cut into bite-size pieces.

PENNSYLVANIA DUTCH CHICKEN-CORN SOUP

6 cups chicken broth (from Simmered Chicken)
1/4 cup chopped onion
1/4 cup chopped celery
1/4 cup chopped parsley
1 package (10 ounces) frozen corn
1/4 teaspoon sugar
2 teaspoons salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/4 teaspoon saffron
2 cups (4 ounces) egg noodles
2 1/2 cups cut-up cooked chicken (from Simmered Chicken)
In large kettle or Dutch oven, heat chicken broth. Add onion, celery and parsley and simmer 15 minutes. Add corn, sugar, salt, pepper, saffron and noodles. Simmer 15 minutes. Add chicken and heat 5 to 10 minutes longer. Yield: 8 servings.

SIMMERED CHICKEN

1 broiler-fryer chicken, whole or cut in serving pieces
5 cups water
1 onion, sliced
2 celery tops
1 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
Put chicken in kettle, add water and remaining ingredients. Bring to a boil; cover tightly. Reduce heat and simmer 1 hour, or until tender. Remove from heat; strain broth. Refrigerate chicken. When chicken is cool enough to handle, remove meat from bones and cut into bite-size pieces.

Franfare

by Fran Heckart

The greatest onion shortage in 50 years is easing up, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) Floyd F. Hedlund.

Mr. Hedlund, who is director of the Agricultural Marketing Service's Fruit and Vegetable Division, explained that the spring crop coming to market from Texas, California and Arizona is responsible for bringing onion prices back down from the record high they reached earlier this spring.

However, prices probably will remain above normal until the summer crop reaches the market since the spring crop has been estimated to be 9 per cent less than a year ago.

Blame for the absence of onions earlier this year lies chiefly with the weather and the rare coincidence of crop damage it caused in the number two and three onion-producing states — Texas and New York. (California is number one.)

New York's crop is a main source of supply for all states in the East. Its product is the storage onion — the bright yellow pungent bulb usually found in ample supply through the fall and winter.

The trouble in upstate New York began the latter part of last June when tropical storm Agnes sliced onion production in half — and that alone was enough to reduce the whole U.S. crop by nearly 7 per cent.

The rains were so heavy that they physically washed out the soil and it was impossible to replant many of the same fields, said one economist in the Fruit and Vegetable Division.

IN JANUARY 1973 storage holdings in this key onion-producing state were 44 million pounds—little more than a third of the 129 millions pounds of a year earlier.

Under normal conditions, onion-lovers might have looked to the 1973 early spring crop in south Texas to alleviate the March and April shortage. But once again the weather was uncooperative bringing cold and rain.

The result, according to Fruit and Vegetable Division economist James V. Fahey, was a South Texas crop that was short and late, instead of surpassing 1972's production of 300 million pounds, as was expected.

The combined result was the "great onion shortage."

Compounding the domestic onion situation this year was the world onion shortage. The U.S. void could not be filled with imports from western Europe, Chile, or Canada, because they were suffering scarcities of their own. Although Mexico doubled its normal exports to the United States, that was not nearly enough to make up for the short crop in New York.

The American consumer's "inelastic demand" for onions further complicated the problem. Even when supplies do not meet demand and prices are up, each of 210 million consumers still wants his 13 pounds of onions each year. This includes onions consumed daily in vast quantities in America's network of restaurant and roadside chains, and onion products — especially dried onions and French fried onion rings.

June deadline for State Fair recipe contest

June 15 is the deadline for entering recipes in the Blue Ribbon Bake-Off of the Illinois State Fair.

Although the semi-finals and finals are held during the Illinois State Fair, entries are now being accepted, according to bake-off superintendent Ruby Graves.

Constants (Illinois residents only) may submit any number of recipes for cakes, pies, cookies, bread, coffee cake or any baked dessert. Main dishes will not be accepted.

Recipes must be typewritten on a 5 1/2-inch card and should follow general proper procedure, listing all steps of preparation, pan sizes, temperature, baking time, etc.

A panel of home service representatives will select as finalists 48 recipes and 10 alternates. Finalists will prepare their recipes during the State Fair. A stove, refrigerator and preparation area will be provided but entrants will have to provide their own ingredients and utensils along with a $2.50 entry fee.

Premiums for the semi-finalists Aug. 11-16 are $25 for first place and $15 for second. The grand champion of the Bake-Off on August 17 will be awarded additional prizes.

Entry information and blanks are available from the Entry Department, Bake-Off, Illinois State Fair, Box 576, Springfield, Ill. 62705.

Breakfast; more flavor than fuss

Baked Eggs With Mushrooms

An exciting breakfast sets the tone for your whole day. It really makes you feel better, more refreshed, and can help you start the day with a fresh, happy outlook that will carry you through until lunch time.

With a dish like Baked Eggs with Mushrooms for breakfast you'll delight in the delicate, yet full, flavors of sautéed onions and fresh mushrooms sparked with pepper sauce and spread over buttered toast, then topped with eggs and cream and baked in individual dishes.

Eggs Goldenrod is another easy breakfast delight. It's a dish of chopped hard cooked eggs served in a delicately spiced cream sauce. Some of the cooked egg yolks are pressed through a sieve and sprinkled to form a ring around the edge of the dish giving the appearance of a blooming goldenrod flower.

BAKED EGGS WITH MUSHROOMS

- 6 tablespoons butter or margarine, divided
- 1/2 cup finely chopped onion
- 2 cups finely chopped fresh mushrooms
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon Tabasco
- 6 slices white bread
- 12 eggs
- 1/4 cup light cream, divided

Heat 4 tablespoons butter in large skillet; add onion and mushrooms and cook until tender. Add salt and Tabasco; remove to small bowl. Cut bread into six rounds; spread with remaining 2 tablespoons butter and toast in same skillet. Grease six ramekins. Place one toast circle in each ramekin; top with a layer of onion and mushrooms. Carefully break two eggs into each ramekin. Top with 2 tablespoons cream. Bake in 350 degree oven for 15 to 20 minutes, until eggs are set. Serve immediately. Yield: 6 servings.

EGGS GOLDENROD

- 6 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 6 tablespoons flour
- 1 tablespoon prepared mustard
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 3 cups milk
- 1/2 teaspoon Tabasco
- 2 tablespoons chopped parsley
- 9 hard-cooked eggs, shelled

Melt butter in saucepan. Blend in flour, mustard and salt; stir to a smooth paste. Stir in milk and cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Remove from heat; stir in Tabasco and parsley. Reserve 3 egg yolks; coarsely chop the whites. Quarter remaining eggs; add with chopped whites to cream sauce. Turn into serving dish. Press egg yolks through a sieve around edge of dish. If desired, sprinkle with paprika. Serve on toast or in patty shells or toast cups. Yield: 6 servings.

Mostly For Men

by Charles Flynn

A longtime friend from North Hollywood, Calif., contends that the Los Angeles area has now come into the world as a source of fine restaurants, rivaling New York and San Francisco.

To prove his point, he sent some excellent recipes for special dishes at some of his favorite spots. First is for Baked Cornish Hens from Eve's at 11675 San Vicente Blvd., which is noted for the fact that the head chef, Ann Romich, and all her helpers are women.

For 6 you'll need a half dozen Cornish game hens. If frozen, allow to thaw and reserve the giblets for another purpose. Combine 1 cup chicken consommé and 1 envelope unflavored gelatin in a saucepan and let the gelatin soften about 5 minutes. Stir in 1 cup dry white wine and 1/2 cup Madeira wine, bring to a boil and simmer uncovered for 30 minutes.

Rub the game hens inside and out with salt and pepper and brush skins lightly with butter. Broil 6 to 8 inches from heat, turning to get them an even golden brown.

Place browned hens in a large casserole, pour consommé sauce over, cover and bake 1 hour at 350 degrees. Uncover and baste with pan juices for about 15 minutes before hens are done.

Pour over hot Burgundy Cherry Sauce and serve.

To make the sauce put a 16-ounce can of pitted dark sweet cherries in heavy syrup into a pan and add 1/2 cup Burgundy wine. Heat until mixture reaches simmer, then serve. Makes 2 1/2 cups of sauce.

From the Pan American Restaurant at 2601 West Temple Street comes this recipe for fried green plantains or bananas. The Pan American is run by Cuban expatriates and probably more than any other establishment resembles the famous eateries which were on the Prado in Havana in the 40's.

If using plantains (a tropical plant which produces banana-like fruit) choose 3 which are mature but green, or use firm large bananas.

Peel and cut across into slices 1/4-inch thick. Heat 4 tablespoons lard in a big skillet and sauté the slices until soft. Don't overcook. Remove the slices from the skillet with a slotted spoon, draining off as much fat as possible. Cover with dampened paper toweling and hold until just about ready to serve.

Reheat pan drippings and flatten each slice with a spatula until about the size of a half dollar, then cook over high heat until browned on both sides. Drain on paper toweling, salt to taste and serve hot. These are substituted for fried potatoes at the Pan American. Enough for 6.

New Army career program includes cooking classes

by KENNETH J. BRADDOCK
Fort Ord, Calif. — The U.S. Army is marching on cup cakes and short orders these days.

It's part of what the Army hopes is a new approach to keeping volunteers it needs with the end of the draft, and to change the image of its cooks.

The Army figures that by next year it will need another 13,000 cooks to fill the jobs it has. It loses about one-third of its cooks and the outlook isn't bright, with growing demands for chefs in the burgeoning food service industry in civilian life where the pay and opportunities are better.

To help fill the demand, the Army is centralizing cook training at two bases, here on this Monterey Peninsula camp to handle West Coast recruits and at Fort Lee, Va., to cover the East.

Recruits go through basic training the same as all would-be soldiers before embarking on an eight-week cooking course that strives to make them budding gourmet chefs in the reality of preparing meals for hundreds of hungry troops on a weekend bivouac.

In learning how to prepare, cook and serve a wide range of foods, the trainee cooks — not all of them volunteer for the program despite Army recruiting claims — start learning how to prepare individual meals. Throughout the course, they learn how to make cakes, frosting, pastry and desserts and how to run a field mess.

For those who want to make a career in the kitchen, the Army has advanced courses that it describes as the "nice to know" but not essential things such as food management and nutrition.

Capt. Edward W. Phelan, of Fargo, N.D., chief of Fort Ord's Food Service Center, as the cook's school is called, said that although much of the present kitchen gear is old fashioned, plans have been approved for a $228,000 remodeling of the training equipment. When remodeling is completed in several months the students will learn their skills in kitchens just like the one at home. Groups of eight will learn from one instructor instead of the usual classes of 25.

Already, Phelan said, experimental short order stands offering alternatives to the meal of the day are giving stiff competition to franchised food stands on base. With modernization of Army equipment for this line, the short order business is expected to grow even more rapidly.

"One of the things we're trying to discourage is the kind of mammoth productions that we used to have of slab cakes to feed up to 100 men," Phelan said. "What we'd like to see is, say, eight or 10 regular size cakes."

A couple of scratch cakes with lemon-flavored frosting and blueberry muffins prepared by one cooking class were rated highly by a visitor to the school.

"We've always had problems with the cook's image," Phelan said of the traditional KP punishment meted out in the Army.

"Now there's no more KP. We hope this will improve the image by getting the cooks into the cooking business."

Pvt. Dan Pulos of Belmont, Calif., requested topographic surveying to be his specialty in the Army, but found out he was going to be a cook when his name was read from a list.

"At first I thought 'oh, no,'" he said. "But now I don't think it's so bad."

Looking up from his chore of learning to chop carrots, he grinned. "I should always be able to get a job," he said. "It's something I can always fall back on. At least I'll know how to cook."

Going abroad?

Traveler's guide to good health

Travel to faraway places can lift the spirits, and broaden the mind. But if you don't feel well overseas, you'll wish you never left home in the first place.

"If you've ever had 'Montezuma's Revenge' in Mexico City or a hemorrhoid as I once did in Florence, Italy, it can be pretty devastating," says Patrick J. Doyle, director of medical affairs for Alexandria (Va.) Hospital and co-author of "Rx: How to Travel the World and Stay Healthy." His prescription for a happy and healthy vacation includes seeing your family doctor, getting appropriate immunization, packing a personal medical kit and living wisely while abroad.

Dr. Doyle advises an appointment with your physician "at least three months before the trip" to work out a convenient inoculation schedule. He points out that since vaccination requirements "fluctuate from day to day and country to country," it's best to consult with your local health department to find out what shots you must — or should — have before going.

EVERY TRAVELER should carry a mini-medical kit to treat minor aches and pains, says Dr. Doyle. His basic list would include: aspirin, antacid tablets, something for diarrhea (he recommends paregoric), something for constipation ("People keep thinking all you get overseas is diarrhea. You'll find more people tend to be constipated because you're off your diet, and you're not drinking enough fluid"), Band-Aids, antiseptic cream, eye drops and sleeping pills if your doctor prescribes them.

Dr. Doyle suggests women travelers may also want to include personal hygiene items they might need on a trip. And for menopausal women who are taking prescribed estrogen medication, he urges "Make sure you get an adequate supply of the drug from your physician," adding, "An extra written prescription might be helpful if you do run out of medicine." That advice goes for all prescribed medications, says Dr. Doyle.

Dr. Doyle is quite strict on the care and feeding of the North American tourist, including himself.

"I don't drink water out of the tap. I drink the carbonated water. Local beer and soft drinks are usually good because most of those are pasteurized. Never use ice cubes. If you have to have a mixed drink use ice cold carbonated water with your liquor."

THE TRAVELING physician also steers clear of creamy sauces, is cautious about salads and never eats raw vegetables without completely peeling them. Having experienced the ill effects of foreign foods himself, he says he'd rather chance offending someone than eating food that might make him sick.

"I think there's a happy medium between being a hypochondriac and being completely permissive. The main thing is you want to enjoy your vacation."

If, despite all precautions, you do get sick abroad, Dr. Doyle says call the American embassy in the country you're visiting. All of them maintain lists of local physicians. Also, the major hotels retain doctors on call "but you can't guarantee what kind of care you'll get and usually they're fairly expensive," he says.

Another alternative is signing up in advance with a service agency. For a nominal fee "they will give you an up-to-date list of physicians practicing overseas who either speak English or who have had part of their training in this country and who have agreed on uniform fees," says Dr. Doyle.

Bachelor survival

Boys show domestic side

by FRAN HECKERT

Aprons may never replace football helmets but a lot of young high school fellows are putting both to good use.

There was a time when a man who neared a home economics room for any reason other than a piece of that creamy fudge was considered a sissy, at best. At worst, a man who dared show an interest bore the brunt of crude comments and labels from his peers.

Fortunately, those days of strict role playing are ending and many area high schools are offering both coed and all-male home economics courses. All are meeting with enthusiastic response.

"We had more boys sign up than class space," said Charlene McConnell, who teaches "Bachelor Survival" at Rolling Meadows High School.

Mrs. McConnell was instrumental in the initiation of the class last fall. Limited to junior and senior males, the course is a general introduction to basic domesticities. The men are taught primarily how to get along without a woman in the house, according to Mrs. McConnell.

Fondue, French fries and doughnuts were prepared by Mrs. McConnell for two reasons, the main being to demonstrate how to use appliances and small equipment. Mrs. McConnell feels that students will be much more impressed with a fondue pot if they can enjoy the results. The second reason was to begin building a recipe file for the boys.

SHE THEN introduced the metric system and moved to a session on reading recipes and studying the information they contain.

"I had the boys keep a list of the food they ate for one weekend," said Mrs. McConnell. Although she doesn't consider herself a "nutrition nut," she was surprised to learn that many were surviving on pizza and Burger Kings.

In an attempt to amend the poor eating habits, Mrs. McConnell spent time teaching the boys how to buy food, what foods would provide an adequate diet and how nutritional foods could be interestingly prepared.

The general area of consumerism included reading labels and knowing the best buys. For example, without condoning TV dinners, Mrs. McConnell made certain that her students would know exactly what they were getting if they chose to purchase them. Along the same lines, she showed them how a casserole can be easily assembled and varied to suit personal tastes.

Cheryl Honack, who teaches a coed home economics course to junior high students at Plum Grove School in Palatine, takes much the same approach.

"Students should know that a typical frozen beef and gravy entree usually contains more gravy," said Mrs. Honack who stresses "critical" label reading in her class.

SHE CONCENTRATES on teaching the basic four nutrition theory, emphasizing that young people can choose their own

JEFF ANDERSON, a senior at Rolling Meadows High School, checks the pizza snacks he prepared in a "Bachelor Survival" food laboratory. The course is offered as an elective for junior and senior men and provides an insight into the domestic side of bachelorhood. The boys create their own recipes after their instructor, Mrs. Charlene McConnell, provides the basics.

diet. For example, if they want a hot dog for breakfast, they're still getting protein.

"They learn that what they eat is more important than when they eat it," she said.

Adding variety is also important, according to Mrs. Honack. If a student doesn't like vegetables, she introduces several ways to make them different and appealing.

After the short course in nutrition, both teachers concentrate on cooking techniques.

Mrs. McConnell offers basic recipes and amounts; then the boys create their own recipes for casseroles, salads, breads, or whatever they choose.

She feels boys are more creative. While the girls tend to stick to a basic quick bread recipe, the boys will add liberal dashes of bacon, cheese and other flavors to the "plain biscuits."

The men are not cookbook oriented and are actually encouraged to add original touches to ordinary recipes.

FOLLOWING THE theory that two heads are better than one, the young gentlemen work in groups of two or three at the maximum in the food laboratories.

As a final project in "Bachelor Survival" the boys give individual demonstrations of a complete meal beginning with appetizers and ending with demitasse, said Mrs. McConnell.

The students are given a free hand and prepare everything from pastries and homemade ice cream to Italian food... which all men seem to like, according to Mrs. McConnell.

When asked if the boys minded clean-up chores, Mrs. McConnell said, "Not when they have the reward of eating."

But not all semester is spent in the food labs. Ironing, caring for clothes, laundry and general upkeep of apartments is also included. The boys are even taught how to shorten a long-sleeved shirt along with other minor alterations.

Home economics for men has been acclaimed a success by both teachers and students and is being accepted by more schools.

"Perhaps the only problem," laughed Mrs. McConnell, "is that you have to stand on your head trying to find new ideas to keep the boys interested."

Adventure in education

Music makes teaching easier

"Teaching is communication. And music makes communication easier."

This is the basic philosophy that Ella Jenkins brings to educators in her two music workshops, "Adventures in Music" and "Adventures in Rhythm."

The American Music Conference recently cited Miss Jenkins for her innovative teaching techniques. They are creative and interesting.

"Children are surrounded by music every day — at home, in church, in stores, even in the streets," she said. "The teacher can build on this musical experience and use it to advantage in all aspects of class work."

Her workshops consist of a "sample" class during which she demonstrates how to involve the child in music. This is followed by discussions with educators assuming the roles of students. These techniques include teaching them how to play simple rhythm instruments, rhyming and counting songs, discussions of the instruments they are playing and some cultural information.

A COMPOSER, arranger and musician equally adept on guitar, ukulele and drums, Miss Jenkins is also in demand for concerts. But her major efforts are expanded in presenting clinics and workshops for teachers, administrators and civic leaders involved in Headstart and kindergarten programs.

"Children love to make music," she said. "They become involved in sharing musical experiences with their classmates and receive satisfaction from being able to create pleasant sounds."

"More than this," she added, "music offers the teacher an opportunity to enrich the child's entire school experience."

Ella Jenkins cited this example for kindergarten or preschoolers: "I often recommend that teachers introduce instruments to children one at a time. Begin with the rhythm sticks which they all get a chance to master. Then bring in a set of maracas. Each child has the opportunity to touch them, try them out for sound, learn their name and then pass them on to the next youngster."

SHE EXPLAINED that when the new instruments are combined with those the boys and girls already play, the class has a varied sound and the beginning of a rhythm band.

Soft-spoken, warm and outgoing, Ella stresses the importance of a teacher's relationship to her youngsters to stimulate their thinking about what they are learning and to broaden their knowledge beyond the classroom walls.

"I would like to have all participants in my clinics leave with so many new ideas that they want to try new methods and bring in new resources. I want to challenge their own imaginations so that they can make learning an interesting and enjoyable experience for every member of the class."

Miss Jenkins believes that field trips are essential. "A teacher can enhance a child's appreciation of music by taking the class to a music store. There children can see instruments of all types from all over the world. The teacher should arrange a demonstration of how they are played and the sounds they make."

"BACK IN THE classroom she can have pictures of instruments in use and the different situations in which they are used. And if it can be arranged, they should be taken to a factory to see how the instruments are made."

"I try to get the children to use themselves in the music lesson," Ella said, "to snap their fingers, to hop, skip, clap, hit the drums — to move freely."

A graduate sociologist from San Francisco State, Miss Jenkins returned to Chicago (where she grew up) in 1962 to direct the YMCA teen program and work with community groups. She also did frequent appearances on the Totem Club show then seen on Chicago's educational TV station.

PRESCHOOLERS TAWANI, Alan and Kellie make music with Ella Jenkins during a Headstart class in

Educators who accompanied the children to those early programs and saw her efforts reflected in the youngsters' enthusiasm asked her to present similar live demonstrations in their schools for other faculty members. And about 16 years ago she found that these requests were becoming frequent enough to warrant total devotion to this project. She left the YMCA to become a full-time music education clinician.

"ONE OF THE major points that I stress in all my clinics and workshops," she said, "is that teachers must share in the learning experience. If they enjoy what they are doing the children will, too."

Miss Jenkins believes that music enhances living and it's up to the teacher to make learning a challenging and enjoyable process of every day school life.

The engagement of Donna M. Marchetta to Roger J. Hooper is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rocco F. Marchetta, 707 Dresser Drive, Mount Prospect. Donna and Roger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Hooper, Seneca Falls, N. Y., are planning an Oct. 27 wedding.

Anne Elizabeth Bradley's engagement to Pastor Phillip Alan Gronbach of Des Plaines is announced by her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Harold Whitman Bradley of Nashville, Tenn. Pastor Gronbach is assistant pastor of Trinity Lutheran Church, Des Plaines, where the wedding will be held July 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Peterson of Mount Prospect announce the engagement of their daughter Nancy Carol to John M. Severson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Severson of Inver Grove Heights, Minn.

A September wedding is planned.

Both Nancy and John have attended St. Olaf College, Northfield, Minn., and will graduate this month.

Anne is a social worker for Lutheran Welfare Services of Illinois and lives in Chicago. She is a graduate of Grinnell College and has a master of social work degree from the School of Social Service Administration, University of Chicago. She is now attending a two-year training program in family therapy at The Family Institute of Chicago in Oak Park.

Pastor Gronbach, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Gronbach, Rockwell, Iowa, is a graduate of Luther College, Decorah, Iowa, and received his master of theology degree from the Divinity School at the University of Chicago.

Gavin arrived May 12 at 6 pounds 14 ounces. His grandparents are Mrs. G. C. Malla of Minneapolis and the R. W. Roddys of Wheaton, Md.

A reminder to brides

The Herald reminds brides-to-be of the deadlines in effect for reporting wedding news. Full information is printed on forms available in all the Herald offices.

For detailed wedding story (including gown descriptions) information is due within three weeks following wedding date. Information received in Herald office after three weeks and up to five weeks following wedding date will be used for a brief story only or caption.

Accompanying picture should be a black and white glossy close-up photo (bouquet and up) of bridal pair or bride alone. At the discretion of the editors and the Herald photo department, color photos may or may not be used, depending on color tones contrast and clarity. Small snapshots are not acceptable.

We suggest the bride or some member of the family select a photo for the newspaper immediately upon receiving photographer's proof. Better yet — have the photographer make a selection and send it immediately to the Herald office. Any delay may mean missing the deadline.

If your photographer cannot comply with deadlines, write-up will be published without a photo providing information is in the Herald office before the deadline.

If wedding bells will soon be ringing in your family, we want to hear them, too.

There is no charge for publishing this news.

The Consumer

by Monica Wilch

What is the reason for the syndrome of arrogance in the world of "high finance?" The attitude of bankers, lenders, creditors and some other businessmen seems to be that the average consumer does not and cannot understand the kinds of financial matters they deal with.

Yet these matters — lending rates, credit policies and procedures, interest rates — directly concern the consumer. It is his money the financiers are dealing with, and in most cases the financial institution solicited the consumer's business in the first place, convincing him to open a bank account or to borrow money or to apply for a credit card.

Thus, even though "high finance" might be complicated, the consumer must not be cut out of the action the cal failure. The policy is good during a vacation trip to any destination in the U.S., Canada or Mexico.

IF THE breakdown leaves the family stranded, the policy also will cover 75 per cent (up to $225) of reasonable extra expenses for food, motel, car rental, towing and road service. Such non-repair expenses also will be reimbursed in the event of a collision, according to Ford Customer Service Division.

To be eligible you must own a 1968 or newer Ford, Lincoln or Mercury vehicle "in reasonably good operating condition." Enrollment forms reportedly will be available at 127 area dealerships.

Before shelling out the $15, however, motorists would be well advised to make sure the vacation insurance does not duplicate either new car warranty provisions or coverage provided in their regular auto insurance policy.

If you enroll in the vacation plan, I would like to hear of your experience. Write The Consumer, in care of Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006, or call 394-2300 Ex. 270.

Is high finance too high-handed with consumers?

moment his money is committed and ignored on the grounds that he is a dummy.

A MAJOR bank card company recently sent form letters to all its card holders presenting, in complicated language, several new policies in their credit contract. When I called an official of the company after receiving several inquiries about the letter, I was met with condescension and impatience. The official made it clear in several remarks that he assumed I, as a reporter, would not understand this complex financial matter.

If I could not grasp it, and explain it to my readers (as his company's letter had not), how did he expect the card holders to understand it? Obviously, he did not. But do the card holders not have a right to understand how much money they will be paying in interest when they use their bank cards?

If they do not have that right, why was the letter sent out at all? And if they do have that right, why was the letter presented in a form that the company assumes will not be understood by card holders or reporters?

RETAIL BUSINESSMEN used to have this attitude — that it was none of the public's business what was in the food they ate, or what the terms of a product warranty were, or how many miles a used car had on it, or how clothing should be cared for to avoid ruining it. They have changed their ways in a hurry over the last few years, under pressure from the consumer movement. Now, nearly every company that deals with consumers has a consumer department for the express purpose of providing consumer education, as well as for formulating new consumer relations policies and dealing with consumer complaints and inquiries.

It is high time the whizzes of the financial world shed their condescending airs and began treating their customers as human beings with certain rights and more intelligence than they've been credited with so far. Anything less than this is pure manipulation.

THERE IS a growing conviction in the legal world that contracts must be understood by both parties in order to be valid. This would mean eliminating the legal jargon. According to Howard Kaufman, head of the Consumer Fraud Division of the Illinois Attorney General's office, there is a serious question whether a contract can represent a legal agreement if there has been no basic understanding on the part of the consumer. He calls for "bringing the level of sophistication down to where the consumer can understand it."

This can, and must, be done.

Ford has announced the selection of Chicago as a test market for a "No Unhappy Vacations Plan" that will reimburse motorists for car breakdown expenses they might encounter during vacation trips this summer.

The owner of Ford, Mercury or Lincoln products living in the greater Chicago area may purchase an insurance policy for $15 that will reimburse him 75 per cent (up to $225) for repair costs if his car becomes inoperable due to mechanical failure.

Zipper tips for home seamstresses

Zippers, very much in fashion this year, are available in many forms. There are zippers you can't see, decorative zippers you can't miss, and the soft, flexible zippers.

Each zipper is designed for a different purpose when making a specific type of garment. Selecting the right zipper presents little confusion when you follow the instructions on the back of the pattern envelope.

The popular invisible zipper, as its name implies, virtually disappears in use on a garment. It can be placed on front, back or side of a jacket, blouse, dress or skirt and looks exactly like a seam. The only visible portion is the sleek, narrow pull. Talon invisibles are available in eight lengths called for by most patterns and in a range of 44 colors, so it is possible to color coordinate the zipper with the fabric to which it will be applied. They are ideally suited to today's slim silhouette fashions.

FOR SPORTS OR informal wear the colorful and decorative Riri zipper really gives that "with it" look. In use, the Riri becomes a design element, and it is seen everywhere, on jackets, pants, dress fronts and sleeves. It's more than a functional closure, it's a colorful decoration that comes in the two best-selling lengths, seven and 20 inches, and 18 fashion colors.

Talon's flexible polyflex zipper adds a beautiful finishing touch to any garment. It blends with the look and feel of today's fabrics and lends a touch of elegance to dresses, skirts or blouses. Made of 100 per cent polyester, the Polyflex is extremely thin and lightweight, it is flexible and has a wrinkle-resistant tape. Polyflex was designed to be compatible with the latest fashion fabrics, especially those in the low-shrink category.

In today's world of fashion, a zipper is everywhere in many forms. Talon maintains it can be the couture touch that lifts any garment into the realm of something special.

Three tots attend bride

Two flower girls and a ring bearer were included in the wedding party of 13 when Karen Murphy became the bride of Robert Withington. The little girls, Karen Carbonara, 5, niece of the groom from Schaumburg, and Jennifer Manning, 5, a cousin from Streamwood, were dressed in orchid gowns of nylon organza with ruffled Victorian bibs, as were the maid of honor and three bridesmaids.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Murphy, 945 Victoria Lane, Elk Grove Village, and the groom, son of Mr.

and Mrs. John Withington, 214 N. Wille, Mount Prospect, were married May 5 in Queen of the Rosary Church, Elk Grove.

The double ring service took place at 11 a.m. with Karen wearing a white organza gown trimmed in lace and sequins. Her veil was long and she carried a colonial bouquet of white cymbidiums, stephanotis and greens with white streamers. The maid of honor, Kathleen Weinberg, Des Plaines, carried white French carnations with orchid streamers and the maids carried the white carnations with purple statice and orchid streamers. The flower girls carried baskets with lilac lace and petals.

Ring bearer was the groom's 6-year-old nephew, John Carbonara, Schaumburg.

GLEN ZAUGG, Schiller Park, was best man to the groom, and ushers were Dean Murphy, brother of the bride from Elk Grove Village, Glen Adrig, Chicago, and Gene Lucherini, Harwood Heights.

The reception was held in the Des Plaines Elks Club immediately following the service. The couple then honeymooned at the Playboy Club in Miami, Fla. They are now at home at 944 Maple Lane, Elk Grove Village.

The new Mrs. Withington is a '68 graduate of Elk Grove High School and is employed by Rubbermaid Party Plan, Elk Grove Village. The groom is a '66 graduate of Ridgewood High School, Norridge, and is with Illinois Bell Telephone, Mount Prospect.

Coffee is cancelled

Today's get acquainted coffee sponsored by the Wheeling Township Republican Woman's Club has been cancelled. The coffee was to have been held at 1:15 p.m. in the Arlington Heights home of Mrs. Thomas Hanlon.

The Friday coffee and the coffees next Tuesday and Wednesday are still on.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: I and several friends save and pack boxes of clothes to send to the Hindman Settlement School in Kentucky and wonder if you can give us some tips on how to keep the garments from mildewing until such time as they are sent to this most worthwhile school.

—Mrs. W. E. Titcomb

The simplest thing is to scatter paradichlorobenzene (moth crystals) through the folds of the garments, keeping the boxes as airtight as possible. Of course, the clothes should not be boxed nor stored in a damp place. Ordinarily, it takes about one pound of the crystals for 100 cubic feet of air space, proportionately less for smaller spaces. Paradichlorobenzene damages some plastics so plastic buttons and ornaments should be taken off garments.

Dear Dorothy: How can paint be removed from a concrete basement floor? We're planning to tile our floor and understand the paint has to be removed first.

—Sue Sweat

This is correct. Fortunately, it isn't difficult to take paint off a basement floor as you can use a water-base paint remover and hose it afterwards.

Dear Dorothy: Grease traps shouldn't smell, but if yours does and you're planning activities with friends in the back yard, run some bubble bath product through the kitchen sink. It's a temporary measure but it will take care of it long enough so it won't be an annoyance.

—Flo Hardenstall

Dear Dorothy: If you want to keep people lovely for days, add two teaspoons of sugar to a large bowl of these flowers.

—Amy B.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 200, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Plants that lure, catch and eat live insects rank among the most exotic of nature's creations.

Children love to finger them, men are fascinated by their aggressive tendencies and lazy gardeners love their easy care — it's not often one finds a plant that catches its own meals!

I've been propagating and growing carnivorous plants for just over a year now and find them among the most rewarding of my collection.

My pitcher plants (sarracenia purpurea) are blood red with hairy-veined tubes that lure insect victims into watery traps. The huntsman's horns look like young cobras ready to spring.

FINGER-LIKE TRAPS await unwary insects which approach the Venus fly trap. When one larva and trips the tiny trigger hairs, it becomes a tasty meal for the plant.

Growing exotic plants is a harmless pursuit, but like drinking or carousing, it affords some kind of vicarious thrill. There is an element of the bizarre about exotic plants, an element of the unreal and unpredictable. Growing carnivorous plants makes me feel like a combination Nero Wolfe, Lucetta Borgia and the Loch Ness Monster all at once.

Since learning of the Plant Oddities Club, I have discovered the communion of exotic plant lovers stretches from every state in the Union to Europe, the Jungles of Africa, the Orient, South America. Anyone can join the Plant Oddities Club for a nominal $5 donation a year.

The group offers an opportunity to grow and study everything from cobra lilies, sundews, bladderworts, fly traps and other insect-eaters to the ticklish mimosa, nepenthes and others.

OPPORTUNITIES to acquire specimens are also part of the group's focus. Monthly bulletins about unusual plants, together with tips ranging from how to create bog or tropical terrariums to organic gardening and other timely hints are issued.

More information about the Plant Oddities Club is available on request from the club at Box 127 A, Basking Ridge,

VENUS FLY TRAP

N.J., 07020.

Care of fly traps, pitcher plants and huntsman's horn is simple. Grow them in sphagnum moss, using only rain, spring or distilled water. If you must use tap water, let it stand for a day or so to dissipate the chlorine. Never fertilize or spray these plants, as they are highly sensitive to chemicals. They prefer shade, plenty of water and high humidity.

Counseling demonstration

Rudolph Dreikurs Unit of the Family Education Association is sponsoring a counseling demonstration at Milner Junior High School, 1101 E. Milner, Arlington Heights, at 8 p.m. next Wednesday. Open to the public, it is designed to help parents of normal children with everyday problems with siblings, school, eating, bedtime, chores, homework, etc.

During the demonstration, a family will be counseled by Robert L. Powers, B. D., M. A., a psychologist and counselor for the Family Education Association. He is dean of students of Alfred Adler Institute of Chicago, president of the American Society of Adlerian Psychology, and lecturer and instructor for teachers, school counselors, administrators, professional societies and organizations throughout the United States and Canada.

The success of eight parent study groups in the Arlington Heights area stimulated interest which resulted in this demonstration. Working toward the project were Robert Jopp of Barrington, Donna Weiss and Janet Simon of Arlington Heights, Kay Burton of Des Plaines and Hope Hornstein of Morton Grove.

VFW honors 30-year members

Three members of the Des Plaines VFW Auxiliary were presented 30-year continuous membership pins at the May 14 meeting.

Mrs. Don Tamagno and Mrs. William Hacker received the pins from past president Mrs. James Vlastnik. Mrs. Mabel Steffan, the other honoree, was not present at the meeting.

An American flag and staff was given to the American Cancer Society at O'Hare Complex and one to a Brownie troop at Einstein School, Des Plaines. Ms. Carl Ekx made the presentations.

There was also a new member, Mrs. Leonard Krumsee, welcomed into the auxiliary.

The final auxiliary meeting of the current year is June 11 at 7:30 p.m. This is the annual retiring president's social evening honoring Mrs. Ollie Coker.

What's new

"Trillow," a crazy-looking multi-purpose travel pillow, has been developed for the auto passenger. Made of polyurethane foam rubber, the pillow fits perfectly between the side of the passenger's head and the inside window or side panel of the car, the manufacturer says. This helps the sleeping passenger to a smooth, comfortable ride. In addition, Trillow may be used as a television pillow. The manufacturer says it provides the perfect viewing angle when you watch television from a supine position. It also makes a good baby-bottle stabilizer and arm rest.

For A Happy Life

It's fun in May to:

1. Collect your 10 best recipes, put them in a little book and give them to a bride.
2. Permit your child and his belongings a sense of privacy.
3. Write a congratulatory note during your coffee break to someone whose accomplishments you admire.
4. Analyze how you spent your time yesterday. Decide how it could have been more satisfying and productive.
5. Fight weeds vigorously while they are small.
6. Place a good first aid kit in your home and in your auto.
7. Fight self-pity by attacking some chores that need doing.
8. Note this by Socrates: "He who is not contented with what he has would not be contented with what he would like to have."

Second priority in 7-location evaluation

Arlington-Dundee site under study for second Harper College campus

by KURT BAER

Harper College officials are considering another possible site for a second campus near the northwest corner of Arlington Heights and Dundee roads, the Herald has learned.

The primary site for a second campus, if one is built, remains the northwest corner of Palatine and Schoenbeck roads in Arlington Heights, according to Jack Lucas, director of planning for the college.

But the Dundee-Arlington Heights Road site was given second priority in a study that evaluated six other locations.

A final decision on whether to build a second Harper campus has not been made, and may not be made for another year, Lucas said.

The land at the northwest corner of Arlington Heights and Dundee roads lies behind the Buffalo Grove Mall shopping center in unincorporated Cook County. The site was given a high rating in the site study because of its size, location and availability.

"Palatine-Schoenbeck roads is still our first choice, if a second campus is going to be built. We considered a number—six—other sites and that (Arlington Heights-Dundee) was one that has been considered," Lucas said yesterday.

"If we decide to go for a second site, and if for some reason the Palatine-Schoenbeck property isn't available, which I don't anticipate, we would probably reevaluate the (land) situation," he added.

THE HERALD first disclosed in February that 126 acres at the northwest corner of Palatine and Schoenbeck roads, property known as the Ozmun Farm, was the college's prime target for a second campus site.

The land is now owned by the Mayo Foundation, a not-for-profit corporation affiliated with the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn. It is conservatively valued at $25,000 an acre.

Harper has asked that the site be designated for educational purposes in the Arlington Heights master plan.

Before a decision on whether to acquire and build a second campus is made, there have to be some new enrollment projections for the college, Lucas said.

A decision to build another campus would then have to be approved by a state governing board and ultimately by the voters in a referendum since they would have to pay for the project.

"We're trying to keep our options open for a year until some decisions are made," Lucas said.

If the site is designated for educational purposes, Harper would have one year to develop its plans in the event that some other developer proposes a building plan for the property.

Work nearing completion on Willow Stream Park Pool

Workers are finishing construction at the new outdoor pool at Willow Stream Park in Buffalo Grove in preparation for the opening of the new facility scheduled for June 16.

Buffalo Grove park director Stan Crosland said yesterday he sees no difficulty in completing the remaining work before the beginning of the first season at the pool.

"The work we still have to do is just minor stuff," Crosland said. "Some of the pool walls are a little rough, some pieces of concrete need to be smoothed and there's still a little touch-up painting to do."

In addition to landscaping the new park on Farrington Drive, Crosland said the drainage ditch on the property will be extended and the banks graded. Presently, the ditch is 10 feet deep in one area, he said.

CROSLAND ADDED that tennis play at Willow Stream Park will probably be temporarily suspended for one day next week while workers repaint the courts.

A full report on the status of construction at Willow Stream Park and Kilmer School park is expected to be given to the park board tonight by park district architect, Roland Schapanski.

Briefly commenting on the work in progress at Kilmer, Crosland said he expects the tennis courts to be ready in about two weeks and tot lot apparatus to be installed next week.

IN OTHER business tonight, the commissioners are scheduled to discuss the formation of a policy manual. Crosland is in the process of compiling information on procedures to be used by the park district in various situations that will be included in the manual.

The park board will probably discuss one or two sections of the manual at board meetings in the next few months, Crosland said, and approve the whole book by the end of the year.

"The manual will be a table of various policies under which the park district will operate," Crosland said. "It will be mostly policies we've been using but haven't formalized."

Crosland said the policy manual will be reviewed and updated if necessary each fiscal year.

Dundee road fixup to start

by JOE FRANZ

Widening and paving of Dundee Road to four lanes between Elmhurst Road and Rte. 53 is expected to begin in about two weeks, a spokesman for the Illinois Division of Highways said yesterday.

Oscar Mohsin, an area programmer, said about 80 per cent of the storm sewers have been installed which will clear the way for the actual road construction. Mohsin said the majority of storm sewers must be installed before the widening process begins.

Mohsin said the $2.5 million project is scheduled to be completed by June or July of next year. Construction is slightly behind schedule. Mohsin said weather will be a major factor in determining if the project is completed on time.

Plans for the project also call for the realignment of Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights roads south of Dundee Road. Both roads will be rerouted to meet the already existing extensions to them on the north side of Dundee Road.

The realignment of the two roads should eliminate two bottlenecks which hamper through traffic in the area. Officials said this will be the last phase of the project.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS Road will also be widened to four lanes from University Drive north to Dundee Road. There are, however, no plans now to widen the road from University Drive south to Rand Road.

State officials said Dundee Road will remain open at a reduced speed limit when the widening begins. The current speed limit of 50 m.p.h. will be reduced to 35 m.p.h. Buffalo Grove Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said the village has suggested the speed limit on Dundee Road be raised to 45 m.p.h. once construction is finished.

School Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill said construction is creating no safety hazard for children walking to London Junior High School because adequate sidewalks have been provided.

Gill said the overpass near the school, which cost $90,000, was constructed with the widening of Dundee Road in mind, and despite rumors will not be taken down.

THE NEW STORM sewers will divert water from the Dundee Road area to a five-acre retention lake which the village plans to construct in the Arlington Golf Course at Buffalo Grove and Dundee roads. The lake will help alleviate flooding in the White Pine ditch and Buffalo Creek areas.

The lake, which will have a capacity for 16 million gallons, will cost $330,000. It will be financed with $120,000 from the Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD), $130,000 from the Illinois Division of Waterways and $80,000 from village funds. Construction of the lake is scheduled to begin in October.

Buffalo Grove originally refused to approve the construction plans on Dundee Road widening because the state planned to channel the runoff from the road into the White Pine ditch. The village agreed to the state's plan after the state agreed to install an oversized drainage pipe which will divert water to the retention lake.

This Morning In Brief

The nation

The current attorney for bugging conspirator James McCord Jr. confided that "we are going after the President of the United States" shortly before McCord began disclosures to the Senate Watergate committee.

Skylab's repairmen-astronauts, set for launch tomorrow, passed their last major physical exam and got a vote of confidence from their boss that they can fix the crippled space station and salvage most of the mission.

The Internal Revenue Service denied it had begun a comprehensive audit of state governors' income tax returns, but acknowledged that federal agents had pulled the tax returns of seven governors for a closer look.

The nation's highest court of military law has agreed to hear the appeal of 1st Lt. William Calley Jr. from his murder conviction in the My Lai massacre.

The Senate has confirmed 82-3, the nomination of Elliot L. Richardson as attorney general despite some fears that it would give the appearance the administration was "investigating itself" in the Watergate scandal.

A federal judge has dismissed a suit by atheist Madalyn Murray O'Hair which sought to ban religious services in the White House and Congress.

The United Steel workers said 34,000 aluminum workers will receive a 9-cent an hour pay hike June 1.

The world

Canada's External Affairs Minister said yesterday his nation will decide soon whether or not to withdraw from the International Commission for Control and Supervision (ICCS) in Vietnam. The decision, expected late this week or early next week, will hinge on "improvements in conditions" under which the ICCS operates.

The Beirut newspaper Le Soir reported Egyptian President Anwar Sadat would order hostilities resumed against Israel if Soviet Communist party leader Leonid Brezhnev refused to meet with him before going to Washington.

In what appeared to be a rerun of the Profumo-Christine Keeler scandal, Lord Lambton, former parliamentary under-secretary of the Royal Air Force, said he resigned because of a "casual acquaintance" with a call girl and a "sneak pimp" who took compromising photographs to exploit the illicit affair.

The state

Criminal Court Judge Philip Romiti has refused to grant bond for William and Irene Lindquist, charged with the murder of their son, Johnny.

Mayor Richard J. Daley said yesterday he saw nothing "inherently wrong" with a state lottery.

For high school administrators

Board authorizes 5% raises

Raises for High School Dist. 214 administrators will average 5 per cent next year, unless the board decides next month that's too high.

The board Monday authorized Supt. Edward Gilbert to draw up proposed merit salary increases for the district's 101 administrators using $110,000 more than was spent last year for salaries. The figure provides an average five per cent raise for administrators.

In addition, however, board members indicated they may decide to lower the amount available for raises if they don't like the way the individual raises come out. The five per cent increase is one per cent less than the amount originally recommended by Gilbert.

Gilbert told the board he will recommend individual salary increases at the June 4 meeting.

GILBERT SAID HE originally recommended a 6 per cent average raise based on the rising cost of living and on the general salary practices for teachers.

Board member Jack Costello, who recommended that the average be cut from six per cent to 5 per cent, said he was concerned because some administrators' raises in the past have been "shockingly high."

Costello added that some years Gilbert has "almost had to force some raises" to use up all the money allowed by the board.

"I just don't see 6 per cent as being in the cards," Costello said. "I can't help what other districts do around us but I think many of our administrators are quite well paid."

Last year the board provided for average three per cent raises for administrators, with some getting nothing and others getting increases of as much as 7 per cent. Costello said, "There were substantial raises available at 3 per cent and I think there will be substantial raises available at 5 per cent."

IN ADDITION, THE board members also disagreed about whether the $110,000 should be used to actually raise the newly adopted administrative salary scale or whether to keep minimums and maximums for salaries the same and just give raises within that framework.

Board members also deferred a final decision on whether to raise minimums and maximums for each job until June 4.

Law enforcement commission funds sought by Omni-House

Officials of Omni-House, Youth Services Bureau, an area counseling agency, are seeking funds from the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission (ILEC) to continue operation next year.

The agency, operating out of a remodeled storefront on Milwaukee Ave., serves Wheeling, Buffalo Grove, parts of Arlington Heights and Mt. Prospect, Prospect Heights and other areas of unincorporated Wheeling Twp.

Omni-House was established about a year ago as one of 14 Illinois Youth Service Bureaus funded by the ILEC. The original ILEC grant for $131,000 has covered the major portion of expenses for the past year. The agency has also received contributions from area individuals and groups in the communities it serves.

The ILEC funds Omni-House is hoping to get are administered by the state agency through local school districts. School Dist. 21 is sponsoring the Omni-House request for the second straight year.

Recently, Omni-House's bid for ILEC funds was approved by the Chicago-Cook County Criminal Justice Commission (CCCCJC). The fund application will probably be considered by ILEC in July.

Because the ILEC funds for the agency will not be available after next year, Omni-House officials are trying now to build a broad base of long-range volunteer financial support in the communities they serve.

The Omni-House staff began a fund-raising campaign last January and they are continuing to seek all types of contributions. Anyone wanting to donate to Omni-House or to use the services of the agency should call 541-0180.

Tent stolen from resident's backyard

A $30 tent was stolen Tuesday from the backyard of Bob J. Krupela, 149 Chestnut Ln., Wheeling, police said. Krupela told police he noticed the tent was missing Tuesday evening. It had been pitched in the backyard.

Des Plaines resident charged with battery

Buffalo Grove police charged a Des Plaines man with aggravated battery and aggravated assault Tuesday after police said he tried to choke a policeman following his arrest for drunken driving.

The man, Kenneth J. Cohee, 29, of 150 E. Northwest Hwy., was arrested at 200 Dundee Rd., and taken to the police station for questioning.

Police said Cohee, who refused to take a breathalyzer test, became abusive and threatened to kill Sgt. Art Volght, one of the policemen questioning him. According to police, he grabbed Volght by the neck and began choking him. It took two other policemen and two radio operators to subdue Cohee, police said.

Cohee was treated and released at Northwest Community Hospital for a minor cut on his head, which police said he received when one of the policemen used a nightstick to subdue him.

Cohee, who also was charged with driving while intoxicated, appeared yesterday in the Arlington Heights branch of circuit court and was released on his own recognizance. His case was continued to July 17.

School news notes

Students at Tarkington School in Wheeling will present their annual music program titled "Animals on Parade" at 2:15 tomorrow afternoon in the school gym, 310 Scott St.

The show will be presented by children in the first, fourth and sixth grades under the direction of Sarah Ward. The program will feature songs, acrobatics and animal dialogues with the use of puppets.

The Longfellow School Fun Fair will be conducted rain or shine Saturday, June 2, from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the school, 501 N. Arlington Heights Rd. in Buffalo Grove.

The fair, sponsored by the Longfellow PTO, will feature games, prizes, grab bags, a jar raffle, hot dogs, drinks, cotton candy, popcorn and sno-cones.

All London Junior High School students involved in basketball, volleyball and wrestling this year were honored recently at the annual sports night banquet.

Awards were presented after the cooperative dinner by coaches Rich Davis, Pete Wlonke, Jim Christopher and Marie Schimpf.

Track and field awards will be presented to athletes at the school's annual awards assembly later in the school year.

The first grade team from Whitman School in Wheeling will go to Waterford, Wis. June 1 to visit Green Meadows Farm.

The students plan to take a guided tour of the farm, feeding and petting the more than 300 farm animals there. Also available at the farm are chances for a horse-drawn hayride or supervised pony ride.

There are also fruit and vegetable gardens at the farm from which the children will be able to pick red raspberries, tomatoes, cucumbers, peppers and beans.

Fifth and sixth grade boys and girls at Whitman School, who have been involved this year in intramurals, will have a picnic next Tuesday at the school from 3:30 to 5 p.m.

Games will be played and refreshments will be served.

Children at Poe School in Arlington Heights have been participating in special reading programs conducted by John Hamilton, learning center director.

All students at Poe are regularly enrolled in the learning center enrichment reading program. They receive weekly instruction designed to develop all reading skills.

Several reading students are working toward receiving recognition at the annual awards day, an all-school assembly planned for early June.

Students in the Library Reading Club, who read and write a book report on 15 books in 10 weeks, will receive a certificate on Awards Day. Reading students who have increased their rate of reading to above 325 words per minute will also receive certificates.

Students in Margaret Andersen's fourth grade class at Whitman School in Wheeling recently completed a unit on animals that included making papier mache models of their favorite creatures.

The children learned the basic characteristics of the five main classes of animals and their ways of life. Each child chose an animal to make a papier mache model of and use as the subject of a report.

The annual field day at Whitman School will last two days, June 3 and 4.

Mickey Young, physical education instructor, has organized events such as broad jump, high jump, and running relays in which children may compete.

Children in the third, fourth, fifth and sixth grades will be judged June 7 with the younger children competing the next morning.

Interested parents may view the activities either day.

All winners in each event will receive ribbons at an awards assembly at 1 p.m. June 8.

Today is Poppy Day.

NO TEARS FROM THIS young man as he is immunized against communicable diseases in a free clinic in Hoffman Estates sponsored by the Cook County Department of Public Health. The department also sponsors a clinic in Des Plaines. The clinics are open to children aged 1 to 18 from the suburban area. Appointments are not required, but parents must supply their children's immunization histories.

Immunization clinics aid disease fight

by MARILYN HEISER

Preventative medicine is the most economical and soundest approach to health care, physicians and nurses say. And immunization against disease is one of the simplest preventative measures.

The Cook County Department of Public Health offers two immunization clinics for children in the Northwest suburbs, in Hoffman Estates and Des Plaines. According to Mrs. Addie Reninger of the health department, spring and summer are good times for children to receive needed immunizations.

The Hoffman Estates clinic was relocated last fall to the Prince of Peace Lutheran Church, 930 W. Higgins Rd., after initially opening last summer at St. Peter Lutheran School. The clinic is open the fourth Wednesday of every month from 1 to 3 p.m.

In Des Plaines, the clinic holds sessions from 1 to 3 p.m. the first Wednesday of every month at 800 S. Beau Dr.

All children age 1 to 18 are welcome to attend either clinic, irrespective of where they live. No appointment is needed. All parents are asked to bring their child's immunization history to the clinic.

Families having problems obtaining the services of a physician to give immunizations especially are urged to attend one of the clinics, Mrs. Reninger said.

CONCERN RECENTLY was voiced by the Hoffman Estates Board of Health that the clinic there may be discontinued if attendance remains low. But according to Mrs. Reninger, the county has no plans to discontinue the clinic.

Attendance averaged about 200 children each session during last summer, and she said it should rise again this summer. During the fall and winter months, she said, attendance had dropped to only 50 or 60 children each session, but that is to be expected for those months.

Zoning board urges changes for freight terminal plan

by LYNN ASINOF

The Wheeling Zoning Board has recommended zoning changes that will allow developers to build three motor freight terminals on property south of Hintz Road and east of the Soo Line R.R. tracks.

Representatives of the First American Realty Co. told the board Tuesday plans for the freight terminals are part of a general development plan for the 89 acres. They said the terminals will be on the southern 39 acres of property with general industrial development on the northern part. The property is now zoned for residential use.

Phyllis Sukter, vice president of the realty firm, said her company will merely develop the terminals which would then be operated by three separate trucking firms. She said McLean Trucking, Gateway Trucking and All American Transport Inc. will each operate a terminal.

According to plans presented to the zoning board, each of the terminals will have 44 loading docks, warehouse and office space. The trucks from the terminals will enter and exit onto Hintz Road from a road running the length of the property.

ZONING BOARD member Ed Slepicka voted against the zoning, saying traffic problems might result from the terminals' location. He said Hintz Road was only a two-lane street, and noted there was already congestion on the road west of the proposed site.

The developers' attorney, John Murray said his clients had investigated the possibility of finding a second access road from Wolf Road. He said the only road that connects with their property is Kerry Lane, a 33-foot undeveloped road in the unincorporated area.

Murray said his clients were making provisions to connect with this road so it could be used for emergency purposes. He said however, it will not be feasible to drive large freight trucks on Kerry Lane because of its present condition.

Slepicka asked Murray to investigate the possibility of improving the road so it can be used for trucking. Murray said he will talk to people from the Wheeling Township Highway Department before the rezoning comes to the village board for approval.

Because of possible traffic congestion, the developers reduced the number of freight terminals from the originally proposed five to three. They also agreed to install acceleration and de-acceleration lanes at the entrance to their property on Hintz Road.

THE DEVELOPERS estimated each of the terminals will have 25 employees, not including truck drivers. Each terminal is expected to employ between 15 and 20 local drivers. The trucking operations will service the northwest suburbs from O'Hare Airport to Lake County and west to Elgin.

According to testimony, each terminal will cost about $1 million. Construction will include the installation of underground gas storage tanks that will provide the truckers with about 40,000 gallons of fuel for each terminal.

Developers said the Wheeling location was chosen because of the rapid growth of the Northwest suburban area. Aside from the three trucking firms, there are definite plans for the development of the property.

ZONING BOARD members Roman Domas, Ron Potter and Neil Brant voted to approve granting both the industrial zoning and special use permits for the proposed development. Slepicka voted against the project, and Alan Martin abstained because he was absent at a previous meeting.

Although he abstained, Martin said he was happy that the development was being proposed. "I think this type of area is generally good for this type of business. I think this type of business has long been coming," he said. "This is the spot for it, along the railroad tracks, and I'm sure Hintz Road will one day be a larger road."

Martin said he also thought the trucking operation will generate less traffic than any other type of development in the area except for a park.

Village will end its suit over zoning map error

The Wheeling Village Board has agreed to end a five-year-old zoning suit filed because of an error on the official village zoning map.

In 1968, Peder Paugh, of Lake Zurich, asked the village for a building permit to construct apartment buildings along Fifth Street north of Strong Street. He based his request on the zoning map which showed his property to be zoned for apartments.

After checking village ordinances, Wheeling officials denied the request saying the zoning map was incorrect and the property was not zoned for apartments.

Paugh asked the zoning board to review the decision, and the board members also denied the permit. He then asked the court to review the zoning board's decision.

Although Paugh requested the review in 1968, the court has not yet taken up the cause. When the village rezoned the entire W. Strong Street area to allow apartments earlier this spring, Paugh's property was also rezoned.

Village Atty. Paul Hamer said this rezoning made the court review of the case unnecessary. The board therefore directed the attorney in the case, Jack Siegel, to enter into an agreement to dismiss the case.

Carmel to graduate several area students

Several Wheeling-Buffalo Grove area students are among 133 seniors graduating from Carmel High School for Girls this spring.

Commencement ceremonies are scheduled for 10 a.m. Saturday in the school gym in Mundelein. The Rev. Simon Kenny, assistant principal of Carmel High School for Boys, will speak.

Area students who will get diplomas are Marilyn Dolores Bokes, Mary Lou Ferrara and Joanne Patricia Mason, all of Wheeling; Anna Marie Campbell, Mary Margaret Coangelo, Lisa M. Fisher, Mary Kristina Kane, Nancy Marie Maher, Jann Frances Puciaty, Joanne Elken Thompson and Bonnie C. Thompson, all of Buffalo Grove.

Also to be graduated are Colleen Marie Levia and Martha Theresa Reynolds of Prospect Heights and Ellen Lee Schneider of Long Grove.

At the recent awards day program at Carmel High School for Girls, Miss Campbell was granted membership in the Society of Outstanding High School students.

St. Alphonsus school gets new principal

Barbara Gotter, a junior high school principal from Ohio, has been hired as principal of St. Alphonsus Catholic School in Prospect Heights for the 1973-74 school year.

Miss Gotter was chosen by the school board from four candidates. She is a graduate of the University of Dayton and received her master's degree in educational administration at Miami University in Oxford, Ohio. She was an elementary and junior high school teacher for 12 years and served as an elementary and junior high school principal for 8 years.

Miss Gotter replaces Sister Camilla, who is being transferred to another post.

4 students cited at science fair

Four students at Cooper Junior High School in Buffalo Grove recently earned awards at the State Science Fair at Urbana.

Top science students from schools throughout the state were invited to participate in the competition, sponsored by the Illinois Junior Academy of Science.

Kim Topole received an "outstanding" award for her project entitled "Pulse Rate Changes." She is the second Cooper student to win the coveted "outstanding" award in the past two years.

A first place award went to Megan Edwards for her project, "Flight in Birds."

Richard LeCrapane won a second place award for his research paper on "Extra-dimensional Waves" along with Tim Pfeiffer, who also won a second place award for his project called "Soil Molds Used as Antibiotics."

Outreach leader to attend conference

Barbara Wiley, newly elected president of the Outreach Club at Adlai Stevenson High School in Prairie View, will attend a summer leadership conference sponsored by the American Red Cross.

The conference will be conducted from July 23 through July 27 at George Williams College in Downers Grove.

Outreach is a service group of more than 60 Stevenson students who do volunteer work in nursing homes, hospitals, mental institutions and with the elderly and the poor in the community.

Stevenson High concert tomorrow

Students in the vocal music department of Adlai Stevenson High School in Prairie View will present their annual spring concert at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the auditorium.

Admission is $1 a person. Tickets may be purchased at the door.

Performing choral groups will include the girls' concert choir, a capella choir and the Madrigal singers. William Misk, music department chairman, directs the vocal groups.

Superblock clears zoners, awaits council showdown

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Des Plaines' modified superblock plan has breezed through the zoning board of appeals and is headed for a June 4 city council showdown.

The zoning board approved word-for-word Tuesday night the plan commission's endorsement of the $11 million shopping mall-office building project.

The decision recommends council authorization to begin the project in downtown Des Plaines if superblock developers move a city-financed proposed multi-tier parking from Ellinwood Street to the corner of Prairie and Pearson.

The project developers "could live with either" parking location, Jerome Gottlieb, Chicago-based backer of the proposal, said.

"This will encourage redevelopment of the downtown area," the decision says.

"The height of the building will not adversely affect the central core of our city." The developers originally requested a variation of 250 feet for construction of the 12-story office building, but have recently talked of 180 feet.

The report recommends that Center Street, between Ellinwood and Prairie "should be closed to all vehicular traffic excepting emergency vehicles."

Gottlieb told the board that parking and first phase construction of the project can be completed in two years. Total downtown redevelopment, which could include other shopping, office and parking construction, may require 15 years.

The developers petition for planned unit development, which was filed March 7, listed city project approval by April 30; completion of construction negotiations by Oct. 15; demolition of Center and Prairie buildings by Dec. 15; construction by Jan. 15, 1974 and completion by Sept. 1, 1975.

If the council follows usual zoning procedure, the redevelopment petition will be sent June 4 to the municipal development committee for study and report. The committee, headed by Ald.

Ewald Swanson (6th), usually requires a month or more to report findings to the council. Swanson recently began study to pass the Illinois real estate brokers test under guidance of William Kunkel & Co. real estate, one of three partners in Des Plaines Mall Corp.

The council last year sent a pattern of Thursday committee of the whole meetings to inform aldermen of major projects. The council has met to discuss purchase of United Motor Coach Co., revenue sharing and construction of a proposed city hall-civic center.

But, the council has never met publicly to discuss recent superblock proposals. Backers of the project wined and dined city officials at a closed-door, preview meeting in February before the superblock petition was filed.

The council added five new aldermen after the city's April 17 election. Only Ald. Gerald Meyer (7th), a former plan commission member, participated in previous redevelopment meetings.

City could save on gasoline: treasurer

Des Plaines could save thousands of dollars a year on gasoline purchases by eliminating a contract with a privately owned gas station, City Treasurer Thomas Mahon has said.

Mahon told the city council Monday the city could eliminate emergency gas purchases that cost about 30 cents a gallon by purchasing bulk gas from American Oil Co. for 19.4 cents a gallon.

The controversial city treasurer's suggestion that aldermen investigate purchase of a "Keogard" pump system fell on apparent deaf ears. The council did not refer the proposal to a committee for study.

Mahon said the city purchased 19,302 gallons of emergency gasoline for 27.4 cents a gallon between December and March. The price was nearly $5,300 for the emergency gas at Rich's Route 12.

Service Station, 1468 River Rd. in four months.

By using a key system at the city garage, Des Plaines could cut gas costs more than 30 per cent and could save nearly $8,400 a year, Mahon's figures show.

KEOGARD IS manufactured by Petro Vent, Inc. of Argo, Ill. and attaches to gasoline pumps. The Keogard box opens the pump for use with a special key and records the amount of gas used. The box can accept an unlimited number of keys but "5 to 90 are standard," the firm's brochure states.

The system offers "24-hour unattended service. There is no need to buy new pumps," the brochure states.

Mahon said that American Oil recommended the system. "There also are card systems, but they have a maintenance problem."

The treasurer said he contacted American for information "because it occurred to me that we shouldn't be paying two prices for gasoline."

Des Plaines vehicles are filled with gasoline weekdays during daylight hours at the city garage where bulk gas purchased from American is stored.

On evenings and weekends, police cars, which use about three tanks a day each and other emergency vehicles are filled at Rich's.

Rich's raised its gas price for the city last month by eliminating a 2½ to 3 per gallon difference because of the gasoline shortage.

MAHON'S TOTALS showed that the police department used 17,556 gallons from Rich's in four months. The fire department used 1,128 gallons and Mayor Herbert Behrel used 433. The library used 120 gallons and the health department used 32.

"The whole system assumes that the policemen will be willing to pump their gas," Mahon said.

"But we'd have an accurate record of how much each car uses and could save some money."

The treasurer also was critical of $25 a month expense checks issued to Des Plaines aldermen.

Four aldermen who "worked only seven days" because they lost or did not seek reelection received full, $25 monthly checks for May. Also receiving full checks were five newly elected council members sworn in May 7.

"This type of payment does not seem like reimbursement to me," Mahon said. State statute allows aldermen to receive expense reimbursement in addition to their $1,800 a year salaries. They also receive free local telephone service.

"WE HAVE NO voucher for any of this money. We have no idea if it's expense," Mahon said. "We're talking about $4,800."

When recently elected Ald. Carmes Sarto (6th) asked "if they (outgoing aldermen) could possibly have used $25 in seven days," Mayor Herbert Behrel answered that "it's too small an amount to make an issue of."

The council did not cut the funds from Monday's register of bills.

"This is something I said I'd do if elected — check to see where the money goes," Mahon said.

No city garbage pickup on Monday

There will be no city garbage pickup Monday, Memorial Day. Public works director Joseph Schwab said Monday collections will be made Tuesday, May 29 in addition to regular pickup for Tuesday.

Realty evaluations increase $7 million

Des Plaines assessed real estate valuation increased $7 million last year, the smallest jump in at least 10 years.

Total value of all property here in 1972 was estimated at $813,243,400, totals released by Comptroller Duane Blietz, show.

Total assessed valuation last year was $325,297,363, an increase from $318,878,595 in 1971.

The $325-million includes $269,845,466 in real estate, $54,854,190 in personal property and $99,707 in railroad land.

The real estate total jumped about 2.6 per cent last year, Blietz told the city council Monday. Recent increases have averaged about 7 per cent, ranging from $29 million in 1969 to $11 million in 1967.

'Miss Poppy's' message -- it's poppy day

If you live in Des Plaines, Lisa Wolf has got a message for you. It's Poppy Day!

Lisa, daughter of former mayoral candidate David Wolf, is Miss Poppy of 1973. A member of the American Legion Auxiliary Juniors, she has been busy reminding everyone that today is the day for the Legion's annual charity drive.

Both the Des Plaines American Legion Post and its Auxiliary Unit No. 36, and Des Plaines VFW Post 2992 and its Ladies Auxiliary, will be selling the small-red paper flowers, assembled by disabled veterans.

Proceeds from the distribution of the poppies are used for the service and rehabilitation program of the American Legion and American Legion Auxiliary, including youth activities, child welfare programs and employment services.

The VFW proceeds will go towards national, state and local charitable programs. A portion is donated to the National Home for Children, Eaton Rapids, Mich. Services made possible by the sale are available to all needy veterans and their families regardless of whether they are members of the VFW.

Hospitalized veterans who assemble the poppies are paid a nominal wage for their services. Sometimes making poppies is part of therapy or a motivational program aimed at returning a disabled veteran to the community.

Members of both organizations are urging Des Plaines residents to buy a poppy, give generously and wear it proudly.

Bob Ramecke is a hard hat with an arm wrestler's grip and "can I buy you a drink" friendliness. He's up, out of the house and on board the Chicago and North Western at 6:30 a.m. with a hearty breakfast under his belt and a smile for the world.

At work he's "Rammer" — a nickname that sets his soft-spoken wife into fits of laughter. He's the guy who works with feeder pipes — pipes that will contain the current for lighting, heating, cooling, closed circuit television and burglar alarms. He and other electricians bring life to a building, by making a flick of a switch mean something.

Yesterday, Bob was working 100 stories in the air — 10 stories from the top of the world famous Sears tower, where he's been on the job since September. He was able to look out at the other projects he's helped put together — the First National Bank building, Marina Towers, the Brunswick and Hancock buildings and the Board of Trade.

WORKING ON the world's tallest building has left Bob with some stories to tell of the clear view he has of the state of Michigan from his lofty perch, of the tragedies during construction which took the lives of six men, and of the day he received national recognition as the composer of the song sung at the topping out ceremony.

"The Tallest Rock" is Bob's claim to fame. It was jotted down one day while he was painting a bedroom in his Des Plaines home thinking "this is going to be the tallest building in the world and I'm going to write a tune about it."

"I've been an amateur tunesmith for 25 to 30 years," he said as he relaxed in his living room, beer in hand. Safe in his wallet are the scraps of paper he used while writing a rough melody for the song — proof of the spontaneity of it all.

Bob's plan was to present it to Sears' officials to see if they'd accept it as the tower's song. He interested co-workers John Meyer, Howard Nowotarski and Jack Gallagher in joining him, taped the song and held a few rehearsals with Sears' public relations men.

THEY LIKED it, they accepted it and the rest is history.

"The Tallest Rock" is a rock tune — a lot different from the ballads Bob's used to writing. It tells of the growth of a concrete and steel tower. "Endowed with tradition/ So proud and with ambition/ She stands like a rock/ A whole city block/ She hovers over her flock."

Bob included references to the tragedies, the sweat expended by so many, and the splendor of the building. "She's The Tallest Rock/ Built from the smallest rock/ She's a handmade rock/ Though she's a man-made rock/ Thru and thru."

The four sang mostly in unison, clipping their phrases and inserting a few jazzy do-bop-do-ah's here and there. In the background is an electronic piano, drum and cymbals ("I like those cymbals.") played by professional musicians.

"Before we found out for sure it was accepted (by Sears) we kept it absolutely secret. Construction workers are wicked. We even swore our families to secrecy, which isn't easy."

"Once the word was out (in March) I was the only one who didn't get heckled. The day of the topping out they told us we'd fall apart because we were going to be on nationwide television."

"BUT WE DID beautiful. Before we were on the air we did it for Sears' employees and you should have heard them clap."

As the top beam was put in place on the tower the four electricians stood on the ground singing the familiar song. That night they sang it for their union.

"The Tallest Rock" may become more than a one-day celebrated tune. Bob is working to get the song published and will hear any day whether he has written the official Sears tower song. "If they publish it then anybody could go up to the observation tower and buy a record of my song — that's what I want."

Then Rob Ramecke will be a part of history.

"I'll bring my family up there and make them buy a record," he said. "Some day, maybe my grandchildren will be able to say, 'My grandfather wrote the tune about this building.' Why not?"

New position created

Oakton aide will evaluate colleges

The board of trustees at Oakton Community College has created a new administrative position to evaluate college programs, but at the request of trustee Stephen Doska it did not set a salary for the new job.

The board approved the position of director of instructional research and evaluation during Tuesday night's board meeting at the suggestion of the North Central Association, a national school accrediting body.

When the association evaluated Oakton programs last fall, it said the college needed someone to set school educational goals and evaluate college programs. The director will also give psychological and perceptual tests to new students to place them in college programs.

The original recommendation for the position set the salary range at between $18,000 and $24,000, but Doska said, "This is way overpriced. We will have to spend the tax on 100 houses in this district each year for this salary."

PAUL GILSON, chairman of the board, said, "We need a rather unique, very talented, specially selected person," for the job, and the salary is necessary "to attract that person."

The position was approved by the board after the salary portion of the resolution was removed.

In other action Tuesday night the board authorized the purchase of 2.3 acres of land adjacent to the college's temporary campus for a parking lot.

The board had filed a petition in Cook County Circuit Court May 10 condemning the property. Since then the owners represented by the J. Clark Baker Real Estate Agency have agreed to sell the land for $225,000. Oakton board president Paul Gilson said at the board meeting Tuesday the suit will be dropped when the contract for the land is signed. The board authorized the college to buy the land during its meeting Tuesday night.

The land, located just west of the temporary campus at 7900 N. Nagle Ave., Morton Grove, will provide about 200 more spaces for parking. The lot is scheduled for completion by the beginning of the fall term.

THE TEMPORARY campus, leased by the college, did not have adequate parking space to accommodate the growing number of students who commute to the college, according to school officials. Oakton now uses parking spaces at a Cook County Forest Preserve south of the campus, and at Niles West High School west of the campus.

There are also an additional 500 spaces on the temporary campus site. Enrollment at the college this spring is about 3,050 students.

In other action Tuesday night the board invited 82 municipal officials in Maine and Niles Townships to a breakfast at the college on June 24.

Oakton trustee Thomas Flynn, member of the college's community relations committee, said the breakfast was designed to show municipal officials the college's facilities and programs.

Outdoor masses

At area cemeteries

Special outdoor field Masses and programs will honor the memory of the veterans buried in ten north area cemeteries on Memorial Day.

The services are expected to attract more than 10,000 persons and begin at 10 a.m. with a parade in most of the cemeteries.

Mass in all cemeteries will be at 10:30 a.m. Memorial programs including the rifle salute and taps will follow the Mass.

Participating in the programs besides the families and friends of those interred in the cemeteries, will be representative groups from the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Amvets, Catholic War Veterans, civic and parish organizations. Fourth Degree Knights of Columbus will act as Honor Guards for all of the Masses.

Ceremonies will be held at All Saints Cemetery, 700 N. River Rd., Des Plaines; where a concelebrated Mass will be offered by Rev. George J. Kane, spiritual director, St. Mary of the Lake Seminary, Mundelein, and chaplain, Air Force Reserve, as celebrant; and Rev. Francis J. Maloney, administrator, Precious Blood Parish, Chicago, and Rev. Edward J. Maloney, associate pastor, Precious Blood Parish, Chicago, and professor, Quigley-North, as concelebrants. All Saints Cemetery is also observing its golden anniversary.

Another service will be observed at St. Michael The Archangel Cemetery, Palatine. Celebrant of the Mass will be Rev. Raphael R. Orozco, pastor, St. Theresa Vicariate, Palatine.

Teachers may take case to public

by REGINA OEHLER

Having failed to get a positive response from the school board, disgruntled teachers in Des Plaines Elementary School Dist. 62 may take their negotiating problems to the community.

Charles Aguilu, president of the Des Plaines Education Association, the district's teachers union, yesterday refused to tell the Herald exactly what teachers were planning.

However, at a rally earlier this week, teachers discussed taking their complaints to the parents.

In a statement made at Monday night's board meeting, Aguilu said, "If the board continues to refuse to negotiate on all issues, the teachers will feel compelled to take these concerns to the community. We feel that the parents should be alerted to some of the problems confronting our educational system."

The board negotiating team, Aguilu said, has refused to discuss all but one of the 18 items teachers want to negotiate.

Aguilu refused to say what the demands were, saying it might jeopardize the negotiations. School Board President James Kremers said however, early in the negotiations, teachers proposed a number of changes in board and administration policies, wanted to discuss insurance coverage and had asked for a 10 per cent across-the-board salary increase.

"I think it's premature to discuss lack of progress and failure to negotiate when negotiations are proceeding and subsequent meetings have been scheduled between the two parties, Kremers added.

"We're wrestling with some issues that take considerable deliberation," board member Robert Birchfield told the Herald. Birchfield is also a member of the board's negotiating team.

Other board members refused to comment.

"The teachers do not demand that the board accept all of our proposals. We ask that the board negotiate on these proposals," Aguilu told the board Monday.

After Aguilu made his statement, Kremers said the board would consider the statement and adjourned the meeting.

Aguilu tried to get a response from the board, but since the meeting was adjourned, the board refused to answer, according to a news release sent out by the teachers union.

The board members went into a long executive session while about 280 teachers met outside. The teachers termed the lack of response a "slap in the face," and discussed whether or not to take their problems to the community.

"We were all very disappointed," Aguilu said. The teachers had hoped for more of a reaction from the board members, he said.

5% raises for high school bosses

Raises for High School Dist. 214 administrators will average 5 per cent for next year, unless the Dist. 214 board decides next month that's too high.

The board Monday authorized Supt. Edward Gilbert to draw up proposed merit salary increases for the district's 101 administrators using $110,000 more than was spent last year for salaries. The figure provides an average five per cent raise for administrators.

In addition, however, board members indicated they may decide to lower the amount available for raises if they don't like the way the individual raises come out. The five per cent increase is one per cent less than the amount originally recommended by Gilbert.

Gilbert told the board he will recommend individual salary increases at the June 4 meeting.

GILBERT SAID HE originally recommended a 6 per cent average raise based on the rising cost of living and on the general salary practices for teachers.

Board member Jack Costello, who recommended that the average be cut from six per cent to 5 per cent, said he was concerned because some administrators' raises in the past have been "shockingly high."

Costello added that some years Gilbert has "almost had to force some raises" to use up all the money allowed by the board.

"I just don't see 6 per cent as being in the cards," Costello said. "I can't help what other districts do around us but I think many of our administrators are quite well paid."

Last year the board provided for average three per cent raises for administrators, with some getting nothing and others getting increases of as much as 7 per cent. Costello said, "There were substantial raises available at 3 per cent and I think there will be substantial raises available at 5 per cent."

IN ADDITION, board members also disagreed about whether the $110,000 should be used to actually raise the newly adopted administrative salary scale or whether to keep minimums and maximums for salaries the same and just give raises within that framework.

Board members also deferred a final decision on whether to raise minimums and maximums for each job until June 4.

Jazz concert Friday at humanities festival

The Elk Grove High School lab band and jazz combos will present a special concert Friday as part of the Humanities Festival.

Bruce Bannister of Vincennes, Ind. will be the guest soloist. He will perform with both groups.

The lab band will include music from several big band styles including Count Basie, Buddy Rich and Stan Kenton.

The two jazz combos will present original combo material as well as several published arrangements.

The concert will begin at 8 p.m. in the Elk Grove High School Little Theatre. Tickets are 50 cents.

SCIENCE FAIR contestant Danny Dobek is a fifth grader at South Elementary School in Des Plaines. The fair took place last week at the school and Danny's entry, a radio, won first place in the fifth grade category. Sixth grade winner was Mike Veblickis, fourth grade Donald Turner, and third grade Debra LaMantia.

Strikes may delay junior high construction

Possible labor strikes loom as another potential delay in the construction of Friendship Junior High School in Des Plaines, but the architect says the school can still be ready by the scheduled opening of school in September.

Scott Kelley, architect for Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59, told the board Monday night, "barring strikes and floods, I can see no reason why we can't be in the school by the fall."

Kelley said progress of construction on the school has improved recently. He said carpentering is being laid, lavatory equipment has been installed and other equipment is ready to go into the building.

He said strikes could still delay completion of the school. Teamsters, various crafts, and labor unions all have contract negotiations beginning within a few weeks, he told the board.

IF THERE IS a strike by any union, completion will be delayed, according to Kelley. He didn't speculate on the possibility of a strike.

Even if there is a strike, Kelley said that "there is no doubt" the academic areas of the school will be ready for students when classes begin in September.

The strike would affect only nonacademic areas, he said, because the academic areas are nearing completion. Construction on Friendship has been plagued with a long series of delays. Kelley said last night "the problems are basically behind us."

Originally the school was to have opened in January of this year. The opening date was pushed back mid-March, then mid-May, then June 1, then July 15 and finally to the current September opening.

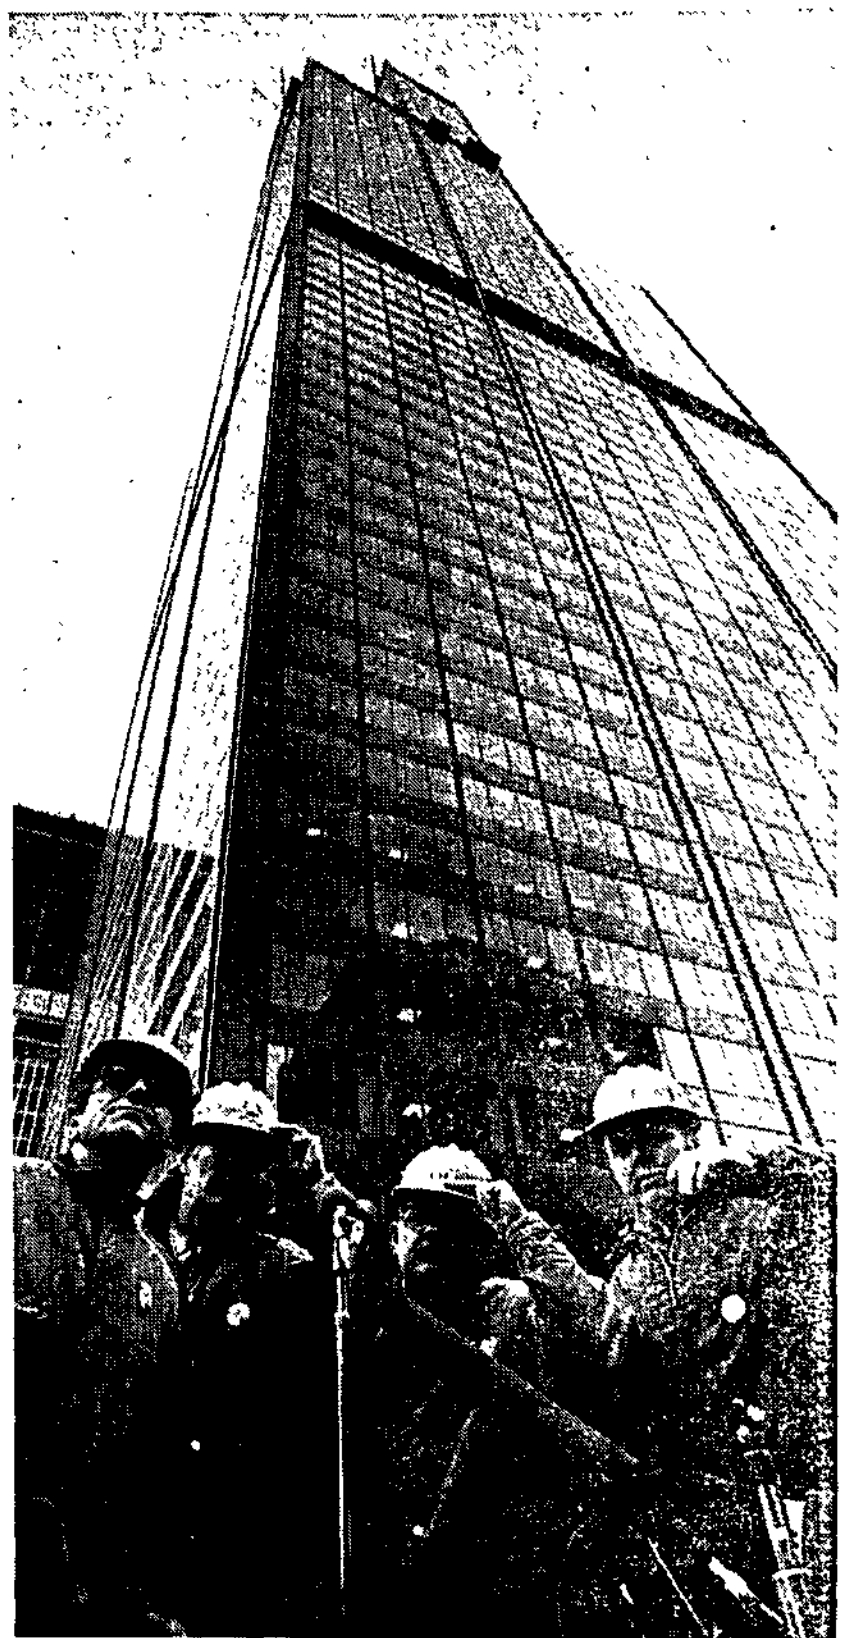

A representative of the architectural firm had blamed most of the delays on the failures of Albert Berg, general contractor, to meet schedule deadlines.

IN MID-MARCH, the board took a step toward a possible firing of Berg by adopting a resolution giving Berg and his bonding company notice that he might be removed from the job site.

The resolution did not commit the board to any action. It only served as a legal warning that the board was not satisfied with progress of the work.

Since the warning was given, construction has speeded up, and Kelley reports that he is now confident the building can be ready by September.

A FIVE-MINUTE tune brought national fame to four electricians who have been working on the Sears building in Chicago. The composer, Bob Ramecke, left, of Des Plaines, was joined by John Meyer, Howard Nowotarski and Jack Gallagher in singing "The Tallest Rock" at the topping out ceremony of the world's tallest skyscraper.

Twirling tryouts May 29

The Maine West High School Twirling Corps is holding tryouts for the 1973-74 season May 29, 30 and 31. The tryouts are open to all girls and boys who will be attending Maine West next year including eighth graders who will be freshmen next year.

There will be clinics at 3:45 p.m. on May 29 and 30. The tryouts will be held at 3:45 p.m. on May 31. Those interested in participating must attend at least one clinic plus the tryouts. Both of these activities will be held on the northwest side of A-Wing gym in the school, 1755 S. Wolf Rd.

The tryouts will consist of marching, showmanship, knowledge of fundamentals of twirling, and an original routine to music. A short original routine to music is requested to show the extent of ability as well as creativity. A tape recorder and record player will be available at the tryouts.

The Maine West Twirling Corps is a group of students who perform at various events throughout the year, including marching with the Maine West Concert Band in all parades and home football games. Twirlers also perform at various home basketball games.

Those selected for the corps must be willing to attend all practices and performances. The Music Department is planning to schedule all twirlers for fourth period so that they may practice with the band.

If there is enough interest and talent available, an apprentice corps may be established to march with the Cadet Band, similar to a Junior Varsity Squad.

Those with questions can call the school's music department, 827-6176.

has visited a foot doctor 14 or 15 times.

DILEONARDI ASKED Luety in cross-examination, whether the chief had ever taken any official disciplinary action against Luety. Kellogg responded that this was the basis for the suit — that Hiltz had been discriminatory and arbitrary in handling Luety's complaints.

Dileonardi also asked Luety if he had ever seen a licensed physician or orthopedic surgeon about his foot problem. He objected to letters from podiatrists supporting Luety's medical claim as evidence, saying since the doctors and podiatrists were not testifying in person it was not valid testimony.

Mejda adjourned court after 3½ hours, continuing the case to June 6 at the Civic Center.

Ex-fireman loses pension case appeal

Former Des Plaines fireman Richard Peterson this week lost an appeal to the Illinois Supreme Court for a total disability pension.

Peterson, 40, suffered heart damage while fighting a fire at Froelich restaurant, 718 Lee St., Dec. 9, 1962 and carried his case for a $7,477-a-year pension through seven years of court appeal.

A fireman from 1958 to 1965, Peterson contended that he suffered permanent heart damage from smoke inhalation during the fire in the restaurant basement.

The Des Plaines Police and Fire Pension Board denied his pension claim by a 4 to 3 vote, but Cook County Circuit Court Judge Edward Healy, in September, 1969, overturned the board decision. Healy ruled that Peterson's inability to resume regular firemen's duties qualified him for the pension.

The Illinois Appellate Court reversed Healy's ruling, agreeing that the city's offer of a post in the Fire Prevention Bureau could prevent Peterson's retirement.

Peterson was working as a salesman after leaving the fire department according to court records. He could not be reached for comment yesterday.

The Supreme Court concurred in the appeal decision Monday. Judge Howard Ryan, in the court decision, stated that "just being unable to perform the duties of a firefighter is not sufficient to qualify him for a pension when there are other duties he was offered and could perform."

City Atty. Robert Dileonardi estimated that the pension claim could cost Des Plaines $100,000 in lifetime and widow's benefits.

Would share costs with other towns

Village may hire lobbyist for work with legislature

A lobbyist may be hired by Elk Grove Village and neighboring municipalities to protect the interests of the Northwest Suburbs in the Illinois General Assembly.

Village Pres. Charles Zettek said yesterday the village is very willing to hire a lobbyist jointly and share his $20,000 annual salary with other towns. He said the exact cost to Elk Grove Village will depend on the number of participating communities.

Earlier this week village trustees approved unanimously a resolution indicating interest in the joint lobbyist.

"I have mixed emotions (about the lobbyist), but I will vote for it to see how it works the first year," Trustee Ron Chernick said.

TRUSTEE GEORGE Spees said he also was unsure about the need for a lobbyist, but would still vote for the project and watch the effectiveness of the lobbyist closely.

The plan for hiring a lobbyist currently is being discussed by towns in the Northwest Municipal Conference, an organization of communities in the suburbs. Zettek has said some mayors and presidents feel that if the villages join together, they could afford to hire a spokesman in Springfield.

Elk Grove Village Mgr. Charles Willis said that although no one has been hired, the municipal conference has been in contact with William L. Watson, a registered professional lobbyist now working in Springfield. Watson is a former mayor of Lombard, and a lawyer.

ZETTEK INTRODUCED the plan to hire the lobbyist to Elk Grove Village trustees earlier this month. He strongly recommended that a spokesman be hired, and said a good lobbyist could save the village some money by preventing harmful legislation from being passed.

Zettek said the lobbyist would work for the towns particularly on "income legislation" that might take revenue away from communities.

He said a lobbyist is a wise investment because the money that would be spent on the spokesman's salary could be recovered many times over by protecting the village from losing money.

The plan for some type of representation in Springfield surfaced a couple of months ago during committee hearings on a bill to redistribute money from sales tax. The legislation would have taken some money out of communities with large shopping centers and distributed it regionally. The bill eventually was defeated in committee.

Zettek said it is for bills of this type that the village needs representation.

"OPUS 1 — THANKS," an original guitar composition at Elk Grove High School as part of "Grenaissance VII," written and played by Alison Gabriel, was presented during the Student Original Talent assembly yesterday.

The man behind Elk Grove's Grenaissance VII

by FRED GACA

Grenaissance VII has almost lived out its month of life at Elk Grove High School, and organizer Richard Calisch can relax — or start on Grenaissance VIII.

Calisch, head of the humanities division at the high school, has overall responsibility for the annual "Grenaissance" art festival each May.

Elk Grove High School has been open for seven years, and a Grenaissance has been staged each year, under the direction of Calisch.

He started the first festival, he said, because the students had few opportunities for exposure to the arts.

GRENAISSANCE I had only five programs in about a week's time. Yearly the program has grown, until this festival had 117 performances, with about 600 students actively taking part.

Calisch estimates that every one of the 2,400 students and 120 faculty members at the school has seen at least one show this month.

It would be hard to imagine an art form that was not represented in this year's festival. Dance, drama, poetry, art shows, music, film, lectures, literature and interpretive readings were all presented. Even a witch appeared at the festival.

"After the witch appeared, I got a call from a minister asking if he could have equal time," said Calisch.

A time period was available and the minister accepted an invitation to speak at the school.

The minister's appearance highlighted the only disappointment Calisch has with year's festival. Dance, drama, poetry, art shows, music, film, lectures, literature and interpretive readings were all presented. Even a witch appeared at the festival.

CALISCH said he would like to present performing artists from the community during the festival, but no one has come forward.

Calisch begins working on the festival in September. "Most of the creative work is done by the students and teachers. I handle the technical or administrative details," he said.

The first step is getting definite dates for the major events of the festival, such as the concerts, plays and other large group events.

IN JANUARY, performances by single students or small groups of students are arranged. These are usually in (continued on page 3)

This Morning In Brief

The nation

The current attorney for bugging conspirator James McCord Jr. confided that "we are going after the President of the United States" shortly before McCord began disclosures to the Senate Watergate committee.

Skylab's repairmen-astronauts, set for launch tomorrow, passed their last major physical exam and got a vote of confidence from their boss that they can fix the crippled space station and salvage most of the mission.

The Internal Revenue Service denied it had begun a comprehensive audit of state governors' income tax returns, but acknowledged that federal agents had pulled the tax returns of seven governors for a closer look.

The nation's highest court of military law has agreed to hear the appeal of 1st Lt. William Calley Jr. from his murder conviction in the My Lai massacre.

The Senate has confirmed 82-3, the nomination of Elliot L. Richardson as attorney general despite some fears that it would give the appearance the administration was "investigating itself" in the Watergate scandal.

A federal judge has dismissed a suit by atheist Madalyn Murray O'Hair which sought to ban religious services in the White House and Congress.

The United Steel workers said 34,000 aluminum workers will receive a 9-cent an hour pay hike June 1.

The world

Canada's External Affairs Minister said yesterday his nation will decide soon whether or not to withdraw from the International Commission for Control and Supervision (ICCS) in Vietnam. The decision, expected late this week or early next week, will hinge on "improvements in conditions" under which the ICCS operates.

The Beirut newspaper Le Soir reported Egyptian President Anwar Sadat would order hostilities resumed against Israel if Soviet Communist party leader Leonid Brezhnev refused to meet with him before going to Washington.

In what appeared to be a rerun of the Profumo-Christine Keeler scandal, Lord Lambton, former parliamentary under-secretary of the Royal Air Force, said he resigned because of a "casual acquaintance" with a call girl and a "sneak plimp" who took compromising photographs to exploit the illicit affair.

The state

Criminal Court Judge Philip Romili has refused to grant bond for William and Irene Lindquist, charged with the murder of their son, Johnny.

Mayor Richard J. Daley said yesterday he saw nothing "inherently wrong" with a state lottery.

Area students' attitudes show comparative decline

By JERRY THOMAS

Schaumburg Township children have dropped in national yearly comparisons of scores on the Iowa Basic Skills Test, but are still above average.

Although Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 officials declined to reveal this year's scores until tonight, informed sources have said the levels for students in grades five through seven have dropped from previous years, and district administrators are concerned.

The results of the Iowa test, which compares children throughout the nation, will be discussed at the meeting of the school board's education committee. The committee will meet tonight in the instructional center in the northwest corner of the basement of Jane Addams Junior High School, 1621 W. Norwell Ln., Schaumburg.

A sampling of the district's students in grades three through seven, and not all the 14,000 children enrolled, were tested, said the sources. Third and fourth grades maintained their previous levels.

THE DISTRICT also has administered a Program Evaluation Design (PED) test, and the results of that will be available soon, officials said. The PED test was designed by the district over a three year period to evaluate its program of individually guided education (IGE). Recently adopted throughout the district, IGE was designed to allow each student to work to his fullest on ability groups, rather than just within one grade level.

Carl Seltzer, Dist. 54 curriculum director, has said the PED test is a true diagnostic tool, and will tell the district in what areas of each subject a student shows weaknesses.

Also at tonight's meeting, committee chairman Mrs. Bonnie Hannon will discuss recruitment of junior and senior high school students who live in Dist. 54 for committee membership.

SHE IS ACCEPTING applications to the 20-member committee from the students, who she feels may have valuable contributions when the committee deals with curriculum, programming and testing.

Although parents serve on all board committees, this is the first time young people have been invited to participate and vote on a Dist. 54 board of education committee.

Results of a survey of parent opinions on a new report card procedure recently adopted also will be discussed.

'Hike' collections should top $20,000

Collections from the fifth annual "Hike for Your Neighbor" to benefit the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows are expected to top the $20,000 mark.

Pledge collections now total $8,835.85. This represents collections from approximately one-third of the more than 900 participants in the April 8, 20-mile hike through the Northwest suburbs. Pledges have been averaging more than $20 per person.

The first phase of a telephone campaign to remind the marchers to turn in their pledges is expected to be completed by the end of the week, according to Rena Trevor, hike chairman.

"We're hoping that by next week we'll see a spurt in contributions," said Mrs. Trevor. The hike committee hopes to have all pledges in by the end of the school year.

THE HIKEERS received pledges of money from individuals and businesses for every mile they walked in the hike. Most completed the entire hike.

Last year approximately $13,000 was raised from the hike.

The hike has been one of the center's major fund raising activities but has taken on new importance this year because of the dismantling of the Office of Economic Opportunity and the cutoff of all federal funding.

The center originally was granted $64,000 from the federal government for the 1973-74 fiscal year. This represented 48 per cent of the center's operating budget and the center was prepared to raise the remaining 52 per cent locally. The federal funding cutoff means the center has to raise all of its own funds.

During the 1972-73 fiscal year the center served approximately 1,700 families from the six township area of Palatine, Wheeling, Elk Grove, Schaumburg, Hanover, Barrington and parts of Maine.

The center's services include: food stamps, supplemental food nutrition programs, housing assistance, legal aid, job referral, family planning, income tax assistance, interpretation and referrals to several other agencies. The center also provides clothing, emergency food, household items and financial aid to needy families.

dependent activities done by the students.

Callisch said the humanities division has a policy of arranging a time and place for any student who wants to do any type of show. A student only has to submit an application to the humanities division.

The student must give period progress reports on his or her show. If the student has serious problems in developing the show, Callisch or some other teacher will offer assistance, but most of the students are capable of solving their production problems.

"We guarantee a minimum audience of one person for every show. If nobody else goes, I will," said Callisch.

SUPPLYING the minimum audience of one has not been a problem for Callisch during Grenaissance VII. The audience problem has been on the other extreme — turning away people from "SRO" performances.

Students can attend events before, after and during school. During the school day, students use study periods and other open times to attend events.

Some teachers will permit a student to sign out of a class to attend a performance. On occasion, a teacher will take an entire class to an event.

BY EARLY spring, a time and place has been arranged for all the acts. Callisch has a calendar of events printed and distributed and works on getting publicity for the festival.

Grenaissance has grown over the years, but Callisch said he would not want the festival to become much bigger. The current size provides "a broad exposure to all the arts" with little conflict between events.

"We can find a spot for everyone (who wants to perform.) There is always room sometime, somewhere," said Callisch.

Salt Creek School concert tomorrow

Songs from "You're a Good Man Charlie Brown" and "The Sound of Music" will be among the selections presented by the Salt Creek School Choir at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow at the school, 65 Kennedy Blvd.

"You're a Good Man Charlie Brown" will feature fifth-grader Mark Jennings and fourth-grader Jeff Cashman alternating in the role of Charlie Brown. Fifth-graders Claudia Barry and Kellie Minogue will both play Lucy.

Cheri Tenny will have the part of Maria in selections from "The Sound of Music."

Three soloists will perform in the show: Elaine Armstrong, "Climb Every Mountain;" Janet Wagner, "Bless the Beasts and the Children;" and Diana Mohr, "People."

Admission is free.

Correction

A headline in yesterday's Herald stated the Elk Grove High School jazz concert will be Saturday was in error.

As the story stated, the concert by the lab band and jazz combos will be Friday at 8 p.m. in the school's little theater. The concert is in connection with the month-long humanities festival. Tickets are 50 cents.

Harper eyes new 2nd-campus site

by KURT BAER
Harper College officials are considering another possible site for a second campus near the northwest corner of Arlington Heights and Dundee roads, the Herald has learned.

The primary site for a second campus, if one is built, remains the northwest corner of Palatine and Schoenbeck roads in Arlington Heights, according to Jack Lucas, director of planning for the college.

But the Dundee-Arlington Heights Road site was given second priority in a study that evaluated six other locations.

A final decision on whether to build a second Harper campus has not been made, and may not be made for another year, Lucas said.

The land at the northwest corner of Arlington Heights and Dundee roads lies behind the Buffalo Grove Mall shopping center in unincorporated Cook County. The site was given a high rating in the site study because of its size, location and availability.

"Palatine-Schoenbeck roads is still our first choice. If a second campus is going to be built, we considered a number — six — other sites and that (Arlington Heights-Dundee) was one that has been considered," Lucas said yesterday.

"If we decide to go for a second site, and if for some reason the Palatine-Schoenbeck property isn't available, which I don't anticipate, we would probably reevaluate the (land) situation," he added.

THE HERALD first disclosed in February that 126 acres at the northwest corner of Palatine and Schoenbeck roads, property known as the Ozmun Farm, was the college's prime target for a second campus site.

The land is now owned by the Mayo Foundation, a not-for-profit corporation affiliated with the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn. It is conservatively valued at $25,000 an acre.

Harper has asked that the site be designated for educational purposes in the Arlington Heights master plan.

Before a decision on whether to acquire and build a second campus is made, there have to be some new enrollment projections for the college, Lucas said.

A decision to build another campus would then have to be approved by a state governing board and ultimately by the voters in a referendum since they would have to pay for the project.

"We're trying to keep our options open for a year until some decisions are made," Lucas said.

If the site is designated for educational purposes, Harper would have one year to develop its plans in the event that some other developer proposes a building plan for the property.

Clinics help fight disease

by MARILYN HEISER
Preventative medicine is the most economical and soundest approach to health care, physicians and nurses say. And immunization against disease is one of the simplest preventative measures.

The Cook County Department of Public Health offers two immunization clinics for children in the Northwest suburbs, in Hoffman Estates and Des Plaines. According to Mrs. Addie Reninger of the health department, spring and summer are good times for children to receive needed immunizations.

The Hoffman Estates clinic was relocated last fall to the Prince of Peace Lutheran Church, 930 W. Higgins Rd., after initially opening last summer at St. Peter Lutheran School. The clinic is open the fourth Wednesday of every month from 1 to 3 p.m.

In Des Plaines, the clinic holds sessions from 1 to 3 p.m. the first Wednesday of every month at 800 S. Beau Dr.

All children age 1 to 18 are welcome to attend either clinic, irrespective of where they live. No appointment is needed. All parents are asked to bring their child's immunization history to the clinic.

Families having problems obtaining the services of a physician to give immunizations especially are urged to attend one of the clinics, Mrs. Reninger said.

CONCERN RECENTLY was voiced by the Hoffman Estates Board of Health that the clinic there may be discontinued if attendance remains low. But according to Mrs. Reninger, the county has no plans to discontinue the clinic.

Attendance averaged about 200 children each session during last summer, and she said it should rise again this summer. During the fall and winter months, she said, attendance had dropped to only 50 or 60 children each session, but that is to be expected for those months.

Immunizations against diphtheria, whooping cough, tetanus and polio should be given during the first year of life, with boosters approximately a year later, and on entrance to school, Mrs. Reninger said.

Measles and rubella (German measles) immunizations should be given when the child reaches 12 months of age. Illinois law also requires all children must be fully protected from these communicable diseases before entering school, she said.

CHILDREN with a history of allergies or neurological disorders are not accepted in the clinics, she added. This is because children with allergies are more apt to get a reaction to the immunization, she said. If this happens, they should be under a physician's care.

The only immunization not available at the clinic is the one for mumps, she added.

Contrary to past reports, vaccinations and shots for passport purposes, foreign travel and visas are not available. "We're particularly interested in reaching preschool children, although all children are welcome," Mrs. Reninger said.

Second priority in 7-location evaluation

Arlington-Dundee site under study for second Harper College campus

Chemicals cause smoke, fumes in plant here

A chemical chain reaction yesterday morning at H. B. Fuller Co., 315 S. Hicks Rd., Palatine, resulted in heavy smoke and fumes inside the plant.

The Palatine Fire Department was called to the scene at 11:30 a.m. yesterday, and firemen opened up smoke vents on the plant's ceiling and started blowing out the smoke with large fans.

The only injury occurred to one employee who apparently slipped while walking through the smoke and dislocated his knee.

A process called "runaway polymerization" caused the smoke and irritating fumes, according to Palatine fireman Joe Parahausen. He explained that two chemicals started reacting too fast and released excessive heat, causing the smoke.

The plant was shut down for the afternoon, but the building suffered no serious smoke damage, according to fire officials.

and hiking, and other projects approved in last fall's $1.4 million park improvement referendum.

A sales engineer for C. R. Daniels Inc., Wiehrdt lives at 123 W. Robertson St., Palatine.

Robert Dellamaria was elected vice president, with the treasurer's job going to Walden Degner.

The first official ceremony for the new officers will be the groundbreaking at the Birchwood Park swimming pool site Saturday at 10:30 a.m.

Village speed limits will be reviewed

A study of speed limits in Palatine is being undertaken by the village board's streets and traffic committee.

The committee, headed by Trustee Fred H. Zajonc, will review present speed limits throughout the village for possible changes.

The study was prompted by a request by the Hunting Ridge Homeowners Association to lower speed limits in that subdivision to 20 mph to protect children.

Other members of the committee are Trustees Richard W. Fonte and James L. Shaw.

Arlington Indoor Tennis Club

Complex may get parking space break

Developers of the Arlington Indoor Tennis Club on Northwest Highway near the Arlington Park Race Track were given a tentative go-ahead, last night, to provide less than half the required number of parking spaces for their planned addition of three tennis courts.

The decision of the Palatine Village Board planning, building and zoning committee to recommend the reduction in the requirement, however, was based on the developers' pledge to provide the retention they had promised when the present eight tennis courts and adjoining sports facilities were built last year.

The recommendation will go to the village board for action next Tuesday.

Eight residents of the Arlington Crest subdivision, immediately east of the sports complex, attended the meeting and expressed concern about the lack of retention on the site and overall "messy" appearance of the premises.

EVALLINE STENZEL, president of the Arlington Crest Civic Association, said the residents do not object to the addition of the three tennis courts or the lowering of the required number of parking spaces from 65 to 31.

"But we object that the responsibilities of the developers have not been looked up to," she said. "We've got paper blowing in our backyards, we've got dust and mosquitos."

In recommending that the developers, Home Builders of America, be allowed to provide fewer spaces, Trustee Robert J. Guss Jr. tacked on the stipulation that the developers complete the retention area, police the buildings for rubbish and extend the fence between the sports complex and adjoining homes north to Rose Park.

Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones concurred with Guss' motion to grant the variation.

Trustee Bryan P. Coughlin Jr. chairman of the committee, conceded that 31 parking spaces would be more than adequate for users of the three new tennis courts. But, he said, total parking for the tennis courts, roller skating rink and ice hockey rink in the sports complex is inadequate.

TRUSTEE Clayton W. Brown, a member of the committee, left the meeting early and did not vote.

Discussion of Home Builders of America plans was limited to the three tennis courts.

Residents of Arlington Crest inquired about reports that a large hockey arena may be built north of the sports complex, but village Mgr. Berton G. Braun dismissed the subject as inappropriate.

John Ladner, attorney for the developers, did confirm reports that Home Builders of America plans to ask the village for a special zoning use for a 36-lane bowling alley near the sports complex.

'Hike' collections should top $20,000

Collections from the fifth annual "Hike for Your Neighbor" to benefit the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows are expected to top the $20,000 mark.

Pledge collections now total $8,835.85. This represents collections from approximately one-third of the more than 900 participants in the April 8, 20-mile hike through the Northwest suburbs. Pledges have been averaging more than $20 per person.

The first phase of a telephone campaign to remind the marchers to turn in their pledges is expected to be completed by the end of the week, according to Rena Trevor, hike chairman.

THE HIKERS received pledges of money from individuals and businesses for every mile they walked in the hike.

Most completed the entire hike.

Last year approximately $13,000 was raised from the hike.

The hike has been one of the center's major fund raising activities but has taken on new importance this year because of the dismantling of the Office of Economic Opportunity and the cutoff of all federal funding.

The center originally was granted $64,000 from the federal government for the 1973-74 fiscal year. This represented 48 per cent of the center's operating budget and the center was prepared to

Easement granted for Kenilwicke main

An agreement has been reached to allow completion of a water main serving the Kenilwicke subdivision in Palatine.

Kelth A. Chidley, 777 N. Hicks Rd., agreed to permit the village to come onto his property to complete the loop in the water pipe serving the Kenilwicke area.

In return, Chidley's home, which is not in the village, will be hooked up to the village's sanitary sewer system, and the $25 fee will be waived. In addition, he will be paid $400 by the village for the easement.

The terms were negotiated between Chidley and Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones.

raise the remaining 52 per cent locally. The federal funding cutoff means the center has to raise all of its own funds.

During the 1972-73 fiscal year the center served approximately 1,700 families from the six township area of Palatine, Wheeling, Elk Grove, Schaumburg, Hanover, Barrington and parts of Maine.

The center's services include: food stamps, supplemental food nutrition programs, housing assistance, legal aid, job referral, family planning, income tax assistance, interpretation and referrals to several other agencies. The center also provides clothing, emergency food, household items and financial aid to needy families.

Public hearing today on franchise carryout

A public hearing will be held tonight on a request to operate a Brown's Fried Chicken franchise at the southwest corner of Palatine Road and Northwest Highway-Hicks Road.

The hearing will be conducted by the Palatine Zoning Board of Appeals at 8 o'clock in the village hall.

The board's recommendation on the request for a special zoning use will be forwarded to the village board for final action. The proposed site of the restaurant-carryout facility was formerly an Arco service station.

Trucking firm urges depot site rezoning

A request by Yellow Freight System Inc. to rezone slightly over two acres of Northwest Highway frontage near the firm's trucking depot will be considered by Palatine village trustees June 11.

The firm, at 419 Baldwin Rd., is seeking to change the zoning from a manufacturing to a commercial use. No immediate plans have been made for using the property, according to Yellow Freight attorney Pat Daniels.

One resident of the nearby Palatine Park subdivision said at a public hearing on the rezoning this week that she feared a commercial use would add to noise in the area.

The trustees decided to take action on the rezoning request next month, after the planning, building and zoning committee has reviewed the request.

Forward, march! It's July 4th parade time

It's time to dig the instruments and tissue paper out of the basement — the Palatine Jaycees are putting together their annual Fourth of July parade.

Musical groups, marching units and floats are being sought to participate in the parade, along with antique cars and decorated bicycles.

Prizes will be awarded for the best entries. The theme of this year's event is "Independence Days of the Past."

Groups or individuals wishing to join the parade are asked to contact coordinator William Rowe, 647-7600, or 359-4430, or to write: Parade, Box 344, Palatine, by June 23.

The parade will begin at 11:45 a.m. July 4, and will culminate in a brief program at Community Park. Booths and other activities also are being planned in the Independence Day observance.

VIP party will regroup forces

Leaders of the Village Independent Party will regroup next week in the party's first meeting since its slate of candidates was defeated in the recent Palatine Village Board election.

The meeting is intended "to pull ourselves back together," according to VIP Pres. Thomas C. Kearns.

The six defeated candidates for village board seats and organizers of the campaign will attend the meeting, set for 8 p.m. Thursday at Arlington Realty Inc., 119 N. Northwest Hwy.

Kearns said discussion will focus on "what happened and where we're going."

Also to be considered is an estimated $500 to $600 campaign debt. Total campaign expenses were about $5,000, he said.

The VIP slate was soundly beaten by a Republican Party slate in the April 17 election. It was the second contest for the VIPs, who captured two of three village board seats in the 1971 election.

School district will give $457 to Kirk Center

Mount Prospect Dist. 57 will contribute $457 toward completion of the Kirk Center, a school in Palatine for mentally handicapped children.

Dist. 57 is one of 10 school districts in the Northwest Educational Cooperative (NEC) that support the school.

According to Dist. 57 board member Edith Freund, NEC still needs about $12,000 to complete construction of the school building.

When the building project for the center was first inaugurated, Dist. 57, along with the other districts, levied three special education taxes based on the total assessed valuation of the district. However, according to Asst. Supt. J.C. Busenhart, the original estimate for the cost of the construction was inaccurate. Failure to collect all the anticipated tax money also contributed to the shortage, Busenhart said.

The additional donation requested by NEC was based on a ratio of what Dist. 57 paid in relation to the other districts in the three tax levies, Busenhart said.

According to Mrs. Freund, NEC will be asking all the districts for an additional contribution later to pay for landscaping, an expansion of parking and the construction of a bus canopy at the center.

Panel assignments completed by Jones

Committee assignments of Palatine village trustees were completed this week with the appointment of James L. Shaw to head the health, safety and welfare committee.

Shaw, who also chairs the communications and public relations committee, was named to the post by Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones.

Trustee Clayton W. Brown had earlier declined the chairmanship of the health committee, citing rumors he said were spread during the recent election campaign that he was against police patrolmen. The health committee oversees the police department.

Condominium owners will elect board

Willow Creek III condominium owners will vote tonight to elect their first board of directors at 7:30 p.m. in the Willow Creek clubhouse.

Sixteen candidates are on the ballot for eight director positions, but additional nominations may be made at the meeting.

Candidates are: Earl Anderson, Leonard Dyck, Michael Fumo, Donald Goor, Dwight Gregory, Walter Lewis, John Lowman, Sidney Lyons, Heinz Martin, John McNamara, Ed Neff, Larry Phillips, John Reedy, Allen Teich, Larry VanMersbergen and Lloyd (Jack) Wilkes.

Clinic helps fight diseases

by MARILYN HEISER

Preventative medicine is the most economical and soundest approach to health care, physicians and nurses say. And immunization against disease is one of the simplest preventative measures.

The Cook County Department of Public Health offers two immunization clinics for children in the Northwest suburbs, in Hoffman Estates and Des Plaines. According to Mrs. Addie Reninger of the health department, spring and summer are good times for children to receive needed immunizations.

The Hoffman Estates clinic was relocated last fall to the Prince of Peace Lutheran Church, 530 W. Higgins Rd., after initially opening last summer at St. Peter Lutheran School. The clinic is open the fourth Wednesday of every month from 1 to 3 p.m.

In Des Plaines, the clinic holds sessions from 1 to 3 p.m. the first Wednesday of every month at 800 S. Beau Dr.

All children age 1 to 18 are welcome to attend either clinic, irrespective of where they live. No appointment is needed. All parents are asked to bring their child's immunization history to the clinic.

Families having problems obtaining the services of a physician to give immunizations especially are urged to attend one of the clinics, Mrs. Reninger said.

CONCERN RECENTLY was voiced by the Hoffman Estates Board of Health that the clinic there may be discontinued if attendance remains low. But according to Mrs. Reninger, the county has no plans to discontinue the clinic.

Attendance averaged about 200 children each session during last summer, and she said it should rise again this summer. During the fall and winter months, she said, attendance had dropped to only 50 or 60 children each session, but that is to be expected for those months.

Immunizations against diphtheria, whooping cough, tetanus and polio should be given during the first year of life, with boosters approximately a year later, and on entrance to school, Mrs. Reninger said.

Measles and rubella (German measles) immunizations should be given when the child reaches 12 months of age. Illinois law also requires all children must be fully protected from these communicable diseases before entering school, she said.

CHILDREN WITH a history of allergies or neurological disorders are not accepted in the clinics, she added. This is because children with allergies are more apt to get a reaction to the immunization, she said. If this happens, they should be under a physician's care.

The only immunization not available at the clinic is the one for mumps, she added.

Contrary to past reports, vaccinations and shots for passport purposes, foreign travel and visas are not available. "We're particularly interested in reaching preschool children, although all children are welcome," Mrs. Reninger said.

Schools end target date for new teacher contract

The end of the school year has been set as a target date for ratification of the 1973-74 teachers' contract in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15.

Negotiating teams for the board of education and Classroom Teachers' Council (CTC) have held three closed-door sessions and have reached tentative agreement on two points of a five point salary and fringe benefit package requested by the CTC.

Agreement on teacher salaries appears to be the major obstacle standing in the way of an early settlement. According to a joint press release issued yesterday by the two negotiating teams, salaries were the only subject discussed at a negotiations session on Monday.

Cost of living increases experienced during the past year were discussed in length on Monday, according to the press release. The release also stated the CTC expressed concern for the number of teachers who find it necessary to moonlight to supplement their teaching income. No figures on the number of teachers moonlighting were available yesterday.

TOTAL INCOME for the district was pointed to by the board's team as a key factor in determining what could be considered as a final financial settlement, according to the release. Supt. Frank Whiteley said yesterday the district would not know its total income for the 1973-74 fiscal year until legislation affecting state aid for education is acted on in Springfield.

The board's team has agreed to increase the top step on the present salary schedule for teachers. Whiteley explained the top of the salary schedule was frozen during negotiations several years ago.

At the present time the salary schedule ranges from a low of $7,730 to a high of $14,937.

CTC has requested an increase in the salary plan that would "amount to $537,000 above the present schedule updated one year." Updating the present schedule is expected to cost the district $199,000. Therefore, the total increase requested by the CTC is $736,000.

No details have been released on the distribution of the proposed increase. Figures are also not available on the percentage of the teachers' salary budget the proposed increase represents.

AGREEMENT HAS tentatively been reached on a more liberal professional growth policy and continuation of payment of teachers' hospitalization and medical insurance premiums for the calendar year.

The other two points of the original CTC proposal yet to be discussed are a request for a revision of the district's sick leave policy and an increase in income protection insurance.

Both negotiating teams will reexamine their original positions prior to meeting again May 30.

Second priority in 7-location evaluation

Harper eyes Arlington-Dundee site for second campus

by KURT BAER
Harper College officials are considering another possible site for a second campus near the northwest corner of Arlington Heights and Dundee roads, the Herald has learned.

The primary site for a second campus, if one is built, remains the northwest corner of Palatine and Schoenbeck roads in Arlington Heights, according to Jack Lucas, director of planning for the college.

But the Dundee-Arlington Heights Road site was given second priority in a study that evaluated six other locations.

A final decision on whether to build a second Harper campus has not been made, and may not be made for another year, Lucas said.

The land at the northwest corner of Arlington Heights and Dundee roads lies behind the Buffalo Grove Mall shopping center in unincorporated Cook County. The site was given a high rating in this site study because of its size, location and availability.

"Palatine-Schoenbeck roads is still our first choice, if a second campus is going to be built. We considered a number — six — other sites and that (Arlington Heights-Dundee) was one that has been considered," Lucas said yesterday.

"If we decide to go for a second site, and if for some reason the Palatine-Schoenbeck property isn't available, which I don't anticipate, we would probably reevaluate the (land) situation," he added.

THE HERALD first disclosed in February that 126 acres at the northwest corner of Palatine and Schoenbeck roads, property known as the Ozmun Farm, was the college's prime target for a second campus site.

The land is now owned by the Mayo Foundation, a not-for-profit corporation affiliated with the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn. It is conservatively valued at $25,000 an acre.

Harper has asked that the site be designated for educational purposes in the Arlington Heights master plan.

Before a decision on whether to acquire and build a second campus is made, there have to be some new enrollment projections for the college, Lucas said.

A decision to build another campus would then have to be approved by a state governing board and ultimately by the voters in a referendum since they would have to pay for the project.

"We're trying to keep our options open for a year until some decisions are made," Lucas said.

If the site is designated for educational purposes, Harper would have one year to develop its plans in the event that some other developer proposes a building plan for the property.

NW Center official gets city welfare aide position

An official of the Northwest Opportunity Center has been appointed by Mayor Roland Meyer to serve as Rolling Meadows' assistant welfare officer.

Rena Trevor, treasurer of the center's board of directors, was named to the position during a city council meeting Tuesday. The appointment was somewhat of a turnaround by Meyer, who led opposition two months ago to a request from Mrs. Trevor and the center for a $2,000 contribution from the city to the center.

Meyer at the same time appointed Nicholas Schmitt, formerly the assistant welfare director, to head of the two-man welfare department to replace Phillip Prete.

Prete submitted his resignation to Meyer two weeks ago, indicating he no longer wanted to serve because of political bickering that had arisen during the center debate.

Mrs. Trevor's appointment had been hinted to the Herald last week in discussions with Schmitt. Schmitt said he and Mrs. Trevor have been friends and that he intended to discuss with her the assistant welfare director position.

Mrs. Trevor said yesterday she met with Meyer Monday to discuss the appointment and the workings of the department. "I felt that if I could serve the city in this capacity and also serve as a liaison with the center and bring a kind of structure to the office, I would accept it," she said.

SHE STRESSED she would work strictly on a volunteer basis with the city and will still maintain her duties with the center, which she has worked with since its beginning in 1967.

"I want to keep politics out of this," she added, referring to the controversy which erupted during council meetings two months ago on the center contribution. The city eventually turned down the request.

"My feeling is that when the presentation (requesting the contribution) was made before the city, it became a political issue. It was a routine presentation made before all the villages and this (the controversy) only happened in the city," she said.

Rena Trevor

Instead of granting the money to the center, the council adopted a plan to increase the city welfare budget from $3,000 to $10,000, using most of the additional money to contract for services the city cannot provide.

The city welfare department last year served 12 families. Services provided include assistance in finding jobs for unemployed, temporary financial assistance for families unable to pay medical or other emergency bills, and food certificates for needy families.

THE CENTER, a branch of the federal Office of Economic Opportunity, provides legal counseling, housing referral, employment assistance, food stamps, clothing for needy, and a nutrition program for children under six years among its services.

Last year the center served 105 families from Rolling Meadows.

"I think the plan is a little cumbersome and it increases the red tape, but if I can serve the city in this capacity, I could cut through the red tape," she said. "By acting as a bridge, I feel I could achieve in the long run my objective which is helping the poor."

Mrs. Trevor said she and Meyer discussed the scope of the city department and both agreed the city should "not get into the business of full-fledged welfare." She said the city's efforts to help the needy would be welcome but added "it also must recognize that there are some needs that it cannot fill and that is where the cooperation has to come in."

Establishing more definite guidelines for the city department's operation is needed, she said. "I can't determine at this point whether all the money (in the budget) will be needed, but I think that working with the center and the city, we'll be able to identify more people who might need help."

Mrs. Trevor's appointment calls for her term of office to extend to April 30, 1975.

KING PELLINORE and his dog Horrid make their appearance at the Rolling Meadows High School production of "Camelot," which will open tonight. Pellinore is played by Gary Cole and Horrid by "Babs" Lentz. The play will be presented at 7:30 p.m. and Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. Tickets are $1.75 for adults and $1.25 for students. Other cast members are Thomas Richards as King Arthur, Kerry Donovan as Queen Guinevere and Martin Knight as Sir Lancelot.

Residents may buy flood insurance as of tomorrow

The U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development has announced that effective tomorrow, Rolling Meadows residents may purchase HUD national flood insurance.

The National Flood Insurers Association has designated State Farm Fire and Casualty Co. in Bloomington as the servicing company for the city.

The announcement means home and business owners in the city can buy flood insurance at federally subsidized rates.

Area man attending Rotary International

Joseph V. Palella, 4402 Peacock Lane, Rolling Meadows, is attending the Rotary International convention in Lausanne, Switzerland.

Palella is a member of the Rotary Club of Rolling Meadows.

Some 20,000 persons from approximately 100 countries attended the five-day event.

"A New Look at World Peace" is the theme of Rotary's 64th annual convention. Speakers at the international gathering include: Edgar D. Mitchell, former U.S. astronaut who walked on the moon during Apollo 14; Maurice Strong, a Canadian, who is executive director of the United Nations Environment Programme; Olivier Reverdin, former president of the parliament assembly of the Council of Europe in Strasbourg; Arnold Brown, chief of staff of the Salvation Army international headquarters in London; and Roy D. Hickman of Birmingham, Alabama, U.S.A., president of Rotary International.

Up to $17,500 for single-family homes and up to $30,000 for all other residential and nonresidential structures is available under the program underwritten by HUD.

Rates for the insurance range from 25 to 60 cents per $100 of insurance, depending on home values. Contents of a home may be insured up to $5,000 with rates ranging from 35 to 45 cents per $100 of insurance on residential contents and 75 cents per $100 of insurance for nonresidential contents.

Insurance policies will be effective immediately as issued during the first 30 days the insurance becomes available. Insurance purchased after the first 30 days will become effective after a 15-day waiting period.

In order to qualify for federal flood insurance, the city had to submit to HUD land-use control measures. These included a map outlining problem flood areas in the city, land elevation, and designated flood plain land. The measures are designed to guide future development away from flood hazard areas and set construction standards.

Rolling Meadows is the latest community in the area to qualify for the insurance program. Palatine and Arlington Heights are among other Northwest suburbs qualifying for the program.

City combines standing committees

Three new standing committees of the Rolling Meadows City Council were authorized Tuesday. They are the public works, building and zoning committee; the license, police, health and fire committee, and the finance, ordinance and judiciary committee.

The three committees were formed by regrouping the former six standing committees of the council.

Appointed by Mayor Roland Meyer to the public works committee were Ald. John Rock (3rd), chairman; Ald. Dan Weber (4th), Ald. Stephen Eberhard (3rd), Ald. Tom Waldron (2nd), and Ald. Fred Jacobson.

Ald. Thomas Scanlan (1st) was appointed chairman of the police and fire committee. Members are Ald. Kenneth Retzke (5th), Ald. James Huddleston (4th), Ald. Merrill Wuerch (1st), and Ald. William Ahrens (2nd).

The finance committee chairman will be Huddleston, with members Jacobson, Weber, Ahrens, and another alderman to be named later.

The new committee format will be used for a trial period of six months to determine its effectiveness.

Members of the special public information and education committee will be chairman Waldron and members Weber and Eberhard.

City Mgr. James Watson was named the city's Northwest Municipal Conference representative, and Wuerch was appointed to continue serving as Civil Defense director.

First phase of Gould Center work to get under way soon

Construction of the first phase of the $30 million Gould Center in Rolling Meadows will begin soon, Gould spokesman Jim Roberts said yesterday.

Approval of the first phase was granted Tuesday by the city council.

First construction on the site, located between the Northwest Tollway and Golf Road, will include the company's research and development building and should be completed sometime this fall, according to architect Roy Soltsburg.

The second phase, which could be started shortly after completion of the first phase, will include the major portion of the center's development, including a sports complex. The complex will include tennis courts, squash and handball courts, swimming pools and an ice rink.

Several office buildings, including one 10-story structure, will also be built during the second phase. Additional office buildings will be built in the third phase of development depending on tenant demand, Soltsburg said.

Completion of the second phase could occur 18 months after work is begun, he said.

City officials and Gould representatives have negotiated for the proposed center for several years, first in zoning the 40-acre site for the center and later in approving the proposed construction. Gould, a manufacturer of electronic equipment and automotive parts, will house its international headquarters in the center.

The company, currently located in the International Tower Building in Chicago, has a yearly sales volume of nearly $600 million.

'Hike' funds may top $20,000

Collections from the fifth annual "Hike for Your Neighbor" to benefit the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows are expected to top the $20,000 mark.

Pledge collections now total $8,835.85. This represents collections from approximately one-third of the more than 900 participants in the April 8, 20-mile hike through the Northwest suburbs. Pledges have been averaging more than $20 per person.

The first phase of a telephone campaign to remind the marchers to turn in their pledges is expected to be completed Rona Trevor, hike chairman.

by the end of the week, according to "We're hoping that by next week we'll see a spurt in contributions," said Mrs. Trevor. The hike committee hopes to have all pledges in by the end of the school year.

THE HIKEERS received pledges of money from individuals and businesses for every mile they walked in the hike. Most completed the entire hike.

Last year approximately $13,000 was raised from the hike.

The hike has been one of the center's major fund raising activities but has taken on new importance this year because of the dismantling of the Office of Economic Opportunity and the cutoff of all federal funding.

The center originally was granted $64,000 from the federal government for the 1973-74 fiscal year. This represented 48 per cent of the center's operating budget and the center was prepared to raise the remaining 52 per cent locally. The federal funding cutoff means the center has to raise all of its own funds.

During the 1972-73 fiscal year the center served approximately 1,700 families from the six township areas of Palatine, Wheeling, Elk Grove, Schumburg, Hanover, Barrington and parts of Malin.

The center's services include: food stamps, supplemental food nutrition programs, housing assistance, legal aid, job referral, family planning, income tax assistance, interpretation and referrals to several other agencies. The center also provides clothing, emergency food, household items and financial aid to needy families.

3 towns weigh joint purchase of trash bags

Joint purchase of garbage bags for use by residents of single-family homes is being considered by Hoffman Estates, Mount Prospect and Palatine.

The idea is just in its "infancy stages," said Hoffman Estates Village Pres. Virginia Hayter yesterday. The night before, she told a group of homeowners the managers of the three villages "are trying to get together a proposal for the boards."

While details are not yet determined, it appears residents might save through a mutual purchasing system. Browning Ferris Industries of Illinois, Inc., has mentioned a possible per bag price of 6 cents, said Hoffman Estates Village Mgr. George Longmeyer. In Palatine, the only one of the three villages now on a bag system, residents pay $8.75 per 100.

It appears the idea originated with Browning Ferris, formerly Barrington Trucking Co., which now holds scavenger contracts with each of the villages. Mount Prospect's contract expired April 30, but has been extended for 90 days while specifications for new contract are prepared.

HOFFMAN ESTATES' contract does not expire until December, but the village has been studying the bag system of refuse collection for about two years. Longmeyer has been told to come up with a specific plan by the end of June. The board has not yet committed itself to the system, and is waiting for cost and procedure information.

Palatine does not get its bags from

Browning Ferris, which has a 5-year scavenger contract in the village with four years remaining. Bags now are provided to the Chamber of Commerce, which sells them to merchants who in turn sell them to residents. The supplier has said it can sell directly to the merchants, eliminating the chamber's profit of $11.90 per 1,000 bags. The future procedure is still under discussion.

Mount Prospect is preparing specifications in three alternative plans, said Trustee Kenneth Scholten, chairman of the finance committee. One would continue collections using cans and not bags, another would use bags but not have the scavenger supply them, and the third would require the scavenger to distribute bags.

Browning Ferris, recognizing the possibility all three villages would use bags, suggested common specifications could be developed and the villages could purchase the bags jointly, according to Longmeyer. While specifications still are not determined, Longmeyer said he would be happy to use those already in effect in Palatine.

Mount Prospect's specifications are due for finance committee review June 18, and village board authorization for use in seeking bids June 19. Scholten said the village is not anxious to become involved in the distribution and sale of bags itself, and would prefer a system where either the scavenger supplies them, or residents purchase them independently.

'Hike' funds may top $20,000

Collections from the fifth annual "Hike for Your Neighbor" to benefit the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows are expected to top the $20,000 mark.

Pledge collections now total $9,835.83. This represents collections from approximately one-third of the more than 900 participants in the April 8, 20-mile hike through the Northwest suburbs. Pledges have been averaging more than $20 per person.

The first phase of a telephone campaign to remind the marchers to turn in their pledges is expected to be completed by the end of the week, according to Rena Trevor, hike chairman.

"We're hoping that by next week we'll see a spurt in contributions," said Mrs. Trevor. The hike committee hopes to have all pledges in by the end of the school year.

THE HIKEERS received pledges of money from individuals and businesses for every mile they walked in the hike. Most completed the entire hike.

Last year approximately $13,000 was raised from the hike.

The hike has been one of the center's major fund raising activities but has taken on new importance this year because of the dismantling of the Office of Economic Opportunity and the cutoff of all federal funding.

The center originally was granted $84,000 from the federal government for the 1973-74 fiscal year. This represented 48 per cent of the center's operating budget and the center was prepared to raise the remaining 52 per cent locally. The federal funding cutoff means the center has to raise all of its own funds.

During the 1972-73 fiscal year the center served approximately 1,700 families from the six township area of Palatine, Wheeling, Elk Grove, Schaumburg, Hanover, Barrington and parts of Maine.

The center's services include: food stamps, supplemental food nutrition programs, housing assistance, legal aid, job referral, family planning, income tax assistance, interpretation and referrals to several other agencies.

Jaycees complete 5-year park job

The Schaumburg Jaycees' development of an 11-acre park site in Weathersfield has been completed.

Appearing before the village board Tuesday, Barry Goldberg, Jaycee immediate past president, announced completion of the five-year park development program.

At his request, village trustees agreed to terminate a $1 per year lease agreement with the Jaycees for the public use land.

GOLDBERG SAID that in 1968, when the land was leased from the village, it was the Jaycees' intention to develop the limited use site in order to provide additional recreation land in Schaumburg.

NO TEARS FROM THIS young man as he is immunized against communicable diseases in a free clinic in Hoffman Estates sponsored by the Cook County Department of Public Health. The department also sponsors a clinic in Des Plaines. The clinics are open to children aged 1 to 18 from the suburban area. Appointments are not required, but parents must supply their children's immunization histories.

this year's Jaycees carnival, June 21-24 at Town Square Shopping Center.

According to Ed Bachara, who requested the permits, funds from the carnival go back into the chapter in order to provide operating money for the first six months of the year.

He noted that nearly 9,500 Jaycee man-hours have gone into park completion and 625 man-hours from other sources were added.

GOLDBERG SAID the Jaycees chapter recently adopted a park-related environmental project in which trees and shrubs will be obtained and planted at the park.

In related action, the board approved permits for food and liquor licenses for Mayor Robert O. Atcher commended the Jaycees for continued service to the community.

"With an operating budget just short of $50,000 last year, this is the only service agency to spend all of its money in the village," he said.

Government offices closed for holiday

All local government agencies have announced their offices will be closed Monday in observance of Memorial Day.

Village, park district, school and township offices will reopen Tuesday.

No special ceremonies are planned in Schaumburg Township for the national holiday which pays homage to American servicemen who have died in combat.

Clinics offer preventive medicine

by MARILYN HEISER

Preventative medicine is the most economical and soundest approach to health care, physicians and nurses say. And immunization against disease is one of the simplest preventative measures.

The Cook County Department of Public Health offers two immunization clinics for children in the Northwest suburbs, in Hoffman Estates and Des Plaines. According to Mrs. Addie Reninger of the health department, spring and summer are good times for children to receive needed immunizations.

The Hoffman Estates clinic was relocated last fall to the Prince of Peace Lutheran Church, 930 W. Higgins Rd., after initially opening last summer at St. Peter Lutheran School. The clinic is open the fourth Wednesday of every month from 1 to 3 p.m.

In Des Plaines, the clinic holds sessions from 1 to 3 p.m. the first Wednesday of every month at 800 S. Beau Dr.

All children age 1 to 18 are welcome to attend either clinic, irrespective of where they live. No appointment is needed. All parents are asked to bring their child's immunization history to the clinic.

Families having problems obtaining the services of a physician to give immunizations especially are urged to attend one of the clinics, Mrs. Reninger said.

CONCERN RECENTLY was voiced by the Hoffman Estates Board of Health that the clinic there may be discontinued if attendance remains low. But according to Mrs. Reninger, the county has no plans to discontinue the clinic.

Attendance averaged about 200 children each session during last summer, and she said it should rise again this summer. During the fall and winter months, she said, attendance had dropped to only 50 or 60 children each session, but that is to be expected for those months.

Immunizations against diphtheria, whooping cough, tetanus and polio should be given during the first year of life, with boosters approximately a year later, and on entrance to school, Mrs. Reninger said.

Measles and rubella (German measles) immunizations should be given when the child reaches 12 months of age. Illinois law also requires all children must be fully protected from these communicable diseases before entering school, she said.

CHILDREN WITH a history of allergies or neurological disorders are not accepted in the clinics, she added. This is because children with allergies are more apt to get a reaction to the immunization, she said. If this happens, they should be under a physician's care.

The only immunization not available at the clinic is the one for mumps, she added.

Contrary to past reports, vaccinations and shots for passport purposes, foreign travel and visas are not available. "We're particularly interested in reaching preschool children, although all children are welcome," Mrs. Reninger said.

Harper eyes new 2nd-campus site

by KURT BAER

Harper College officials are considering another possible site for a second campus near the northwest corner of Arlington Heights and Dundee roads, the Herald has learned.

The primary site for a second campus, if one is built, remains the northwest corner of Palatine and Schoenbeck roads in Arlington Heights, according to Jack Lucas, director of planning for the college.

But the Dundee-Arlington Heights Road site was given second priority in a study that evaluated six other locations.

A final decision on whether to build a second Harper campus has not been made, and may not be made for another year, Lucas said.

The land at the northwest corner of Arlington Heights and Dundee roads lies behind the Buffalo Grove Mall shopping center in unincorporated Cook County. The site was given a high rating in the site study because of its size, location and availability.

"Palatine-Schoenbeck roads is still our first choice, if a second campus is going to be built. We considered a number — six — other sites and that (Arlington Heights-Dundee) was one that has been considered," Lucas said yesterday.

"If we decide to go for a second site, and if for some reason the Palatine-Schoenbeck property isn't available, which I don't anticipate, we would probably reevaluate the (land) situation," he added.

THE HERALD first disclosed in February that 126 acres at the northwest corner of Palatine and Schoenbeck roads, property known as the Ozmun Farm, was the college's prime target for a second campus site.

The land is now owned by the Mayo Foundation, a not-for-profit corporation affiliated with the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn. It is conservatively valued at $25,000 an acre.

Harper has asked that the site be designated for educational purposes in the Arlington Heights master plan.

Before a decision on whether to acquire and build a second campus is made, there have to be some new enrollment projections for the college, Lucas said.

A decision to build another campus would then have to be approved by a state governing board and ultimately by the voters in a referendum since they would have to pay for the project.

"We're trying to keep our options open for a year until some decisions are made," Lucas said.

If the site is designated for educational purposes, Harper would have one year to develop its plans in the event that some other developer proposes a building plan for the property.

Park signups still under way

The Hoffman Estates Park District is continuing to accept registrations for a variety of summer programs.

Instruction programs in baseball, track, fishing, cheerleading and arts and crafts head the list of activities for the summer schedule.

A girls' sports camp will be offered for the first time this year, said park director Al Binder.

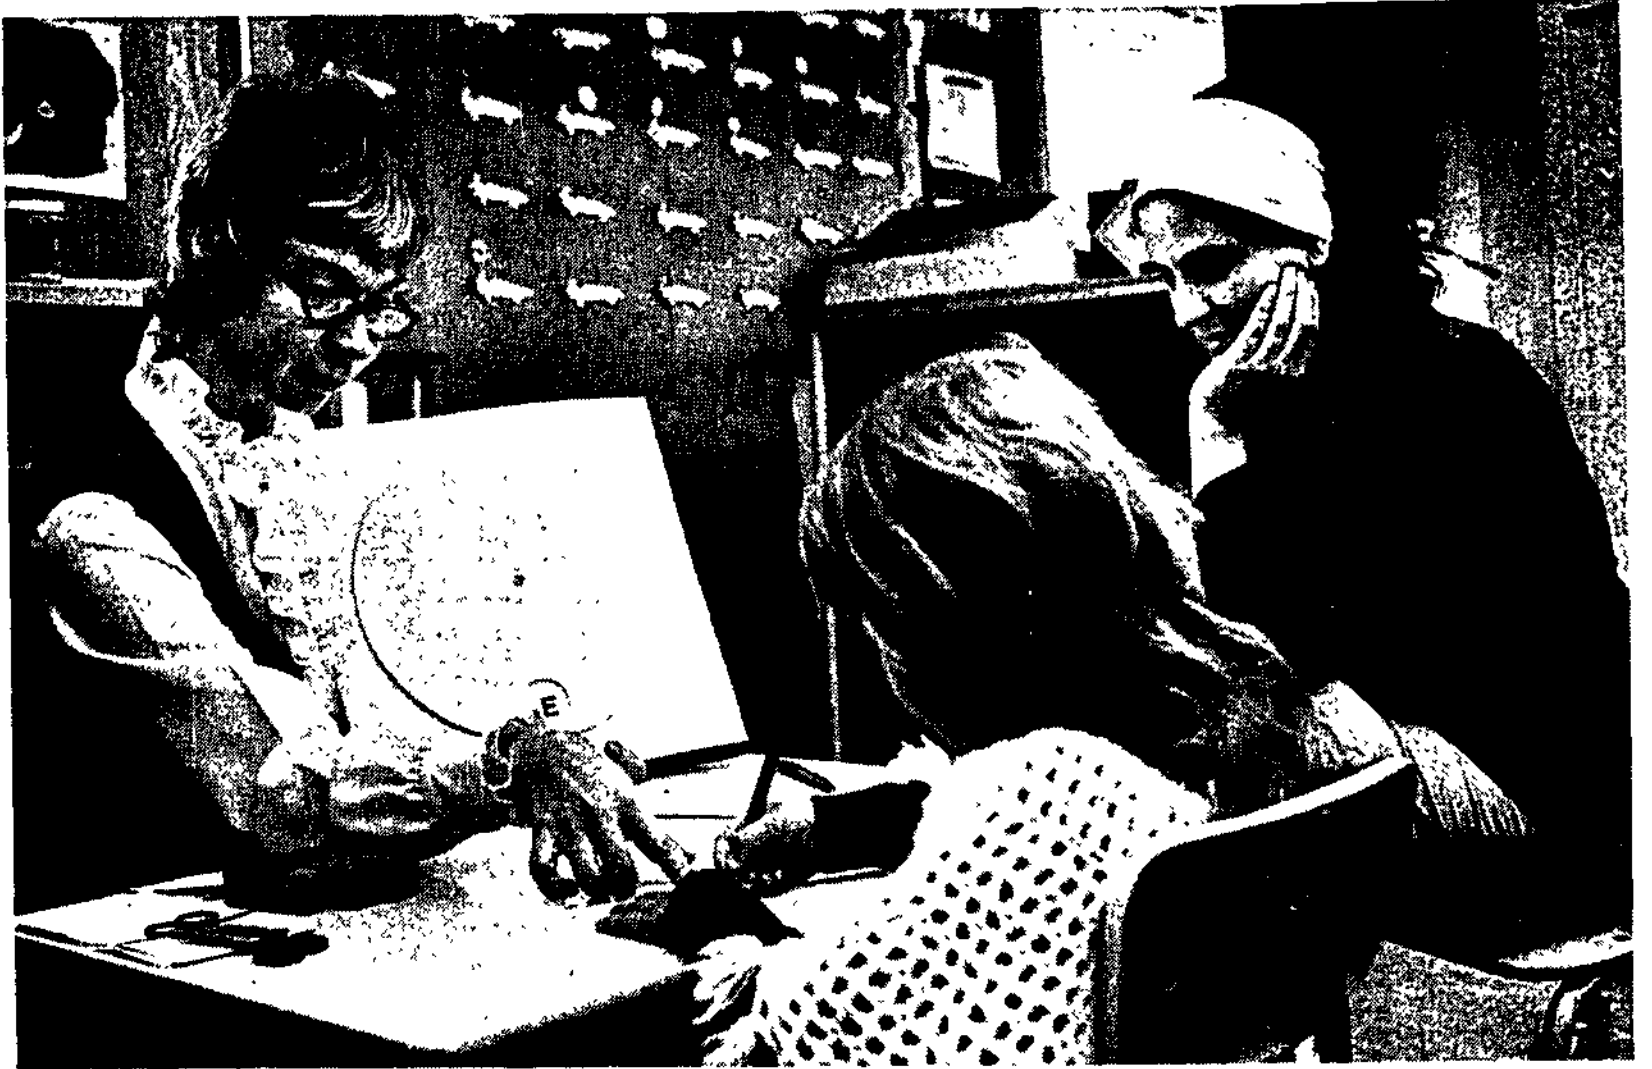

Binder said the camp will be offered to girls in fourth through sixth grades and will meet at Vogelei Park, 650 W. Higgins Rd., Hoffman Estates.

He added the four sessions each lasting two weeks will concentrate on developing skills in softball, soccer, volleyball and several other sports. Individual and team playing will be emphasized, Binder said.

The arts and crafts programs and fishing instruction are open to boys and girls, Binder said.

The instructional baseball school is open to boys in grades two through four while the track club is open to boys from seventh grade up to adults.

More information about these activities and others planned for the summer program may be obtained by calling 885-7500.

SCHOOL DIST. 54 is screening three and four-year-olds with unique needs to determine if they are eligible for a fall Early Childhood Education Program for preschool children with learning problems. Connie Desmond, right, watches as her daughter, Gina, 4, and Barbara Smith, a member of the screening staff, work on a test. Screening registrations may be made by calling 885-4200 until June 5.

Environment unit can't solicit here

Citizens for a Better Environment (CBE) an antipollution group operating in New York and Chicago, will not be permitted to solicit funds in Schaumburg.

The village trustees refused to grant a soliciting permit for CBE this week based on financial information revealed in an audit of the organization.

The audit indicated that $224,318 in receipts were reported by CBE Chicago offices with expenditures of only $31,842.

Local officials took issue with the fact that nearly 50 per cent of funds obtained last year went for CBE administrative costs, including paid canvassers.

According to Mark Anderson of CBE's Elgin office, his organization has done extensive research for the Environmental Protection Agency, has identified more than 184 polluters and also has a number of court cases pending against other environmental offenders.

CBE goals, as identified by Anderson, include seeking out local polluters as well as locating environmental groups willing to deal with offenders in their area but lacking resources for legal action.

In other business, village officials indicated no objection to eventual granting of a liquor license to Bodega, Inc., a restaurant scheduled to open next year at Woodfield Mall.

The restaurant is a freestanding structure planned for construction on Golf Road at a Woodfield access road. It is being designed to accommodate 242 diners and an additional 75 to 80 patrons in an adjacent lounge area.

Headquartered in Miami, Bodega, Inc., has several facilities in Florida and Michigan, according to a corporate spokesman.

Completion of the building is expected within eight to 10 months. The firm will be asked to formally apply for a license then.

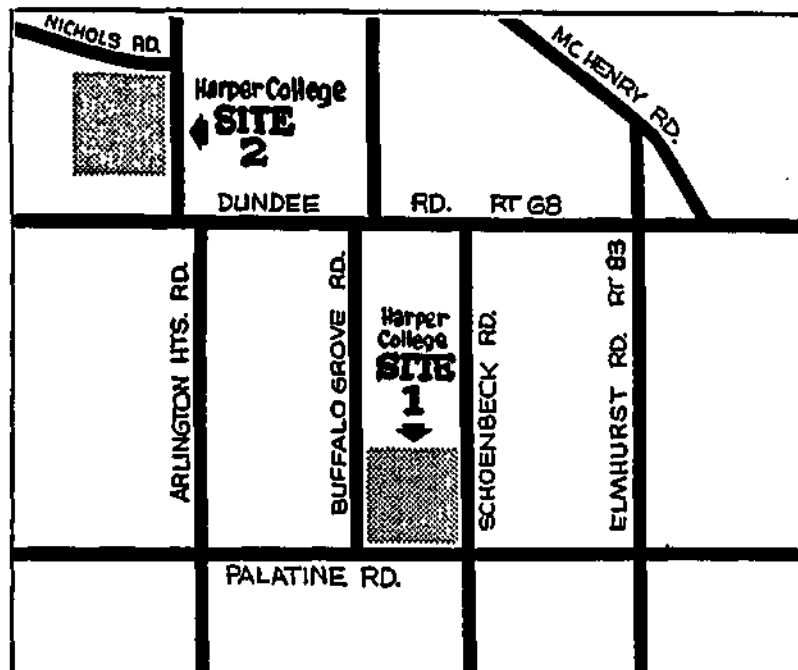

On recommendation of Village Pres. Robert O. Atcher, board members ratified the appointment of Mary Nagy as the fifth member of the board of health. Mrs. Nagy, a registered nurse, currently serves as chairman of the Schaumburg American Red Cross blood replacement plan.

Russell W. Parker was reappointed chairman of the zoning board of appeals. Also reappointed to that group were Martin J. Coniglio, Chester Mayner, Harold Cafferata and Shirley Slater. New zoning board member is Edward Olson.

The newly organized intergovernment coordinating committee will consist of Douglas McEmore, Roy Zemack, Frank Domenico, Judy Rounds and Jim D'Ambrosio.

Shuttle bus planned to July 4th events

Parking may be less of a problem at the Hoffman Estates Fourth of July festivities this year than in the past, as a result of a plan to bus residents from the most distant sections of the village.

Sam Goranson, a member of the Fourth of July committee, is approaching homeowners associations and the managers of apartment complexes, hoping to interest them in paying for bus rental. Since the festivities are partially financed by a village contribution, which comes from tax revenue, the committee cannot provide a bus to serve only part of the village, said Goranson.

If the residents wish the bus service, they will have to pay for it, he explained to the Winston Knolls Homeowners Association this week.

Goranson estimated the cost for service the entire day at a maximum of 120. The charge to the homeowners association could be less, if other locations agree to join the program. But a reduction would depend on whether a second bus is required. Goranson said he hoped to have three buses serving at least three areas, with the cost for each area between $100 and $120. Trips would be made roughly every 20 minutes with three buses, and roughly every 40 minutes with only one, he estimated.

The buses would travel from the residential areas to Chino Park on Illinois Boulevard until 6 p.m., and then would go to Conant High School, 700 E. Cougar Trail, for the evening activities. They would provide transportation to and from the day and evening events.

The homeowners association will take a written vote of its members and inform Goranson if they intend to participate.

Traffic has been a problem at the July Fourth celebration in the past, said Goranson. He hopes the buses will cut down on the number of private cars at the events, and ease traffic at peak hours. Police Chief John O'Connell has agreed to arrange an express route for the buses, if the program is used, said Goranson.

Hoffman Estates man arrested in bad-check case

A Hoffman Estates man was arrested Tuesday by village police and Federal Bureau of Investigation agents on charges of unlawful flight to avoid prosecution.

The FBI said Stanley W. Layne, 51, of 160 W. Lafayette, Hoffman Estates, is wanted by authorities in Berrien County, Mich., on charges of passing bogus checks.

An FBI agent said Layne has been sought since March by Michigan police. The federal warrant for Layne's arrest was obtained after officials suspected he left Michigan, he said.

The FBI would not supply any information as to the details of the worthless checks charge.

Layne is scheduled to appear before a U.S. magistrate today for a bond hearing. The FBI said Michigan officials will probably also begin extradition proceedings against him this week.

Church donation aids village participation in blood plan

Schaumburg's effort to become part of the Red Cross Blood Assurance program has been bolstered through donations from St. Marcelline's Catholic Church.

The parish's recent blood drawing program resulted in contributions of more than 290 units of blood.

Because more than 90 per cent of the donors are residents of Schaumburg, the St. Marcelline's donation also will be counted toward the village quota for the program.

Mrs. Mary Nagy said 20 per cent of the members of a group must donate blood before the group can be part of the assurance program.

The village plans to hold its first drawing July 15 at the Great Hall, 231 S. Civic Dr., Schaumburg.

Schaumburg Mayor Robert O. Atcher has indicated if he gets a go ahead from his doctor, he will be the first in line for the program, Mrs. Nagy said.

Former village trustee Peter Justen, honorary chairman of the blood program, will also be one of the first donors, she said.

More information about the program can be obtained by calling 529-1245. Persons who may be in need of blood may contact the village health department at 894-8268 for assistance.

Repaving won't affect trees

There is no danger to trees or a new landscape design around Schaumburg Township Public library from a street repaving program, said Schaumburg Village Engineer Joe Zgonina.

Zgonina said the resurfacing of Library Lane between Roselle Road and Pleasant Street will not cause any change in the library landscape design, and will not damage trees already planted along the roadway. The library is at the corner of Library Lane and Pleasant Street.

Earlier this month library board members said they feared sidewalks to be installed along with the street repaving would cut through the tree banks recently planted both north and south of Library Lane. They also were concerned that more than $19,000 worth of landscape design and excavation work would have to be adjusted to suit the new street and sidewalk plans.

Those fears "are unfounded," said Zgonina. "We do not plan to destroy tree banks adjacent to the lane and replace them with sidewalks," he added.

Instead, the new sidewalk will curve as it meets the library property, meeting a walk already installed adjacent to the library building. Zgonina has asked the library to delay sodding the tree banks until after the project is completed, to avoid damaging the sod.

The $43,000 repaving project is to start in June and be completed in July, said Zgonina. The work is being done with no assessment for financing to the library.

Harper weighs Arlington-Dundee 2nd-campus site

Harper has asked that the site be designated for educational purposes in the Arlington Heights master plan.

Before a decision on whether to acquire and build a second campus is made, there have to be some new enrollment projections for the college, Lucas said.

A decision to build another campus would then have to be approved by a state governing board and ultimately by the voters in a referendum since they would have to pay for the project.

"We're trying to keep our options open for a year until some decisions are made," Lucas said.

If the site is designated for educational purposes, Harper would have one year to develop its plans in the event that some other developer proposes a building plan for the property.

Wedgewood area assessment OKd

The Mount Prospect Board of Local Improvements this week approved a special assessment to install a water and sanitary sewer system in the Wedgewood Terrace subdivision.

The $375,750 project, called Special Assessment '72, will be referred to the village board at its June 5 meeting. It is expected the project then will be placed in the public works committee for study.

It was revealed for the first time Tuesday that the village will contribute $19,000 as the public benefit portion of the project. The public benefit portion will include some oversizing of pipes and the system's control valves.

About 65 residents of the subdivision, which is northwest of the Rand-Elmhurst roads intersection, attended Tuesday's hearing. Only two of the 10 persons who addressed the commission had objections.

One man said he felt the cost estimate was too high. Another said he felt the public benefit portion was too low. In all, some 90 property owners will be involved in the assessment.

Planning for the project was done by Alstot and March engineering firm of Arlington Heights. The subdivision, which is mostly single-family homes, is now served by private wells and septic tanks. Water will come primarily from the new well at the northeast corner of the Old Orchard Country Club.

Hoffman Estates, Mount Prospect, Palatine

3 towns weigh trash bag purchase

Joint purchase of garbage bags for use by residents of single-family homes is being considered by Hoffman Estates, Mount Prospect and Palatine.

The idea is just in its "infancy stages," said Hoffman Estates Village Pres. Virginia Hayter yesterday. The night before, she told a group of homeowners the managers of the three villages "are trying to get together a proposal for the boards."

While details are not yet determined, it appears residents might save through a mutual purchasing system. Browning Ferris Industries of Illinois, Inc., has mentioned a possible per bag price of 6 cents, said Hoffman Estates Village Mgr. George Longmeyer. In Palatine, the only one of the three villages now on a bag system, residents pay $8.75 per 100.

It appears the idea originated with Browning Ferris, formerly Barrington Trucking Co., which now holds scavenger contracts with each of the villages. Mount Prospect's contract expired April 30, but has been extended for 90 days while specifications for new contract are prepared.

HOFFMAN ESTATES' contract does not expire until December, but the village has been studying the bag system of refuse collection for about two years. Longmeyer has been told to come up with a specific plan by the end of June. The board has not yet committed itself to the system, and is waiting for cost and procedure information.

Palatine does not get its bags from

Browning Ferris, which has a 5-year scavenger contract in the village with four years remaining. Bags now are provided to the Chamber of Commerce, which sells them to merchants who in turn sell them to residents. The supplier has said it can sell directly to the merchants, eliminating the chamber's profit of $11.90 per 1,000 bags. The future procedure is still under discussion.

Mount Prospect is preparing specifications in three alternative plans, said Trustee Kenneth Scholten, chairman of the finance committee. One would continue collections using cans and not bags, another would use bags but not have the scavenger supply them, and the third would require the scavenger to distribute bags.

Browning Ferris, recognizing the possibility all three villages would use bags, suggested common specifications could be developed and the villages could purchase the bags jointly, according to Longmeyer. While specifications still are not determined, Longmeyer said he would be happy to use those already in effect in Palatine.

Mount Prospect's specifications are due for finance committee review June 18, and village board authorization for use in seeking bids June 19. Scholten said the village is not anxious to become involved in the distribution and sale of bags itself, and would prefer a system where either the scavenger supplies them or residents purchase them independently.

Policemen slated to get new jobs in duty shuffle by Chief Giddens

Mount Prospect Police Chief Bert Giddens has shuffled the duties of several policemen to improve services to the village. The changes take effect Sunday.

Police Lieutenants John M. Homola, Fred Hedlund and John Savago have been relieved of their duties as shift commanders and have been given special administrative assignments. Police Sergeants Edward D. Nastek, Patrick Hallihan and William E. Broderick have been named as shift commanders to replace them. A shift commander is responsible for the actions of all policemen who work on an eight-hour shift.

The changes were announced yesterday by Giddens, who is responsible for the moves. Savage, he said, will be given overall responsibility for the three daily work shifts and the daytime power shift (designed to cover the move active crime and accident periods).

Hedlund will be assigned as review officer for the records department and will be used as a "spot man" for accident investigations, Giddens said. "He will work on setting up better records procedures."

HOMOLA WILL BEGIN a study of village animal control and procedures on taxicabs. Giddens said new legislation would probably be drawn up by Homola that would require cabs to be inspected twice a year. There is no police inspection of cabs now in the village.

As for animal control, part of Homola's task will be to see if a full-time dog control warden (dog catcher) is needed in the village. "We get many complaints about animals that run at large," Giddens said.

"All of these moves," Giddens explained, "are made with the hope of providing a more improved service to the community. In the past, job responsibilities, as such, have been undefined."

Police Sgt. Gerald A. Glascock will become the relief shift commander and Patrolman Robert Gibson will be assigned to the detective division, in other changes announced by Giddens.

Gibson will be replacing Hallihan as a detective. Giddens hopes Gibson will be the first of several men who will alternate as a detective. Each man will serve in the investigative section for six months to a year. Sgt. Ralph Doney will continue to head the detective division and the youth division.

SGT. JOSEPH Bopp, former head of the detective division, has been attending Northwestern University's Traffic Institute for the past eight months. When he is graduated June 24, he will be "doing some evaluations in the administrative section," Giddens said. Part of this would be a reevaluation of the current beat setup for patrolmen. He will also do staff duties.

Other changes in the police department are structural. Two police interview rooms have been taken out to make space for the records section, which will be moved down from the second floor by next week.

The former police locker room is being turned into new headquarters for the detective and youth divisions. It will have space for juvenile detention, a state requirement. The police locker room was moved several weeks ago to a former two-car garage northwest of the police station.

School district will give $457 to Kirk Center

Mount Prospect Dist. 57 will contribute $457 toward completion of the Kirk Center, a school in Palatine for mentally handicapped children.

Dist. 57 is one of 10 school districts in the Northwest Educational Cooperative (NEC) that support the school.

According to Dist. 57 board member Edith Freund, NEC still needs about $12,000 to complete construction of the school building.

When the building project for the center was first inaugurated, Dist. 57, along with the other districts, levied three special education taxes based on the total assessed valuation of the district. However, according to Asst. Supt. J.C. Busenhart, the original estimate for the cost of the construction was inaccurate. Failure to collect all the anticipated tax money also contributed to the shortage, Busenhart said.

The additional donation requested by NEC was based on a ratio of what Dist. 57 paid in relation to the other districts in the three tax levies, Busenhart said.

According to Mrs. Freund, NEC will be asking all the districts for an additional contribution later to pay for landscaping, an expansion of parking and the construction of a bus canopy at the center.

Major personnel change expected at school parley

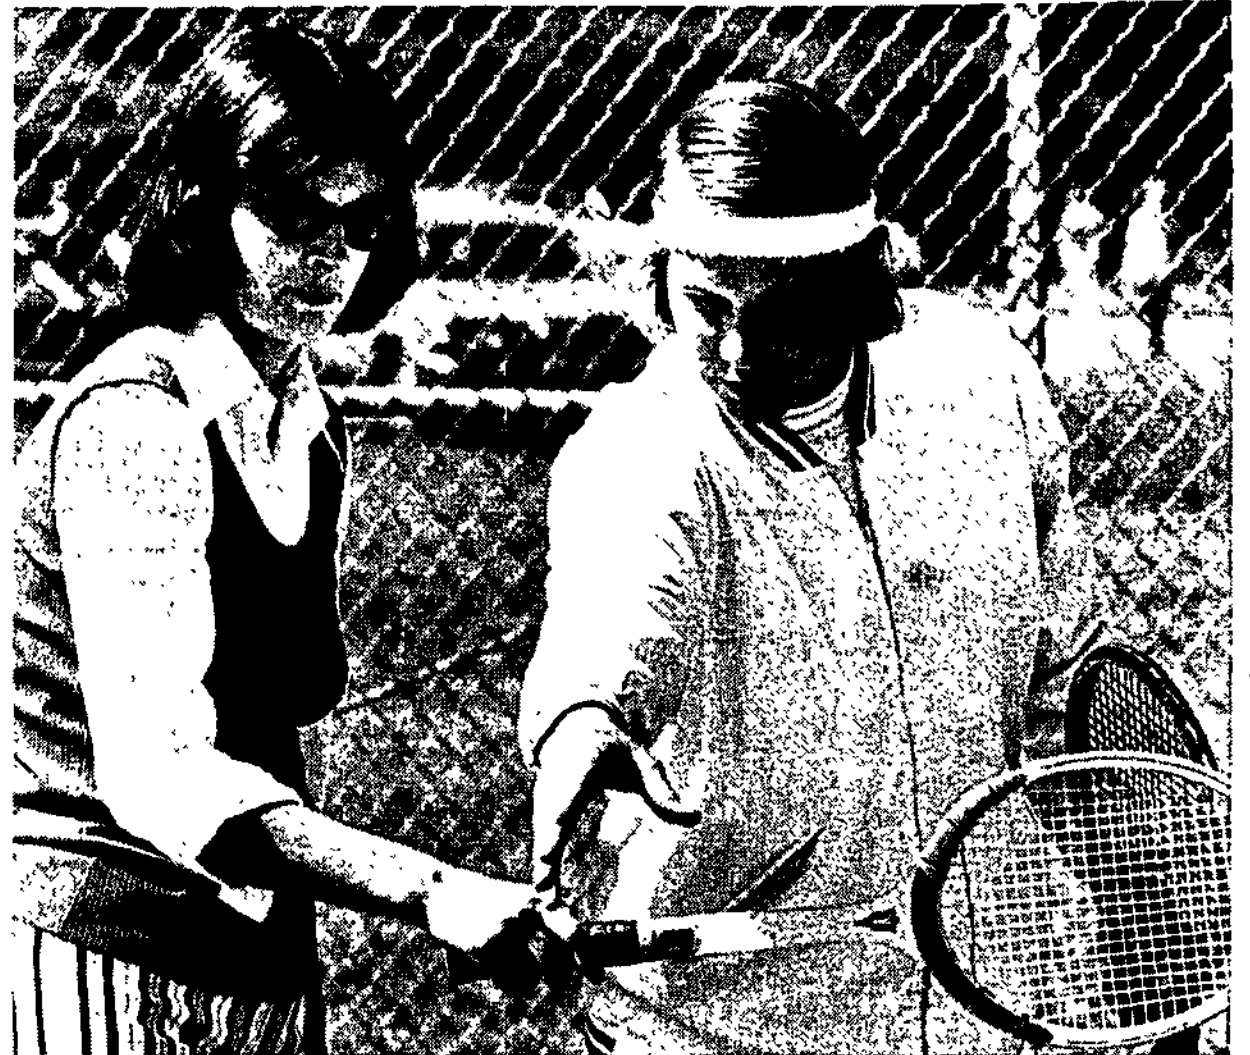

The River Trails Dist. 26 school board is expected to make a major announcement regarding personnel at its meeting May 29.

The meeting, at 7:30 p.m. at the River Trails Junior High School, has been scheduled to consider administrative and principals' salaries. However, if any changes are to be made in personnel for next year, this will probably be the time for the board to consider it.

When asked if such an announcement would be made, Board Pres. Lloyd Demel said, "I suspect so." Demel said he couldn't reveal the nature of the announcement, however.

At its meeting Tuesday, the board approved salary increases ranging from 3.5 to 6.5 per cent for noncertified personnel.

According to Asst. Supt. James Retzlaff, custodial salaries have been upgraded overall with a 6.5 per cent increase over last year. Administrative secretaries received increases of from five to six per cent. District bus drivers were given a raise of 3.5 per cent over last year.

New school chief finds big challenge here

by MARY HOULIHAN

Earl Sutter, 42, recently named superintendent of Mount Prospect Dist. 57, is young to be a superintendent, but in terms of experience, he can qualify with the best of them.

The new superintendent, originally from Bloomington, has the educational background. He graduated with a bachelor's degree from Goshen (Ind.) College and holds a master's and a doctorate degree in education from Illinois State University at Normal.

He also has knowledge of the practical side of education. Superintendent of Elmhurst Elementary Dist. 3 for four years, he has also served as an elementary and junior high school teacher. He was appointed superintendent in Dist. 3 after 10 years as principal of a junior high school in Bloomington.

CHOSEN FROM A group of 85 candidates for the Dist. 57 position, Sutter said he decided to apply for the superintendent's post because he was looking for a greater challenge and more responsibility. Dist. 57 has two more elementary schools than Dist. 3, and about 1,500 more students.

He said he is reluctant to comment on the programs going on now in Dist. 57. "I think that I would like to understand more of their programs before I would evaluate it," he said.

While at Dist. 3, Sutter initiated several new programs. He established learning centers in each of the schools and also set up an exploratory program in the junior high schools. "It was used to strengthen the academic program and to develop basic skills," he explained. The program involved placing a teacher as a resource person in each of the learning center, not to teach a class, but to answer questions or direct students.

Though Dist. 3 does not do as much multi-age grouping as Dist. 57, last year Sutter did start a multi-age type class with the fourth and fifth graders at one of his schools. He said the decision to place children in multi-age classes "depends upon your circumstances and your personnel." In the case of the one multi-age class in his district, "we felt that there was a large group of children who had diverse abilities. We felt we would be better able to give them individual instruction with this class," Sutter explained.

ONE OF SUTTER'S major priorities when he assumes his new post, he said, will be the selection and development of personnel.

Sutter is known as an exponent of team building in administration. "One of my concerns is that we have a good working relationship in order for the staff to explore new ideas, evaluate current programs and determine corporately what direction the school district ought to be going," he said.

Besides the selection of personnel, Sutter said he thinks it is important that the superintendent develop "overall leadership in the instructional program" of the district. This includes "working with subordinates to understand and project the financial needs of the district and relating the community through the board of education," he said.

Sutter's concept of public relations in a district is a simple one. "I do think a satisfied child is good public relations," he said. "Beyond that I think the district should strive to maintain open communications with the staff and with the community. But in the final analysis, it's more important that credibility be established by what we do instead of what we say."

FINANCES ARE going to be a major problem in Dist. 57 in the coming years.

However, Sutter said he thinks that it would be presumptuous of him to offer any opinions on school finances until he knows a little more about them. "I am concerned that the resources of the district are used to the best advantage, which means careful analysis of the budget and appropriations," he said.

Sutter sees his role as superintendent as one of administering rather than directing board policy. "I may consult with the board in terms of the need for new policies, but the board is the policy maker. I feel pretty strongly about this, that the board is representing the community," he said.

A better break for day worker

'Just Jobs' more than that

by CAROL RHYNE

Early every work day morning, laborers in the Uptown Chicago area gather at store-front offices to look at lists of job openings for the day.

A day's pay for a day's work is all many of these workers can count on, and the pay usually seems small after the temporary help contractors take their share.

However, one of these day labor agencies serving the Northwest suburbs is different. At the Just Jobs office at 4429 N. Broadway, the workers can be sure of more money in their pockets at the end of the day because Just Jobs is a nonprofit organization set up for the workers.

Ron Fritz, assistant manager, said Just Jobs has been in operation since 1971, and this past year it spread its clientele to the Northwest suburbs. He said several companies in Elk Grove Village, Des Plaines and Wheeling are using Just Job workers on their assembly lines, in the warehouses and for some light clerical work.

Just Jobs buses workers from the city to the suburban plants, and it averages about 60 jobs a day at various locations, Fritz said.

THE ORGANIZATION has received some funds from the federal Model Cities program and from the local Campaign for Human Development.

"Our goal is to raise wages of temporary laborers and assist them in switching from temporary to permanent employment," Fritz said.

Most companies pay a temporary employment contractor a flat fee, and Fritz says Just Jobs takes out just enough money to cover overhead and workmen's compensation. The rest goes to the laborers. He said the average pay for most day laborers is $1.60 to $1.70 an hour, while Just Jobs workers get about $2.10 an hour.

FRITZ ADDED that many other temporary help firms also charge the workers for transportation to their jobs.

"We've noticed since we've been in business that wages paid by agencies in our area have gone up," Fritz said. "We'd like to think it's because they (other firms) have been forced to compete with us."

"Because we pay higher wages, we also attract and keep better workers," he added. Fritz said many workers try the Just Jobs office first before going to other firms for jobs.

JUST JOBS is sometimes used for tryouts for a permanent work force, Fritz said. "We encourage plants to hire away our workers for permanent positions that open up."

Fritz said he thinks Just Jobs has proven it has good work crews because persons who have shown they won't work, or who drink on the job are not sent out. "The person we're trying to serve is the day laborer. But in order to help the worker, you have to provide a good service to the businessman," he said.

Most of the day laborers working for Just Jobs are in their 30s and about every ethnic background is represented, Fritz said. He said Chicago is a "port of entry" for many migrating families, and the first thing these people need is jobs.

Fritz said many of the laborers have either no work history in Chicago or poor history, and they can't find permanent employment.

"Low wages and job insecurity plague the day laborer, but these people can't find anything else," Fritz said. "But if we can provide a good service to business, we can, in turn, help the workers — and maybe find them permanent jobs."

JUST JOBS, a nonprofit temporary help agency, supplies day laborers for several companies in the Northwest suburbs. Here, workers at Bestline Products Inc. in Elk Grove Village, load cartons on a production line.

Youth employment agency finding jobs for 17.5 pct.

The Elk Grove Township Youth Employment Agency has a 17.5 per cent success rate in its first month of trying to find jobs for youths.

According to township figures, 113 young persons have applied for work and 21 have been placed in jobs.

Nita Stamm, secretary for the township committee on youth, said the employment agency needs more summer job offers from businesses and industries. A total of 83 companies have offered work, but most of these are year-long job offers and the majority of young persons can only work in the summer.

Employers with a summer job can contact the township at 437-0300. The employment agency will then attempt to find a young person to fill the job. Job offers must be from a business or industry.

The township acts only as a referral agency and does not hire any young persons. Any township youth, age 16-21, can register at the town office, 2400 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights, for employment.

There is no charge by the township for the job-finding service.

School roof repairs may be started soon

Mount Prospect Dist. 57 plans to make repairs soon on the roofs at Fairview and Lincoln Junior High Schools.

According to Asst. Supt. J. C. Busenhart, the district will make repairs around the edge of the two-story wing at Lincoln School. Repairs will also be made on the roof of the northwest wing of Fairview. Busenhart estimated the repairs will cost the district about $16,000.

St. Alphonsus school gets new principal

Barbara Gotter, a junior high school principal from Ohio, has been hired as principal of St. Alphonsus Catholic School in Prospect Heights for the 1973-74 school year.

Miss Gotter was chosen by the school board from four candidates. She is a graduate of the University of Dayton and received her master's degree in educational administration at Miami University in Oxford, Ohio. She was an elementary and junior high school teacher for 12 years and served as an elementary and junior high school principal for 8 years.

Miss Gotter replaces Sister Camilla, who is being transferred to another post.

Senior citizen building height objections seen

Objections to the height of a proposed Mount Prospect senior citizen building are expected at tonight's Zoning Board of Appeals hearing.

A 13-story senior housing building is proposed for the Central School site by Kenroy Inc. of Skokie. Kenroy is acting as developer for the land trust owners of the downtown Main Street-Central Road property. The building would have 400 apartments.

The 8 p.m. hearing will consider requests that the property be rezoned and that variations in density, height, parking and setback requirements be granted. The hearing will be in the Municipal Building, 112 E. Northwest Hwy.

The appeals board will hear two other cases. Winkelman Service Station 310 W. Northwest Hwy., is seeking proper gas station zoning so the station can be remodeled. Currently, the station exists in an old zoning category.

The second case has Roger Spike requesting setback variations for his property at 1807 Mura Lane.

Man, 24, guilty of resisting arrest

A 24-year-old Schaumburg man was found guilty last week in the Mount Prospect branch of Cook County Circuit Court of resisting arrest.

Leo Cushing, 1123 Country Club Ln., was fined $80 plus $10 court costs. Additional charges of criminal damage to property and assault were dropped.

The complainant on the latter two charges was Cushing's stepfather, Wayne Poppish. He withdrew his complaints prior to the Friday hearing.

All three charges stemmed from a Feb. 26 incident at Poppish's home, 22 S. Audrey Ln. Cushing allegedly had thrown several pieces of furniture and threatened Poppish with a kitchen knife.

Police seek youth who knocked girl down

Mount Prospect police yesterday continued to search for a youth who allegedly assaulted a 15-year-old girl Tuesday.

Police said the boy, aged about 10, stopped the Mount Prospect girl on Highland Street, molested her, knocked her down and ran off. He was described as skinny, about six feet tall, with a light complexion, and short dark hair. Police said he was wearing a rust-colored shirt, brown pants, a dark belt and dark shoes.

The incident took place about 1 p.m. while the victim was walking with a girlfriend along the north side of Highland toward Fairview Avenue. The assailant did not speak at all, the girls told police. The girl was knocked down when she tried to back away from the attacker.

Second priority in 7-location evaluation

Arlington-Dundee site under study for second Harper College campus

by KURT BAER

Harper College officials are considering another possible site for a second campus near the northwest corner of Arlington Heights and Dundee roads, the Herald has learned.

The primary site for a second campus, if one is built, remains the northwest corner of Palatine and Schoenbeck roads in Arlington Heights, according to Jack Lucas, director of planning for the college.

But the Dundee-Arlington Heights Road site was given second priority in a study that evaluated six other locations.

A final decision on whether to build a second Harper campus has not been made, and may not be made for another year, Lucas said.

The land at the northwest corner of Arlington Heights and Dundee roads lies behind the Buffalo Grove Mall shopping center in unincorporated Cook County. The site was given a high rating in the site study because of its size, location and availability.

"Palatine-Schoenbeck roads is still our first choice. If a second campus is going to be built, we considered a number — six — other sites and that (Arlington Heights-Dundee) was one that has been considered," Lucas said yesterday.

"If we decide to go for a second site, and if for some reason the Palatine-Schoenbeck property isn't available, which I don't anticipate, we would probably reevaluate the (land) situation," he added.

THE HERALD first disclosed in February that 128 acres at the northwest corner of Palatine and Schoenbeck roads, property known as the Ozmun Farm, was the college's prime target for a second campus site.

The land is now owned by the Mayo Foundation, a not-for-profit corporation affiliated with the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn. It is conservatively valued at $25,000 an acre.

Harper has asked that the site be designated for educational purposes in the Arlington Heights master plan.

Before a decision on whether to acquire and build a second campus is made, there have to be some new enrollment projections for the college, Lucas said.

A decision to build another campus would then have to be approved by a state governing board and ultimately by the voters in a referendum since they would have to pay for the project.

"We're trying to keep our options open for a year until some decisions are made," Lucas said.

If the site is designated for educational purposes, Harper would have one year to develop its plans in the event that some other developer proposes a building plan for the property.

Today is Poppy Day.

Bike route advocates agree to proposal

Representatives of the Arlington Heights Bicycle Association and the Arlington Heights Police Department have agreed on a bike route through the central village.

Bikers and police have differed in the past over proposed routes and matters of safety and direction.

The village board's public health and safety committee met with both sides Tuesday night in the interest of finding a street network that would be mutually acceptable.

At the end of the bike meeting, police and village engineering department officials agreed on the proposed new route.

The concept and details of a designated bike route still must be approved by the committee and then the village board.

The proposed route would begin near the intersection of Miner Street and Evanston Avenue at the eastern edge of the village.

It would then proceed west on Miner to the Arlington Heights train depot, and branch north at Dryden Place. It would run north on Dryden to Oakton Street and further north to Thomas Avenue.

At Oakton it would turn west to Kennicott Boulevard. At Thomas, it would run west to Vall Avenue, turn north to Maude Avenue and then continue west to Kennicott.

At Kennicott, the route would continue north, crossing Palatine Road, to Alleghany Drive, just south of Rand Road.

Alleghany west to Verda Drive where the route turns south to Shenandoah Court back to Kennicott. The route follows Kennicott south to Oakton, then west to Walnut Avenue, which leads south to Euclid Avenue.

When the Ridge-Walnut grade crossing is installed, the route would continue south across the railroad tracks, reconnecting with Miner.

Police Sgt. Jack Weber characterized the proposed route as "an accommodation" between earlier bike club proposals and police suggestions.

At one time, the bicycle association and the Arlington Heights Park District proposed a route that connected most of the parks and schools in the village.

Police, in the past, have suggested a simple grid of north-south, east-west streets as a route.

"I am not anti-bike route. In fact if it's going to increase safety, I'm all in favor of it," Weber said.

"We need some kind of route in town," said Mary Ellen Spirek, a member of the bicycle association.

Weber said he thought a decision first had to be made whether it was desirable to have streets designated bike route, or whether money should be put into developing other bike trails.

He cited the Commonwealth Edison Co. right-of-way, that cuts through the village, as an example of a bicycle trail that would not compete with automobile traffic.

"The right-of-way would be great. You could ride all the way from Barrington to Chicago along it," Mrs. Spirek said, adding that she still believes there should be a designated bike route in the village.

Weber says he is not sure posting "Bike Route" signs on some streets will necessarily make bike riding safer.

"Does this mean that there won't be bikes on any other streets? Or that bike riders and automobile traffic will be more careful on these streets? I'm not sure," he said.

The public health and safety committee is expected to pass on the proposed route in about two weeks.

Widening, repaving planned

Dundee Road repairs to start soon

by JOE FRANZ

Widening and paving of Dundee Road to four lanes between Elmhurst Road and Rte. 53 is expected to begin in about two weeks, a spokesman for the Illinois Division of Highways said yesterday.

Oscar Mohsin, an area programmer, said about 80 per cent of the storm sewers have been installed which will clear the way for the actual road construction. Mohsin said the majority of storm sewers must be installed before the widening process begins.

Mohsin said the $2.5 million project is scheduled to be completed by June or July of next year. Construction is slightly behind schedule, Mohsin said weather will be a major factor in determining if the project is completed on time.

Plans for the project also call for the realignment of Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights roads south of Dundee Road. Both roads will be rerouted to meet the already existing extensions to them on the north side of Dundee Road.

The realignment of the two roads should eliminate two bottlenecks which hamper through traffic in the area. Officials said this will be the last phase of the project.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS Road will also be widened to four lanes from University Drive north to Dundee Road. There are, however, no plans now to widen the road from University Drive south to Rand Road.

State officials said Dundee Road will remain open at a reduced speed limit when the widening begins. The current speed limit of 50 m.p.h. will be reduced to 35 m.p.h. Buffalo Grove Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said the village has suggested the speed limit on Dundee Road be raised to 45 m.p.h. once construction is finished.

School Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill said construction is creating no safety hazard for children walking to London Junior High School because adequate sidewalks have been provided.

Gill said the overpass near the school, which cost $30,000, was constructed with the widening of Dundee Road in mind, and despite rumors will not be taken down.

THE NEW STORM sewers will divert water from the Dundee Road area to a five-acre retention lake which the village plans to construct in the Arlington Golf Course at Buffalo Grove and Dundee roads. The lake will help alleviate flooding in the White Pine ditch and Buffalo Creek areas.

The lake, which will have a capacity for 16 million gallons, will cost $330,000. It will be financed with $120,000 from the Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD), $130,000 from the Illinois Division of Waterways and $80,000 from village funds. Construction of the lake is scheduled to begin in October.

Buffalo Grove originally refused to approve the construction plans on Dundee Road widening because the state planned to channel the runoff from the road into the White Pine ditch. The village agreed to the state's plan after the state agreed to install an oversize drainage pipe which will divert water to the retention lake.

Don't fence in your garbage, disposal firm official says

Arlington Heights residents are being advised by Laseko Disposal Co. not to fence in their garbage cans.

Homeowners with fenced-in yards found notices this week stating that garbage would not be collected in the future because the cans inside fences were not easily accessible.

Henry Laseko said this action was not a new policy, but rather a preventive measure to protect garbage men from dogs.

"We assume that a fence and gate are up for a reason. Usually it is there to keep something in or something out. And a lot of the time the fence is there to keep a dog in the yard," he said.

"You can hit the answer to this right on the head if you leave the gate open," Frank Charlton, village health director, agreed.

"The village staunchly supports the safety of the garbage collectors. An open gate is an indicator that the cans are readily accessible."

Charlton said the notices were distributed at this time because dogs are now outside after spending the winter in the house.

"I personally know of one case where the collector was severely bitten last year. A big dog, like a shepherd, can still get loose even if he is staked down. He could break the post or the chain with his lunge," Charlton said.

Laseko and Charlton set the following guidelines for residents with fenced-in yards:

- Garbage men will not enter a fenced yard with a closed gate.
- An open gate will indicate there is nothing to impede the collection or endanger the collector.
- Dog owners should keep the pet inside on garbage collection days and open the gate to receive backdoor service.
- If the dog is to remain in the yard, the cans must be placed outside the fence in an easily accessible location.

Laseko made a final comment, "A garbage man's got enough to worry about without some big dog jumping at him."

A LONE WORKMAN on his tractor levels the dirt along Dundee Road as it is readied for widening and paving. The roadway is being worked on from Rt. 53 to Elmhurst Rd., and is expected to be completed early next summer. See related story below.

'Twas a busy morning for false fire alarms

Two false alarms had the Arlington Heights Fire Department busy yesterday morning.

The first call came from Northwest Community Hospital about 9:30 when smoke was discovered on the west portion of the fourth floor.

The smoke was traced to welders cutting steel on a lower floor as part of the hospital's expansion program. Jack Ryon, hospital spokesman, said the smoke from the cutting torches apparently was drawn up an air duct to the fourth floor.

A fire alarm was sounded and the fire department responded with several trucks and an ambulance. Firemen soon traced the smoke to the welders.

"I suppose this happens all the time in large buildings, but it causes more excitement when it happens here," Ryon said.

Ryon said patients in the ward were not moved during the incident.

The second false alarm came a short time later from St. Viator High School.

Concert, workshops Sunday

Two music workshops and a concert will be sponsored Sunday at Hersey High School, 1960 E. Thomas, Arlington Heights, by Music for Youth.

The first workshop will start at 11 a.m. for Arlington Heights students in the gymnasium. A second workshop will be held from 2 to 3 p.m. for 100 Chicago area students. Both sessions will be conducted by John Kendall, a pioneer in the Suzuki music program in the United States.

Kendall will speak to parents at 12:30 to 1 p.m. about the Suzuki program.

Starting at 3:30 p.m., the public is invited to a concert with all workshop students performing. A 50 cent donation is requested for the event. After the concert, Henry Mazer, associate conductor for the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, will give a speech on the importance of music programs for students.

St. Viator starts alumni unit

An alumni association is being formed for graduates of St. Viator High School for boys, Arlington Heights.

Next year will mark the tenth anniversary of the first class to graduate from the school.

Mrs. Marie Breen and Ro Waymel, both of Palatine, are co-chairmen of the association committee. Rev. Patrick Cahill, CSV, athletic director at the high school, was named alumni director.

More than 1,700 letters were sent to graduates, informing them of the association, according to Mrs. Breen. The committee also plans to publish a quarterly newsletter for alumni in September.

Southminster pastor to be honored in ceremony Sunday

Rev. William T. Jones of the Southminster Presbyterian Church, Arlington Heights, will be honored Sunday by church members and friends upon his retirement after a 37-year ministry.

The ceremony with a plaque presentation will be in the sanctuary immediately after the 10:30 a.m. service. The service is the only one this Sunday.

Guy C. McMillan Jr., will preside. Charles W. Derby, Robert L. Gottschalk and Ray A. Bowden will recount their past relationships with Rev. Jones.

Rev. Jones came to this country from Wales at the age of 17, in 1926. He was graduated from the Chicago YMCA Evening School and went on to be graduated from Carroll College with a B.A. in 1933.

He received a bachelor of divinity degree from McCormick Theological Seminary, Chicago in 1936.

He served as pastor in Ohio until 1942. He then served at Emerald Avenue Presbyterian Church, Chicago, until 1955.

He helped found the Arlington Heights church in 1961 after serving as executive director of the Church Extension Board of the Chicago Presbytery.

During his pastorate, Southminster has grown from 118 members to the current 1,300.

Rev. William T. Jones

During his Arlington Heights' pastorate, Rev. Jones remained active in the greater church structure. He was chairman of the Ministerial Relations Committee from 1969 until 1972.

Rev. Jones was also active in the Rotary Club of Arlington Heights, serving as its president in 1968 and 1969.

A reception will be held in Fellowship Hall in the lower level of the church after the ceremony.

Serving on the ceremony are reception committees: Ray W. McDonald, Nicholas M. Lattoff, Mrs. Richard C. Manatt and Mrs. Thomas E. Mead.

Center 'hike' proceeds expected to top $20,000

Collections from the fifth annual "Hike for Your Neighbor" to benefit the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows are expected to top the $20,000 mark.

Pledge collections now total $8,835.85. This represents collections from approximately one-third of the more than 900 participants in the April 8, 20-mile hike through the Northwest suburbs. Pledges have been averaging more than $20 per person.

The first phase of a telephone campaign to remind the marchers to turn in their pledges is expected to be completed Rena Trevor, hike chairman.

By the end of the week, according to "We're hoping that by next week we'll see a spurt in contributions," said Mrs. Trevor. The hike committee hopes to have all pledges in by the end of the school year.

THE HIKERS received pledges of money from individuals and businesses for every mile they walked in the hike. Most completed the entire hike.

Last year approximately $13,000 was raised from the hike.

The hike has been one of the center's major fund raising activities but has taken on new importance this year because of the dismantling of the Office of Economic Opportunity and the cutoff of all federal funding.

The center originally was granted $64,000 from the federal government for the 1973-74 fiscal year. This represented 48 per cent of the center's operating budget and the center was prepared to raise the remaining 52 per cent locally. The federal funding cutoff means the center has to raise all of its own funds.

During the 1972-73 fiscal year the center served approximately 1,700 families from the six township area of Palatine, Wheeling, Elk Grove, Schaumburg, Hanover, Barrington and parts of Maine.

The center's services include: food stamps, supplemental food nutrition programs, housing assistance, legal aid, job referral, family planning, income tax assistance, interpretation and referrals to several other agencies.

Woman, 26, charged in bogus check case

Sandra J. Norton, 26, of 2214 S. Goebbert Rd., Arlington Heights, was arrested Wednesday after she allegedly passed a number of bad checks in the area.

Arlington Heights police said Mrs. Norton cashed a series of checks drawn on a closed account in the O'Hare International Bank, Chicago. Checks were discovered in Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Des Plaines and Park Ridge.

Police said Arlington Heights businesses where the checks were passed are Dorrell's Pharmacy, Arlington Inn Motel, Teddy's Liquors, and the A & P grocery.

Mrs. Norton was released on $2,000 bond and is scheduled to appear in the Arlington Heights branch of circuit court June 22 on the deceptive practices charges.
